DAN PRATT IS INDICTED FOR USE OF TIRES

Former Business Manager of City School Department is Accused of Felony Embezzlement After Jury Hearing

Facts in Controversy Are Laid Before Co. Inquisitors and Action is Promptly Taken; Bail is Fixed at $5000

Daniel W. Pratt, former school department business manager, was today indicted by the grand jury on a charge of felony embezzlement, following an inquiry by the county inquisitorial body into the charges that the former business manager had appropriated automobile tires, property of the school department.

The indictment was returned before Judge J. J. Trabucco, after several witnesses, employees of the school department, were called before the jury. Pratt's bail was fixed at $5000 and a warrant placed in the hands of the sheriff.

Pratt surrendered himself at the county jail this afternoon. He was booked, and then in company of his lawyer, Robert B. Gaylord and Undersheriff Hamlin, left the courthouse to arrange bail.

Pratt resigned from the school department following charges by Director Fred Campbell of the Board of Education that he had appropriated to his own use a set of automobile tires, purchased as for a truck owned by the school department. Pratt admitted this to Superintendent of Schools Fred Hunter, and made restitution.

Later, it developed at a hearing held by the Board of Education into the case, he paid $50 for three retreaded tires taken from the school department, and sent to the school store house two new tires, which he had traded for tires bought for a school truck. The exchange was told of in the school board hearing by E. O. Johnson, who resigned following the hearing as storekeeper for the school department.

The case was turned over to the district attorney's office by the school board and Deputy District Attorney Ollie Hamlin detailed to handle it.

FACTS ARE PLACED BEFORE GRAND JURY

Hamlin laid the facts in detail before the grand jury today. The witnesses examined included V. P. Irwin, auditor of the school department, who testified as to the requisitions on which the tires were bought, and which were written in Pratt's own handwriting, being passed, it was charged, over the heads of the clerks who usually handle such matters; and Johnson, the resigned storekeeper, who says that he signed the storekeeper's receipt for the tires without receiving them, under orders from Pratt. He says that he was called to Pratt's office in the city hall and there instructed to sign and return the receipt.

Assistant Superintendent E. Morris Cox testified to being sent down stairs from the school department offices in the city hall by Superintendent Fred Hunter to take the numbers on Pratt's tires. He did not know the purpose of this, he said, until after the numbers were taken, when he found that Hunter had also taken the numbers, and had instructed others to, and that the numbers corresponded with those of the tires purchased on a school requisition as for a school auto truck. Neither Hunter nor Campbell were called upon to testify before the inquisitors.

TIRES PAID FOR OUT OF SCHOOL FUNDS

Miss Frances Wilson, deputy in the district attorney's office, and District Attorney Ezra Decoto attended the hearing.

W. R. Brooks and T. M. Robinson, from the county auditor's and county assessors' offices certified that the claim for the tires in question had been paid for out of school funds in keeping of the county, in the regular course of handling such supply bills.

Pratt's resignation and the accusation against him created a sensation in school circles that has not yet subsided. According to Superintendent Hunter, Pratt held that he was "out" several hundred dollars, expenses during his lobbying trips to Sacramento for the school funds bill, and took this means of reimbursing himself.

Remember the Dead, Says Pershing

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Referring tenderly to those who had fallen in battle, General Pershing after his welcome in New York, said:

"To those we left over there," and Pershing's voice dropped almost to a whisper, "we owe a solemn tribute. I trust that those we left behind will always be remembered by a grateful people and that their graves will be fittingly decorated so that we Americans in the years to come may have a place to go and worship our heroic dead."

N.Y. DOFFS ITS HAT IN HONOR OF PERSHING

Commander of U. S. Army Overseas Given Big Ovation When He Reaches Gotham After Long Service Abroad

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—General Pershing is home again.

Standing on the bridge of the huge Leviathan, itself symbolic of victory over Germany, the commander of the greatest host ever gathered under the Stars and Stripes, came slowly up the bay today, world famed and hailed as a conquering hero should be.

Sad of face, stern and impassive, a splendid figure of a soldier, he might have been thinking, as the familiar landmarks of New York came into view, of the day 27 months ago when he slipped secretly out of the harbor on his way to France to prepare the way for the hosts that were to follow. Then he was only a major general.

He came back today with four stars on his shoulders—the fourth man since Washington to wear them under the American flag.

The welcome given him would have quickened the pulse of the hero of a Roman triumph. Fresh from the capitals of allied Europe, where honors had been heaped upon him, it remained for New York to show the first American to lead an army across the Atlantic that "Home, Sweet Home," has a meaning deeper than "Hail to the Chief."

CONVOY OF DESTROYERS ACCOMPANY LEVIATHAN.

No foreign throats could voice the cheers, no alien hearts could pulse the greeting that was General Pershing's. There were tears in the welcome. Those who gave it knew that not even the plaudits of a grateful people could banish from the sad-faced soldier's mind the memory of his own life's tragedy.

Dawn barely had broken when the Leviathan loomed through the mists off Ambrose channel lightship. Steaming slowly through the narrow passage way the big ship was greeted by a convoy of six destroyers, while seaplanes circled overhead. The forts which guard the harbor boomed a general's salute as the ship which once was the pride of Germany crept past quarantine and nosed through the narrows into the harbor under the shadow of the statue of Liberty. While the guns still echoed, the whistles of merchant vessels from the seven seas, sturdy tugs, gaily decorated ferryboats, excursion craft of every kind and the sirens of factories on shore joined in a discordant salute.

The shores of Staten Island, Brooklyn, New Jersey and Manhattan were lined with thousands whose shouts of greeting came faintly across the waters of the bay to the familiar figure on the bridge. They made up the vanguard of the vast army of welcomers who had already packed Battery Park and overflowed into the streets beyond waiting patiently until General Pershing had been greeted by Vice-President Marshall and the secretary of war and was ready to cross the river to the great city that was eager to pay him tribute.

VOLLEY OF CHEERS AS SHIP ENTERS BERTH.

The great liner came up to her pier at 8 o'clock and as she was being warped into her berth there was a tremendous volley of cheering from the crowd assembled there. General Pershing, smiling in appreciation, with head bared, bowed repeatedly in response. Once he forgot his dignity in his enthusiasm at returning home and waved his cap as he saluted the happy throng.

At the pier were many dignitaries of the nation, state and city, and it was there he was welcomed on behalf of the nation.

The First division band of 100 pieces on board ship, the members of which had served throughout all the fighting in which the veteran unit had been engaged, began playing in response to the welcoming strains from the pier and "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here" and other airs mingled with cheers.

Vice-President Marshall welcomed General Pershing from the deck of the destroyer Blakeley. In the Vice-President's party were Secretary of War Baker, General Peyton C. March, chief of staff, other high officers and members of Congress.

PERSHING PRESENTED COMMISSION OF GENERAL.

Secretary Baker, presenting Pershing with the certificate of his new commission as a full general, said:

"About two and a half years ago, by the President's direction, I had the honor of designating you to lead the armies of the United States in France. Today you return, your mission accomplished, with victory written on the banners of the greatest army the nation has ever had and with the priceless foundations of liberty and freedom saved for us and for the world as the result of our participation in the war.

"The great victories are now won. The magnificent army has returned and the soldiers who once marched through the thickest of the Argonne are citizens again, filled with high memories of great deeds and carrying into their lives the inspiration which membership in that great company and sacrifice for that

SALOON OWNERS START FIGHT ON CITY LICENSES

Because Federal courts have ruled that 2¾ per cent beer is non-intoxicating, the city of Oakland may lose all police control over saloons in Oakland, under the Hart Ordinance. This developed today when it was learned by Commissioner F. F. Morse that saloon men and soft drink manufacturing interests had retained Attorney John W. Stetson in a fight to remove "soft drink" places selling the "non-intoxicating" beer, from the jurisdiction of the saloon regulation law.

This would mean that anyone might start a soft drink saloon without police regulation, unless the city council evolved another system.

The test will be made, Morse says, in the case of Harry Holcomb, who has asked for a license to operate a soft drink cafe, and whose application is protested by Helen Arteda and others. If the Hart ordinance holds in the case of soft drink places the license can be refused by the council. If the Hart ordinance is held not to apply, the council will be powerless.

"The saloon men hold that the Hart ordinance applies to places where intoxicating liquors are sold only," said Morse. "We hold that places selling this near-beer come under the ordinance as selling malt liquor.

"If this is upheld any corner grocery can sell near-beer without paying a license."

Dedicate Sept. 17 to Constitution: Stephens

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 8.—Governor Stephens today issued a proclamation, given out here by his secretary during the governor's absence from the capital, suggesting September 7 the 132d anniversary of the signing of the Federal constitution be observed in California as "Constitution Day." The proclamation refers to "a spirit of irresponsible assault upon our institutions" as prevalent and urges that a regard for the federal constitution be promoted as that document is the national bulwark.

RODMAN WILL PROBE FATAL FLAGSHIP FIRE

Blaze Which Caused Three Deaths on New Mexico May Have Been Caused by An Explosion, Admiral Says

Two Thousand Visitors Are Thrown Into Panic; Many Jump Headlong Into Boats; Fumes Overcome 25 Men

The U. S. S. New Mexico, flagship of the Pacific fleet, will sail for Port Angeles late today on schedule, despite the fire that damaged the dynamo compartment, causing the death of three men and the injury of more than a score others.

Bodies of the three men will not be sent to San Francisco for public funeral, as the city requested, but will be taken to Mare Island and shipped from there direct to relatives.

Admiral Rodman today began an official inquiry into the strange fire aboard his flagship, the New Mexico, which brought death to three heroic men of the crew late yesterday, while eight officers and twenty-five sailors were overcome by fumes as they fought for the rescue of their companions.

How the would-be rescuers battled until they dropped to open a red-hot water tight bulkhead, beyond which the doomed men were struggling for life in ten feet of water and poisonous fumes, and with deadly electric juices striking through from the dynamo room, makes a record within the finest traditions of the American navy.

2000 VISITORS, MANY PANIC-STRICKEN.

Two thousand visitors were on the flagship when the fire broke out, and they were hustled into boats and sent away from the ship's side as rapidly as possible. Many in panic jumped headlong into boats.

The dead are:

SAVAGE, WILLIAM M., engineman, second class.
HILARIO, A., mess attendant, third class.
DIZON, G., mess attendant, third class.

CARROLL, LIEUT. COM. P. B.
McMILLAN, LIEUT. COM. G. G.
HALPINE, LIEUT. C. G.
HANAFEE, LIEUT. F. J.
BROWN, LIEUT. E. B.
MILLS, LIEUT. J. G.
ALBERT, ENSIGN R. W.
WOOTTEN, ENSIGN C. T.
Twenty-five members of the crew.

GAS MASKS PROVE INEFFECTIVE.

Gas masks were worn by the men who lost their lives and also by the fire-fighters, but these were insufficient to protect them from the heavy fumes.

The fire started in the dynamo room shortly after 5 o'clock. Spontaneous combustion is believed to have been the cause.

Savage, Hilario and Dizon were in the ice machine room adjoining. As soon as the fire alarm sounded, the door separating the rooms was closed automatically. Flames and poisonous fumes swept into the ice machine room, however, through an airduct in the bulkhead of the dynamo room.

Water poured into the compartments to halt the fire aboard Uncle Sam's $25,000,000 and only electrically-driven dreadnaught, forced the three men in the ice machine room to scramble high for safety. The fumes became thicker in the lessening air-space.

FACING DEATH, HE REMAINS CALM.

The heroism of Engineman Savage, in the face of death, is told in a statement by Captain Twining, chief of staff to Admiral Rodman. He said:

"Trapped in the ice machine room with his two assistants, Engineman Savage remained throughout his terrible ordeal in telephonic communication with the chief engineer.

"Speaking without a tremor in his voice, he reported from time to time how the water was rising and how they were being slowly strangulated by the fumes and smoke.

"Then came the report that the water had reached a height of ten feet and here, trailing into weakness, the voice of the gallant Savage stopped and nothing further was heard over the telephone."

On the other side of the death door the would-be rescuers, headed by the two lieutenant-commanders, fought mercely to open the red-hot bulkhead.

MEN MAY HAVE BEEN ELECTROCUTED.

When at last they succeeded the fumes and water outpouring overcame the leaders and they had to be carried to safety by their comrades.

Officers advanced the theory that the victims may have been electrocuted when they dropped into the water from the ladders and steel grating to which they clung.

The flames swept into the photographic room next to the dynamo room and burning photographic material soon added to the deadliness of the fumes. There were several small explosions, due to the chemicals in the photographic room.

Among the material destroyed were several cameras of the type used in airplane photography, the property of Lieutenant Richardson, the naval aviator. Plates recording the fleet's passage through the Panama canal were lost.

Flaws in Treaty Are Admitted

Wilson Replies to Opponents

Pleads for Stricken Peoples

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 8.—President Wilson spoke here today in defense of all the provisions of the peace treaty. He said:

Mr. Chairman and My Fellow Citizens: I now feel more pleasant in facing my fellow citizens than when I realize I am not representing a peculiar cause. That I am not speaking for a single group of my fellow citizens. That I am not the representative of a party, but the representative of the people of the United States of America. (Applause.)

I went across the water with that happy consciousness. In all the work that was done on the other side of the seas, where I was associated with distinguished Americans of both political parties, we all of us constantly kept in our hearts the feeling that we were expressing the thoughts of America, that we were working for the interests and the things that America believed in, and I have come here to testify that this treaty contains the things America believes in. (Applause.) I brought a copy of that treaty along with me for I fancied that in view of the criticisms you have heard of it, you have thought that it consisted of only four or five clauses. Only four or five clauses out of this volume are picked out for criticism. Only four or five phrases in it are called to your attention by some of the different orators who oppose its adoption.

STYLES IT CHARTER OF HUMAN LIBERTY

Why, my fellow citizens, this is one of the greatest charters of human liberty, and the man that picks flaws in it or rather, that picks out the flaws that are in it—for there are flaws in it—because of the magnitude of the thing, and because of the majesty of the interests involved forgets the magnitude of the thing and forgets the majesty of interests therein, he forgets that the councils of more than twenty nations combined and were rendered unanimous in the adoption of this great instrument.

Everybody admits that it is a complete settlement of the matters which led up to this war, and that it contains the complete machinery which provides that it shall stay settled.

You know one of the greatest difficulties in our own domestic affairs is unsettled land titles. Suppose that somebody were mischievously to tamper with the land records of the state of Nebraska and that there should be a doubt as to the lines of every farm. You know what would happen. Within six months all the farmers would be sitting on their fences with a shotgun. Litigation would penetrate every community, hot feeling would be generated—contests not only of lawyers but of the farmers themselves would arise.

SAYS TREATY SETTLES EUROPE LAND TITLES

One of the interesting things that this treaty does is to settle the land titles of Europe and to settle them in this way, on the principle that land belongs to the people that live in it.

This is actually the first time in human interest that that principle was ever recognized and yet that is the fundamental American principle. The fundamental American principle is that the people who live in the country shall say what shall be done with that country.

We have gone so far into the assertions of the popular right that we not only say that the people have the right to have a government of their own that satisfies them, but that they have the right to change in any respect at any time. Very well. That principle lies at the heart of the treaty. There are people in Europe who never before could say that the land they lived on was their own and that the choice they would make of their lives was their own choice.

POLES PERMITTED TO GAIN RESTITUTION.

I know there are men in Nebraska who came from that country of tragical history, the now restored republic of Poland, and I want to call your attention to the fact that Poland is here given her complete restitution, and not only is she given the land that formerly belonged to the Poles, but she is given the lands which were occupied by the Poles, and now are occupied by and had been permitted to remain under other sovereigns, and she is given that land under a principle that all our hearts approve of. You take what in Europe they call High Silesia, the upper portion of the district of Silesia. The very great majority of the people in High Silesia are Poles and the Germans contested the statement that most of them were Poles. We said: "Very well, then, it is none of our business and we will let them decide it. We will put sufficient armed forces into High Silesia to see that nobody tampers with the process of the election, and then will hold a referendum there and those people can belong either to Germany or Poland, as they prefer, and not as we prefer."

And wherever there was a doubtful district we applied the same principle—that the people should decide and not the men sitting around the peace table at Paris.

So that, when these referenda are completed, the land titles of Europe will be settled and every country will belong to the people that live on it, to do with it what they please.

EXPLAINS WORK OF THE "BIG FOUR."

Now, you seldom hear of this aspect of this treaty. You have heard of the council that the newspaper men call the "big four." We have a very much bigger name for it than that. We call ourselves the supreme council of the principal allied and associated powers. But we have no official title and sometimes there were five of us instead of four. But those represented, with the exception of Germany, were the great fighting nations of the world. They could have done anything with this treaty that they chose to because they had the power to do what they wished, and they chose to do what had never been chosen before, to renounce every right of sovereignty in that settlement to which the people concerned did not assent.

That is the great settlement which is represented in this volume, and it contains among others things a great charter of liberty for the workingmen of the world.

For the first time in the history of the councils of mankind, they are to be drawn together and concerted for the purpose of defending the rights and improving the conditions of the world and improving the working people and the women and children all over the world. Such a thing as that was never dreamed of before.

UNIVERSAL LEAGUE DECLARED ONLY WAY

And what you are asked to discuss in discussing the League of Nations is the method of seeing that this thing is not interfered with. And there is no other way except by universal League of Nations and what is proposed here is an universal League of Nations. Only two nations are, for the first time, being left out. One of them is Germany, because we didn't think that Germany was ready to come in, because we felt that she ought to go through a period of preparation. Because she says that she has made a mistake and we now want her to prove it by not trying it again.

She says that she has abolished all the old forms of government by which little secret councils of men sitting nobody knows exactly where, could determine the various fortunes of that great nation and incidentally try to determine the fortunes of mankind, and we want her to prove that her situation is changed and that it is going to stay changed, and then how can we say no to a great people sixty million strong, if they want to come in on equal terms with the rest of us, and take part in international affairs?

GERMANY TO PAY FOR WRONGS DONE

I want to say that I didn't find any of my colleagues in Paris disinclined to do justice to Germany. But I will say that this treaty is very hard on Germany. When an individual has committed a criminal act, the punishment is hard, but the punishment is not unjust, and this nation permitted itself, through the acts of unscrupulous governors, to commit a criminal act against mankind, and it has to undergo the punishment—not more than it can endure, but up to the point where it can do it, for the wrong it has done.

But the things prescribed in this treaty will not be carried out if any one of the great nations that brought that result about is withheld from the consummation of it, and every great fighting nation is on the list of those who are to constitute the League of Nations. I say every great nation because America is going to be included in them and among them. And the only choice is whether we will go in now or come in later with Germany; whether we will go in as founders of this covenant of freedom, or go in as those who are admitted after they admit that they have made a mistake and repented.

NATIONS AGREE TO COOL FOR NINE MONTHS

And I wish I could do what is impossible in a great company like this. I wish I could read that covenant to you because I do not believe, if you have not read it yourself, and have only listened to a certain subject, that you know what it is. Why, my fellow citizens, the heart of that covenant is that there shall be no more war. And to listen to some of the speeches you have listened to or read, you would almost think that it was an arrangement for war. But, on the contrary, this

WILSON SAYS RESERVATIONS ARE USELESS

Only Way Shantung Award Could Be Bettered, He Says, Would Be to Go to War With Japan, Eng., France

Defending Treaty Provisions President Declares Monroe Doctrine "Swallowed Hook, Line and Anchor" at Paris

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 8.—Discussing for the first time during his speaking tour proposed reservations of the League of Nations, President Wilson replied in an address here today to arguments advanced by those who favor reservations.

The proposed reservation providing for unconditional withdrawal from membership, said the President, meant that its sponsors wanted to "sit near the door with their hand on the knob," and if they saw anything they did not like, to "scuttle and run." The league provides that international obligations must be fulfilled before withdrawal. Never would it restrain the United States he said, because this nation also would live up to its provisions.

Those who wanted a reservation to Article X, Wilson continued, simply did not want to come in now, but wanted to be "late joiners."

MONROE DOCTRINE SWALLOWED AT PARIS

And reservation regarding the Monroe Doctrine, he added, was unnecessary because the doctrine has been "swallowed, hook, line and sinker," by the peace conference and should be authenticated by the big powers of the world for the first time.

There was no trick about it, he asserted, for the document was "the work of honest men."

So far as reservations about domestic questions were concerned, he declared, it would be a work of superogation.

"We did not ask Germany's consent about the meaning of any one of those terms, when we were in Paris," he said. "We told them what they meant and said: 'Sign here.' Does any patriotic American want that method changed?"

There were cries of "No, no," from the crowd.

If reservations were put in, Wilson told them, all that the Senate has written, you would have to go back for the consent of Germany. He added that there were indications that those on the other side of the water are not in as good a humor as they had been.

WAR ONLY CAN CHANGE SHANTUNG PROVISION

The only way the Shantung provision could be bettered, Wilson declared, would be to go to war with Japan, England and France. He told the crowd the nation could not sign a part of the treaty.

"We cannot rewrite this treaty," said he. "We must take it or leave it."

He said he believed the treaty should be accepted soon, but added:

"But no man can tell how long it will take the United States Senate to do anything."

The President said he had heard some men wanted the United States to stand alone for an "armed Pan-Americanism," but he did not believe the people would accept it.

On the ride before the meeting, the President alighted from his automobile and stopped at the home of C. N. Dietz, brother of Gould Dietz, president of the State League to Enforce Peace.

Adhering strictly to schedule, President Wilson's train left Omaha at noon for Sioux Falls, S. D., where he speaks tonight.

STEPHENS PLANS TO MEET WILSON HERE

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—Governor Stephens telegraphed to President Wilson today asking him if possible to include Sacramento in his schedule. He said he would meet the President September 17 at the Oakland mole, and extend a formal welcome to the nation's chief executive in behalf of California.

"It would afford me great pleasure to meet you at the State line and extend California's welcome, but from information at hand I understand that your train crosses the line at an hour which would render this impossible," the governor said, in his telegram to the President. "I therefore am planning to meet you on your arrival at Oakland mole September 17 and extend formal welcome there. If your schedule could possible be changed it would be greatly appreciated if Sacramento might have the honor, and the people the pleasure of hearing you."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—President Wilson is arguing before the country on the basis of what he sought to attain in the Versailles peace treaty—not what he got—is the reply Republican opponents of the treaty are preparing to make.

Senators Johnson, Borah and McCormick were making final plans today for their trip upon which they will carry their arguments "to the country." Johnson today declared:

"The President's ideals were abandoned, beaten at the peace conference. Every ideal utterance he made was utterly whipped and eliminated by the imperialistic aims of those who wrote the treaty."

Johnson declared the President was entirely right when he said the covenant was greater than the government.

"And the question our people want to decide," he continued, "is whether they want to substitute this super-government of a League of Nations for our republic."

Both Borah and Johnson will maintain that the presence in Russia of several thousand American soldiers is an example of what may be expected under the League of Nations. They will point out that this is an entirely "undeclared, undisclosed war," and demand by what authority American lives are being sacrificed. They will attack the principle of a President setting such a precedent as arbitrarily sending an armed force into foreign territory because of a strictly international situation.

In addition to speeches at Chicago, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Kansas City, previously announced, Johnson will speak at Des Moines, Sioux City and Minneapolis. If the situation in the Senate does not make his return to Washington advisable, the Senator will then continue to the Coast, speaking in Spokane, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles. His first speech will be before the Hamilton club in Chicago Wednesday noon. Johnson, Borah and McCormick will then speak at a night meeting.

WILSON BEATEN, SAYS HAYS.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—"President Wilson is only pounding against a stone wall of patriotism, which has already become impregnable and is daily increasing in strength," declared Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national commission, here for a few days, in discussing the President's speaking tour. Ratification of the League of Nations covenant must be accompanied by reservations absolutely safeguarding the full independence and freedom of action of the republic, Hays declared.

Hays, calling attention to the fact that the treaty will be reported out by the foreign relations committee this week, said:

"A vote can be had as soon as it can be reached under the rules. It is simply up to the administration to decide whether it will accept these essential guarantees of American independence which will unquestionably be accepted by the other nations. The full responsibility will rest upon the President, and him alone."

POINDEXTER REPLIES.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The first reply from the senate floor to President Wilson's "contemptible quitter" statement came from Senator Poindexter, Washington, today.

Poindexter in a speech declared that England and France were under obligations and the United States was not under obligations to them.

is the heart of that covenant. The bulk of it is concerned with arrangements under which all members of the league—and that means everybody but Germany and Turkey—agree that they never will go to war without first having done one or the other of two things—either submit the question at issue to arbitration, in which case they agree absolutely to abide by the verdict, or if they don't care to submit it to arbitration, submit it to discussion by the council of the League of Nations. To give six months for the discussion and then wait three months after the rendering of the decision, whether they like it or not, before they go to war. They agree to cool off for nine months before they yield to the heat of passion, which, otherwise might have hurried them into war. And if they don't do that, it is not war that ensues; it is something that will interest them very much more than war; it is an absolute boycott of the nation that disregards the covenant. The boycott is automatic and just as soon as it applies this happens; no goods can be shipped out of that country and no goods can be shipped into it.

No telegraphic messages may pass either way across its borders, no package of postal matters and no letters can cross its border either way, no citizen or any member of the league can conduct any transactions of any kind with any citizen of that nation. It is the most complete isolation and boycott ever conceived and there isn't a nation in Europe that can live for six months without importing goods out of other countries, and after they have talked about the matter for six months, I predict they will have no stomach for war.

About all you are told about this in this connection, as far as I can learn, is that there is a certain Article Ten. I will repeat Article Ten. I think I can repeat it:

"Every member of the league promises to respect and preserve as against external coercion—not as against internal revolution—the territorial integrity and existing political importance of every other member of the league, and if it is necessary to enforce this, then the council of the league shall advise what action is necessary."

U. S. IS PARTY IN ALL DISPUTES

Some gentlemen who doubt the meaning of the English words have thought that "advise" did not mean "advise," but I don't know anything else it does mean and I have studied English most of my life.

And the point is this: that council cannot give that advice without the vote of the United States. It cannot give this advice unless it is a party to the dispute. And, my fellow citizens, if you are a party to the dispute, you are in the scrap anyhow. If you are a party, then the question is not whether you are going to war or not, but whether merely you are going to war against the rest of the world. And the object in that case would be to defend the central thing that I am now speaking about. That is, the guaranty of the land titles of the world, which have been established by this treaty.

Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania, Jugo-Slavia and all those nations which never before had a vision of importance or liberty, now have their liberty and importance guaranteed, and if we don't guarantee them that, we have this next choice.

But I came here to talk about these things we call reservations. A reservation is an assent with a "but" in it. "We agree, but."

Now I want to call your attention to some of these buts.

In the first article of the covenant it is provided that a nation can withdraw from the league on two years' notice—provided that, at the time of this withdrawal—that is to say, at the expiration of the two years—it has fulfilled all its international obligations and all its obligations under the covenant.

Now, what is the trouble? I want you to put this to every man you know, who makes this objection. What is he afraid of? Is he afraid that when the United States wishes to withdraw, it will not have fulfilled its international obligations? Is he willing to bring that indictment against this beloved country?

We never did fail to fulfill any obligation we have made and God guide and help us, we never will.

There is only one thing to restrain us and that is the opinion of mankind. Are these gentlemen such poor patriots that they are afraid the United States will cut a poor figure in the opinion of mankind and do they think they can bring this great people to withdraw from that League, if, at that time, their withdrawal would be condemned by the opinion of mankind?

We have always been at pains to earn the respect of mankind and we shall always be at pains to retain it.

I, for one, am too proud, as an American, to say that any doubt will ever hang upon our right to withdraw upon the condition of the fulfillment of our international obligations.

But they don't like the way in which the Monroe Doctrine is mentioned. Well, the Monroe Doctrine is adopted; it is swallowed, hook, line and sinker and is being carefully invested into the central organism of the whole instrument.

ARMY FOOD DELIVERY TO BEGIN SOON

Delivery of army food ordered through the Oakland postoffice three weeeks ago will bgin late this week, whether the full supplies have arrived from the east or not, said Colonel M. A. Elser in the quartermaster's office at Fort Mason today.

Army officials have been holding up delivery until they could fill orders in their entirety, supplying the full list of varieties for which orders were taken.

So far, Colonel Elser said, only ten of the 24 varieties sold through the postoffice are in stock.

When the food first was put on sale it was announced that delivery might be expected in two or three days. Arrangements were made at once in Oakland for handling the shipments. A large tent was erected on the grounds of the Defenders' Recreation club, at Thirteenth and Webster street, and dress rehearsals were held to get all in readiness for the delivery.

Nearly $10,000 worth of the army food was ordered through the Oakland postoffice.

A few demands have been made on Postmaster Joseph J. Rosborough by buyers seeking their money back. These have been informed that the army rules will not permit the return of money at present.

"The matter of returning money has not come before us yet," said Colonel Elser. "We are just as desperate as are the buyers. We figure on beginning delivery the end of this week, whether all the food, which is en route from the east, has arrived here or not."

GEN. PERSHING IS WELCOMED BY NEW YORK

great cause engendered. Your return closes the history of the American expeditionary force. The President had hoped to be here personally to speak in behalf of the nation a word of welcome. In his enforced absence he has directed me to speak it.

"I bid you welcome on behalf of the country you served and on behalf of the people whose sons you have led. The confidence with which we sent you away you have sacredly kept. Wherever there is a soldier or a friend of a soldier, wherever there is a lover of liberty, wherever there is a heart which rejoices at the deliverance of mankind from its hour of peril, you and your great army will be remembered and loved. You return not only to American soil, but to the heart of the country.

"The President has directed me to read you this message:

"'My Dear Pershing: I am distressed that I cannot greet you in person. It would give the greatest pleasure to grasp your hand and say to you what is in my heart and in the hearts of all true Americans as we hail your return to the homeland you have served so gallantly. Notwithstanding my physical absence, may I not, as your commander in chief and as spokesman of our fellow countrymen, bid you an affectionate and enthusiastic welcome, a welcome, warmed with the ardor of genuine affection and deep admiration?

"'You have served the country with fine devotion in admirable efficiency. In a war forever memorable as the world's triumphant protest against injustice and as a vindication of liberty, the liberty of peoples as nations, no finer armies ever set their indomitable strength and unconquerable spirit against the forces of wrong. Their glory is the glory of the nation and it is with a thrill of profound pride that we greet you as their leader and commander.

"'The task entrusted to you required all the imagination, all the energy and all the genius of a great commander. From the first you had the complete confidence of the President and secretary of war. This confidence remained unshaken to the end. From the beginning you had all the support the people of the United States could give. You and your great army embodied for them their country and their country's cause. They worked with devotion and self sacrifice to sustain and supply you with troops and equipment. Our hearts were overseas with you and our praise for their welfare was constant. Doubtless the confidence and affection of your fellow citizens were an inspiration to you in the hours of preparation and in the hours of battle, as the superb exploits of the army under your command were in turn an inspiration to our national effort.

"'You have just come from the sea and from the care of the men of the navy who made the achievement of our arms on land possible, and who so gallantly assisted to clear the seas of their lurking peril. Our hearts go out to them, too. It is delightful to see you home again, well and fit for the fatigues you must endure before we are done with our welcome. I speak now only of our personal joy that you are at home again and that we have the opportunity to make you feel the warmth of our affectionate welcome.'"

PERSHING SHOWS EMOTION DURING SPEECH.

Pershing obviously was under the strain of a great emotion when Baker ceased speaking.

Senator Wadsworth and Congressman Mondell then spoke briefly.

William G. McAdoo then said: "We sent you over to do a job and you did it ahead of time. The best part of it is that you came back with your hat band the same size as when you went away."

The general grinned at this.

Miss F. H. Schwack, representing the governor of Missouri, then presented Pershing with a bouquet and a small American flag. Responding to these greetings, Pershing said:

"If this is to be continued, I believe before many days I shall wish, perhaps, that the war continued.

"To say I am happy is wasting words. I am overwhelmed and overcome with emotion when I think of what it really means to all of us. As regards your extremely complimentary words about the part it was my fortune to play, I can only say that what we accomplished and the victory we won was possible only through the united efforts of the nation. The men at the front felt the spirit of the nation behind them and their morale was never shaken. I realize that it is due to those brave fellows who faced a well trained, seasoned army with unbounded enthusiasm. I trust those we left behind may receive the respectful attention of a grateful nation and their graves may be fittingly decorated and consecrated so they may ever be a future lesson to all Americans."

RECEPTIONS AND LUNCHEONS FILL DAY.

General Pershing's first day on the home shore was filled with receptions, luncheons and concluded with a theater party.

The program follows:

10 a. m.—Welcomed at city hall by Mayor Hylan and city officials. Addresses by Mayor Hylan, General Pershing and others.

11 a. m.—Formal procession from city hall to the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, where General Pershing will stay while in the city.

12 noon—Luncheon at the Waldorf.

The afternoon will be devoted to informal visits and receptions.

6:30 p. m.—Private dinner at Ritz-Carlton to General Pershing and staff by Rodman Wanamaker.

8:30 p. m.—Party will attend Hippodrome performance.

Miss May Pershing and Mrs. Butler, sisters of General Pershing, from Lincoln, Neb., Mrs. Paddock, the general's sister-in-law, and his nephew, James Pershing Jr., met the commander-in-chief as he left the Leviathan with his son, Warren Pershing, 10 years old, and his brother, James Pershing.

General Pershing, with his staff, will occupy the entire third floor of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

General Pershing stepped ashore at 9:20 o'clock. Waiting for him at the end of the gangplank was Secretary Baker with hands outstretched. Behind Baker were Senator Warren of Wyoming, General Pershing's father-in-law, and Mrs. Warren, with William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury.

Back of this little group were

City Hall Too Small for Offices

School Bureaus Face Move Order

The Oakland school department may be moved out of the city hall and forced to have all its offices in the Chabot hall building, Eleventh and Grove streets, and in the Oakland high school, to make room for the harbor department and other city business in the city hall, it developed today. Commissioner F. F. Morse, Building Superintendent Robert Moulds and Ralph York, secretary of the public works department, held a conference today at which the need of more room in Morse's department was discussed, and the need of office space for the harbor and other departments was also discussed.

REMOVAL ONLY SOLUTION

The only possible solution, Morse says, is the moving of the board of education offices. At present the bulk of the departments in the school system are lodged in Chabot hall, where all school supervisors and department heads are housed. The board of education rooms on the eleventh floor of the city hall house the superintendent's office, the accounting force and the attendance department and the stenographers. These, Morse holds, could be easily moved from the city hall.

HALL TOO SMALL.

The city hall is much too small for the amount of business now being transacted, according to department heads. The recently vacated draft board rooms are all in use, and difficulty has been experienced in housing accumulated records in the police, street and engineering departments; the assessor's office is overcrowded with big tax volumes, and drafting tables in the engineer's offices have taken a great deal of space.

"The hall looks big from the outside, but is very small inside," said Morse. "The design is responsible for this. It is almost impossible to transact business efficiently now. Either we must have the eleventh floor or build a new floor."

The city council has the right to transfer the school department into its other quarters if this is deemed advisable. Morse will confer with Commissioner Fred Soderberg, he says, and if it is decided that the move must be made will ask the city council to act.

Oh, You Mustn't Do That, Says Pershing to Kissing Girl

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—While General Pershing was being officially welcomed by Mayor Hylan at city hall today, a beautiful young woman broke through the police lines, rushed up to the general, threw her arms about his neck and kissed him.

"Oh, you mustn't do that," exclaimed the general as he stepped back. The crowd cheered.

General Pershing today received the first salute to the rank of a full general since the death of General Philip H. Sheridan in 1888. The first of the guardian forts about New York City to greet the Leviathan with its guns as the transport moved through the harbor was Fort Hamilton.

JEWISH LANGUAGE REVIVAL URGED

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—Resolutions were adopted favoring the Jewish language as the official language of Palestine by the San Francisco District of the Zionist Organization of America, holding a conference with the delegates who will attend the national convention in Chicago, September 14, at the St. Francis yesterday.

That Jewish children of California had a better opportunity of securing an education than in New York, where there was the greater population was the statement of Rabbi Meyer, who urged that Zionists take up the question for the benefit of the future generation who would go to Palestine to enter business.

I. Irving Lipsitch was chairman of the day's conference. A. D. Shapiro and Miss E. Shirpser were secretaries. The delegates who will go from San Francisco to attend the national convention are: B. Dillar, Judge I. M. Golden, Dr. A. Gottlieb, Morgan A. Gunst, M. Kaplan, Maurice Liebman, I. Irving Lipsitch, Rabbi H. Lissauer, M. Lowenthal, Dr. Martin A. Meyer, Miss S. R. Nathan, Henry Newburgh, Leo J. Rabinowitz, Reuben R. Rinder, L. Seelenfried and Miss Elsie Shirpser.

"The Present Situation in Palestine" was discussed by Dr. Max Radin, professor of law at the University of California.

WARSHIPS VISITED DESPITE SHOWERS

Breezy, gray weather couldn't keep the crowds away from the big ships of the Pacific fleet today, the last opportunity to visit all the superdreadnaughts.

Rain was forecast again, but the sightseers were undaunted.

"Oh, I do want to see the sailors in their mackintoshes," said one fair visitor.

"Mustn't rain on a battleship be just too romantic" commented another.

"But won't it be frightfully rough," put in a third.

Anyway, they all went aboard and most of their questions were answered.

A few of the large ships will leave late today and most of the others tomorrow. The last, however, will not go until Wednesday.

It is said to be probable that the departure of Admiral Rodman's flagship, the New Mexico, will be delayed as a result of the fatal fire aboard her yesterday. She was scheduled to depart for Seattle late today.

Admiral Rodman will greet the Prince of Wales at Victoria, B. C., it was announced by Secretary of the Navy Daniels just before his departure Saturday on the Arkansas. The Secretary also will meet the Prince. Admiral Rodman will take Captain Carl T. Vogelsang, commander of the Idaho, and other dreadnaught commanders with him. The admiral met the Prince when the American fleet was acting with the British in the North Sea.

The festivities ashore for the fleet crews ended yesterday. Churches kept open house. Sight-seeing rides continued, but the organizations that had been giving dances staged no such parties on the Sabbath.

SEATTLE COOKS ON OPEN FIRES; 'GAS' STRIKE ON

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 8.—Thousands of Seattle families are cooking over open fires in their backyards, while volunteer office men employed by the Seattle Lighting oCmpany are stoking the furnaces at six plants today in a frantic effort to keep up service. Gas workers suddenly went out on strike Saturday. Slight gas pressure — enough of the precious fumes to fry eggs if one had patience enough—was supplied early today. But the pressure dwindled out by mid-forenoon.

Murder Suspects Are Lynched in Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 8. — Two negroes charged with murder were taken from the city jail here shortly after midnight and lynched. A mob of fifty men stormed the jail in search of a negro who was being held for assaulting a little white girl, but who had been secretly sent to St. Augustine by court officers, following threats of violence.

Finding their intended victim gone, the crowd seized the two negroes charged with murder, took them to the outskirts of the city in automobiles and shot them to death. They then placed ropes about the necks of the bodies and dragged them through the city streets.

CARRANZISTAS DEFEAT VILLA; KILL 356 MEN

GALVESTON, Tex., Sept. 8.—In three successive engagements, General Manuel Dieguez, commanding Carranza forces in pursuit of Pancho Villa in the State of Durango, has completely wiped out Villista cavalry, according to a statement given out by Mexican consul Meade Fierro here today.

Carranzistas killed 356 Villa followers and captured 800 horses, a large quantity of ammunition and equipment, the statement said.

Villa, with Martin Lopez, his chief lieutenant, and 80 men, escaped into the mountains pursued by light cavalry.

The battles occurred near Durango City, San Gabriel and Nombre De Dios.

EL CENTRO, Cal., Sept. 8.—A Mexican garrison of 30 soldiers at Algondones, Lower California, mutinied last midnight, killed four Cantu officers, fought a sharp battle with loyal troops and fled on horseback into Sonora. American employees of the Imperial irrigation district rescued women and children of Mexican employees during the battle and removed them to safety.

Mexican authorities request that American airplanes carefully keep north of the boundary line while the insurrection continues.

Thousands See Great Sequoia Play

Bay Cities' Builders Pledge Aid

CALIFORNIA REDWOOD PARK, BIG BASIN, Sept. 8.—Nearly 2000 representatives of the building industries who came here yesterday for the first annual "Builders' Day" and to witness the production of the forest play, "Soul of Sequoia," left here late this afternoon after two days of intense outdoor enjoyment.

Among those attending were many of the largest builders, contractors, architects and other representatives of the industries in the West. Organizations attending were: The Builders' Exchange of San Francisco, Building Industries' Association of San Francisco, San Francisco Architects' Club, Team and Auto Truck Association, General Contractors' Association of Oakland, Builders' Exchange of Sacramento, Builders' Exchange of San Jose, Masons' and Builders' Association of San Francisco.

TO PERPETUATE PLAY.

In keeping with the idea of "Builders' Day" in the Big Basin, as originated by Clarence F. Pratt, president of the Pratt Building Material Company of San Francisco, every builder present pledged his undivided and continued support of the California Redwood Park and the perpetuation of the forest play, "Soul of Sequoia."

State Senator William Scott read a resolution to be presented to Governor Stephens asking him and the park commission to take official steps to perpetuate the forest play in the Big Basin.

While the builders spent much of the two days in fun and frolic the serious side of the gathering was presented by Pratt when he declared it to be the intention to make this outing an annual event, the date corresponding with that of the forest play in order.

Scott, in an address before the campfire last night, stated that after witnessing the magnificent forest play and learning just what the Big Basin was, there was nothing which he would not attempt on behalf of the park.

Don W. Richards, author of the play, was called to the stage and applauded until the giant trees reechoed the compliments of the large assemblage.

Saturday afternoon was devoted to games in the park and to getting located in camp. Until after 2 o'clock Sunday morning the builders kept the camp in an uproar of laughter. More than $1200 worth of prizes, ranging from a $200 silver tea set of special design, to a dozen fly-swatters were awarded.

NURSING COURSE FOR FIFTY CENTS

Fifty cents and two days a week for a period of two months will give any woman training which will make her efficient to take care of her sick in her own household under supervision of a physician. Home hygiene and home care of the sick are two courses which are being offered by the Board of Education, co-operating with the American Red Cross.

Registration is being made in courses at the Technical High school and at Fremont High school. Less than 350 women in Oakland have concluded the instruction which the Red Cross has offered in the city. Enrollment in health work this term has been discouraging. Women with a leisure few hours a week are being urged to prepare themselves in the rudiments of sick room nursing.

Evening classes are held at Technical High school on Monday and Wednesday at 7:15 p. m. and at Fremont Tuesday and Thursday at the same hour. Afternoon classes will be conducted at Technical High school at 2:15 p. m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Only Healthy, Kindly Dogs to Be "Freed"

Hereafter all dogs captured by the poundman must be proved "chemically pure" before they can be released.

Commissioner F. F. Morse has presented for council action an ordinance providing that all animals captured must be examined by the city veterinarian, and pronounced neither diseased or vicious before they can be released, whether their license has been paid to redeem them or not. The ordinance is a health measure, according to Morse, and is intended to prevent spread of disease or rabies.

POLICE ASKED TO GO AFTER 'GYPSY'

Reporting that her fifteen-year-old son, Gurden Carter of 1004 Fortieth street, is living the life of a gypsy with several of his boy companions in the hills of Leona Heights and refuses to return home despite her pleading, the mother today appealed to the police to take the boy into custody.

Young Carter left home August 26. He is camping and sleeping somewhere in Leona Heights, according to reports received by his mother, and roams in different parts of the city with his companions in the daytime.

The mother said she had pleaded with her boy several times to come home, but he would pay no attention to her.

J. J. WEILER'S BAIL REDUCED TO $5000

Judge J. J. Trabucco today granted the motion of attorneys for J. J. Weiler, former minister, charged under the syndicalism law with I. W. W. propaganda, reducing the bail from $12,000 to $5000. Weiler is held in jail on three charges, awaiting trial. Youth Accused of Breaking Up Home Charging his wife's attentions to a 19-year-old boy, whom he does not name, ruined his marital happiness, Henry P. Jacobsen, a manufacturer's agent, residing at the Key Route inn, filed suit for divorce today from Elsa Jacobsen. They have one child, a son.

Jacobsen charged in his complaint that his wife had received the youth whom he accuses into her home at 1536 Second avenue and that their conduct there was not such as a husband could tolerate.

The complaint states that Jacobsen's income is $500 a month. It is also alleged, however, that the wife recently received her share of her parental estate, amounting to $12,500.

BOOTLEGGER SUSPECT AND BOOZE HELD

BERKELEY, Sept. 8.—Charged with being the leader of a gang of bootleggers who have been shipping vast quantities of booze into Portland, F. H. Gritzmacher, 42 years old, resident of San Francisco, occupies a cell in the Berkeley police station today.

Gritzmacher was taken into custody last night by Patrolman P. J. O'Keefe as he was said to be smuggling two suitcases filled with bottles of whisky on a north-bound Southern Pacific train at Third street and University avenue.

According to the police Gritzmacher has been watched for some time, suspicions being cast in his direction by his frequent visits to the railway station carrying suitcases which were handed to porters on the train. When the bags were opened yesterday the contents of two cases of whisky were found.

Gritzmacher's arrest may lead to a series of other arrests. According to Berkeley officials, porters on the Southern Pacific trains are declared to have been in conspiracy with the alleged bootleggers and to have aided them in smuggling illicit liquor to northern cities.

Gritzmacher has little to say of his operations and refuses to give the police a definite address, declaring merely that he resides in San Francisco. A further investigation of the case is being made by the police in an effort to secure all others responsible for the alleged smuggling operations.

FOUR STUDENTS IN SPEED TOILS

BERKELEY, Sept. 8.—Four students at the University of California are booked at Berkeley police station today for violations of the motor traffic laws.

They are: Theodore Westphal Jr., 1808 Eighth street, Oakland; Wickham Quinan, 2811 Russell street, Berkeley; Lindley Richardson, 2529 Ellsworth street, Berkeley, and Bartlett S. Heard, 2426 Virginia street, Berkeley.

Westphal was taken for driving over a railroad crossing too fast. The others were arrested for parking machines within fifteen feet of hydrants. Judgment was suspended in Richardson's case. The other cases were set for Thursday.

Judge May Revoke Speeders' Probation

PIEDMONT, Sept. 8.—Facing revocation of his probation, William Ede, 16 years old, champion speed artist of Piedmont's younger set, will appear in the juvenile court at its next sitting and take his medicine. Arrested on numerous occasions for stepping too hard on the speed throttle, Ede had been placed on probation. Yesterday, racing at an estimated speed of fifty-two miles an hour, he was again arrested—this time by Piedmont's police chief, B. F. Becker, who chased Ede's automobile for many blocks before arresting him. To combat the speed mania among Piedmont's residents, Judge G. T. Burtchaell plans to line all violators $25 each from now on.

Admiral for Life for Benson-Sims

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(By the United Press.)—The house today voted to grant the rank of admiral for life to William S. Benson and William H. Sims. Benson is chief of naval operations and Sims was commander of the American naval forces in foreign waters during the war.

Pleasanton's Country Charm Lures Noted Film Actress and Players

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG, who heads company of her own players in screening drama at Pleasanton.

PLEASANTON, Sept. 8.—Pleasanton scores again.

The fame of its natural beauties are spreading among the noted stars of the film drama. This time it is Clara Kimball Young who has come with her own company to incorporate into her plays the charms of mountain, wood and meadow that abound here in such high degree.

Miss Young came just as Miss Dorothy Phillipps, heading a Universal Film Company, was leaving after a two-week sojourn here.

Miss Young arrived on a special train Saturday morning direct from her studio at Los Angeles. Notables who have been seen on the film with her accompanied her.

The Universal Film Company has returned to its studios at Universal City after a most successful two-weeks' stay here. During the time that the company was here it kept bringing back and forth from Los Angeles many stars to support Miss Dorothy Phillipps, who is being featured in "Emotion." Director Montgomery, who was looking after all the work during the company's stay, left highly pleased with the local surroundings and the enthusiasm of the residents who were used in many scenes. There is a possibility that the company will return soon again for work on another film.

$12,000 in Cash Prizes Are Offered

Organizations Asked to Compete

This story is about "how Alameda county organizations can obtain over $12,000 in cash and prizes," easily, quickly, surely.

At some time in the life of every man and woman, in every organization, there is a turning point; a casting about query: "Where have I been? Where am I going? What will be the ultimate result if I don't about face, work and march to the ever striding, electing, onward motion of time?"

This turning of the way comes to every successful man; decidedly to every organization or fraternity of people. If you measure your affairs by the standards of success, then you have passed this stage—if not, beware!—heed before too late!

If things in this old topsy-turvy world haven't been going just right with your organization and money in the till is the prime need now, then you have come to the crossroads—the turning point—and know and realize that the $12,000 merchants' and manufacturers' selling campaign points the right, the easy, sure way—the turning point to success, independence and happiness.

Stop and think of the opportunities that come to people who have their ear to the ground, as it were. Have you ever had any of these opportunities? Or have you ever seen or realized them?

The chances are that you have had opportunities, but didn't recognize them. Most everyone has. The trouble was you didn't stop, look, listen, grasp and heed the knocking at your door. Mr. Ingalls, in his immortal poem, "Opportunity," says that "Opportunity is the master of human destinies." He was right. It is. Then your organization had better grasp this opportunity by its forelock and throw, tie and brand it for your very own—and now.

THINK; THEN ACT.

So, organizations, think!

Let the result of this mental exercise then determine you to grasp at this straw so freely, gladly extended for your grasp. Get hold and then hold on tight—and as the old saw put it—grasping the straw as if drowning, and the $12,000 merchants and manufacturers' selling campaign prizes will tow you to financial land and safety.

The time is exactly right for organizations to enter. You are wanted and will be warmly welcomed—but notify us now. Telephone Lakeside 6050 is for your use. Phone us and we will explain how simple and easy it all is—and it is all simple and easy. Nominations taken over phone.

Any organization in this city or territory is cordially invited to participate and win one of the several valuable prizes. It does not cost the organization one cent to enter, to compete or to win. It simply means that you buy and trade for the things you need from day to day, as you have in the past, and as you will in the future, only doing it in the campaign way and with the particular firms and manufacturers therein.

There are to be no "strings" to this great offer. No money for you to spend except what you spend anyway in the ordinary course of events, nothing for you to do except to save the sales slips, wrappers, cans, cartons, coupons, etc., on your cash purchases for a short time, doing this yourself and inducing your friends to do so and voting them for your favorite organization.

Over $12,000 in actual cash and prizes of intrinsic worth will be absolutely given away at the end of the campaign. First prize, $1500 in cash, second prize, a $1125 Chickering grand piano, and 48 other big prizes.

NOMINATION BLANK.

A nomination blank for the purpose of nomination of organization is furnished. Get one, fill it in for your favorite organization, either bring, send or mail it to the National Promotion Company at 1418 Jefferson street, or you can call Lakeside 6050 and nomination will be taken in that manner.

Now is the time to join—so go to work—this very day.

Remember, you are all wanted to compete—a warm invitation is hereby extended you—and, understand, it's all fair and square, for we have nothing to sell you and no way for you to buy a prize.

It is suggested that the various organizations which desire to win the $12,000 send in their 25,000 free vote nomination certificate without delay and get in touch in person or by telephone Lakeside 6050, with the manager of the campaign, where full details and plans will be cheerfully given.

BIG SISTERS TO EXPAND SOCIETY

Arrangements for the 2000 membership drive which the Big Sisters will undertake immediately will be whipped into shape at the regular meeting on Wednesday in the auditorium of the Young Women's Christian Association, 1515 Webster street. "Have Women Solidarity" will be discussed by Mrs. Katherine Phillips Edson, field agent for the State Industrial Association. The commission's orders which cover the canning industry with its 26,000 women employees, packer and dried fruit industries, mercantile industries, laundry and dry cleaning establishments, factory, office employees and fish canning industries has legislative powers and may base orders on its investigations in these lines.

Beginning September 17, hotels and restaurants have been placed under an order of the commission. Mrs. Edson will outline some phases of women in industry and the work of the state body before the big Sisters on Wednesday.

FINAL HONORS PAID OFFICER GARGADENNEC

Impressive funeral services today marked the last tribute of the Oakland police force to Patrolman C. J. G. Gargadennec, who died last week of wounds received while arresting Caesar Pellegrini, held as one of Oakland's "gasoline station bandits," and in which he shot and killed Otto McMahon, Pellegrini's partner, after having been mortally wounded.

The funeral services were held under the auspices of Brooklyn Lodge of Masons at the Oakland Masonic Temple at Twelfth and Washington streets. Two platoons of policemen under command of Chief J. F. Lynch and Captain Charles Bock stood in line before the temple, as the casket was borne by police pallbearers between the lines and into the temple. The services were the regular Masonic ceremonial, with Captain William F. Woods, master of Brooklyn Lodge, acting as master.

Following the services the cortege proceeded down Twelfth to Washington street, then along Thirteenth to East Oakland and Evergreen cemetery, where interment took place.

Police stars were draped with crepe in recognition of the occasion. The pallbearers were Sergeant Robert Forgie, Sergeant R. F. Ahearn, Sergeant H. J. Thornbury, Sergeant M. A. Byrne, Sergeant J. Pullman and Sergeant Leslie Cox. Platoon commanders were Lieutenant Bert Curtiss, James Walters and Sergeant A. E. Smith.

Further investigation was made today of the antecedents of William Schultz, the third man captured by Gargadennec in the fight at 510 Fifty-third street, when McMahon was killed, Gargadennec wounded and Schultz and Pellegrini taken into custody. While Schultz has not been identified as one of the gasoline bandits, as have McMahon and Pellegrini, he is being held in connection with the theft of the automobile of Rube Goldwater of San Francisco, the finding of which led to the apprehension of the men.

Gargadennec was the ninth member of the Oakland police force to meet death in the course of duty from shots fired by bandits. Fourteen in all have been killed on duty, the other meeting death through accidents or other causes.

Charges of robbery, based on the Twelfth and Fallon streets gasoline station hold-up, were placed against Pellegrini today by the police. He will appear in police court for arraignment tomorrow.

Resolutions commending the bravery of the late C. J. G. Gargadennec, the patrolman killed in arresting two suspected "gasoline station bandits," when he killed one, Otto McMahon, and arrested Caesar Pellegrini and William Schultz after being mortally wounded, will come before the city council Wednesday. Commissioner F. F. Morse has prepared a full report and will ask the public testimonial for the police hero by council vote. The city council adjourned today for lack of quorum, when Morse had planned to offer the resolution, and does not meet until Wednesday, tomorrow being a legal holiday, Admission day.

FRESNO RAISIN, IF USED RIGHT; HAS BIG KICK

Just a little raisin—but oh! What a kick!

The condition of William Shue, now awaiting action by "Hizzoner" of the police court, is an ocular and eloquent tribute to Fresno, the Home of the Raisin! And—it's an idea.

Shue was apprehended at First and Webster, where the police say he was crawling along the fence yowling like a tomcat. About the time the police started to investigate the fence collapsed and Shue was badly cut as a result. He was hurried to the Emergency Hospital.

"How do you get that way?" asked the hospital attendants.

"Oh—put raisins in—cork blows out—'s great!" opined the expert on home-made brew. He was taken to the city prison, booked for "drunk."

TIDAL CANAL TO BE SITE OF BIG CANNERY

With an investment which will eventually mount to the $1,000,000 mark, the Bisceglia Brothers' fruit packing concern has entered the Alameda county industrial world. A huge plant will be erected before the 1920 fruit season on a site recently purchased at High street and tidal canal. The land, twelve and one-half acres in extent, was purchased by the San Jose packers from the William E. Hampton company, Los Angeles, for $150,000 cash.

When complete the plant will be most modern in equipment. Water frontage on the tidal canal of 540 feet, together with a 400-foot wharf, already under construction, gives the concern a surplus of shipping leeway by water. The canners expect to receive much of their fruit by water, shipping in turn the finished products to Europe through the Panama canal.

As planned by Bisceglia Brothers, 1000 workers will be employed at the plant during the busy season. A subsidiary packing house and cannery at San Jose, now running, will supplement the Oakland plant with 800 packers. The Santa Clara valley plant will pack 700,000 cases of fruit before the present season is over.

Bisceglia Brothers are four in number—Pasquale, Joseph Anthony, Bruno and Antonio. There is one sister, Filippina De Rose. Twenty years ago, when Pasquale Bisceglia went to San Jose from Italy, he had only 25 cents in his pocket. He was a wood chopper by trade and by thrift accumulated enough capital to start a small wood business. Then, with his brothers, he purchased a cherry orchard and ultimately started a small cannery at Baldwin Hill.

QUIVER DANCE IS BARRED ON U. OF C. CAMPUS

BERKELEY, Sept. 8. — The naughty shimmy will never be danced on the campus of the University of California again.

Not if Miss Katharine Schwaner, president of the Associated Women Students, has her way.

For Miss Schwaner is indignant—not only at the fact that university seniors actually shimmied for a prize; but also because the fact of their shimmying is a subject of public gossip.

"The shimmy is a disgrace," she says. "Certainly I will do all I can to keep it from campus gatherings."

Meanwhile campus circles are awaiting a threatened investigation of a gathering held last week in Harmon Gymnasium, where several score members of the senior class shimmied for a prize of $2.50. Eldon Battles Spofford and his young wife, formerly Pearl Bowman, well known in campus circles, were the prize dancers.

But just who will do the investigating is a question also which has aroused interest. Thus far no steps have been taken to fix the blame for the "disgraceful" occurrence. Miss Lucy Stebbins, dean of women, says she will do nothing, despite the fact that she has been credited with calling Miss Schwaner "on the carpet."

"University students, as a whole, stand for decent dancing" is her only comment. "I have done nothing in the matter and don't expect to."

The students' affairs committee, usually active in cases of student discipline, has remained inactive up to the present. Miss Schwaner's advent into the controversy may start things humming.

For the leader of the co-eds is up in arms and her office wields vast powers on the college campus.

GROCERS DECIDE ON HALF-HOLIDAY

Members of the Alameda County Retail Grocers' Association will close but half a day tomorrow, according to E. S. Hogan, secretary to the organization. The frequency of holidays, just past, and which were observed by grocers generally, brought about the decision to open during the morning hours.

An effort will be made to have every county enter an exhibit in 1920.

Saccharine in Soda Pop, Court Charge

Jesse Steele found a way to reduce H. C. L., according to the police. To eke out a living Steele manufactures and sells soda pop. The price of sugar made him rebel. At least the police presume so.

For Steele was haled before Judge George Samuels this morning on a charge of putting saccharine in the pop as a substitute. All of which is in violation of the city ordinance.

He will be sentenced September 10.

BANKS CAUGHT IN MIDWEST MINE SWINDLE

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Arrests in New York, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Mobile, Ala., and several other eastern and middle western cities are expected today following the confession last night of four of seven men arrested in Chicago charged with being implicated in what detectives from the state's attorney's office say is one of the greatest swindles in the history of modern banking and finance—through which the fake syndicate swindled investors in mining stock out of upwards of $1,000,000.

The following, taken in a raid on the headquarters of the Transit Securities corporation here, are held by the authorities today:

Charles W. French, middle west stock promoter, and said to be the head of the gang.

Henry T. Leavitt, who says he is an Omaha attorney, and who detectives say acted as legal adviser to the gang.

Alva Harshman, Pasadena, Cal., secretary of the Transit Securities corporation.

H. L. Thornburgh, Wilmette, Ill., formerly president of a Racine (Wis.) bank.

Benjamin E. Lamb of Mobile, Ala., whose knowledge of the south and especially of southerners possessed of means made him a valuable member of the outfit, according to detectives.

W. R. Power, address at present unknown.

According to authorities, the gang has as their only assets a $400 plot of zinc ore land in Missouri and a printing outfit in the Majestic hotel here, where they turned out bales of worthless stocks, bonds and notes.

Then they would organize special companies to dispose of these worthless stocks and are said to have involved cashiers and officers of several banks throughout the middle west and southern part of the country in their operations.

Gold Mine Industry Threatened
Eugene Davis Sounds Warning

EUREKA, Nev., Sept. 8. — The calamity which approached the gold production industry of the United States two years ago has not receded and will not cease to menace the very life of the industry unless intelligent, constructive action is immediately taken by the government; domestic production of gold in the United States next year will fall far short of the demands of the arts, and this will cause gold coin to be absorbed in the arts to a serious extent unless preventive legislation is enacted; upon a speedy and proper solution of the problems of the gold producers depends the permanent settlement of the labor question, the high cost of living, the curing of inflation, financial and industrial growth and, indeed, the national integrity.

These are some of the points made in a statement here today by Eugene Davis, owner of the Eureka-Croesus and controlling interests in other large groups of mining properties in this district. Davis suggests the immediate organization of the gold mining interests and discussion by the men engaged in the industry of possible remedies for the present situation. Among other proposals which he believes should be discussed is that of an excise tax on all jewelry, on the pennyweight basis, for all jewelry sold and for all gold sold to the dental trade. This tax, it is suggested, would create a fund from which could be paid a bounty to the producers of new gold sufficient to stimulate production to the extent of making certain an annual quantity adequate to supply the trade demand and to protect the money metal.

SEES DANGER AHEAD.

Davis took a conspicuous part in the efforts made last year to obtain relief for the gold producers. He has studied the situation thoroughly. In consultation with other recognized authorities, and his analysis of the present condition is certain to attract wide attention. His interests here are mainly in silver and lead mining, but he considers the solution of the gold problem vital to the general prosperity and industrial safety of the nation. His statement follows:

"Dependable data has been collected to show that the consumption of gold by the arts this year will about equal the domestic production, and that next year's production will fall far short of meeting the demands of the arts. It is apparent, therefore, that the arts will be driven to the necessity of drawing upon the monetary stock of gold to provide for their requirements if some adequate means of obviating the necessity is not speedily found.

MINERS DRIVEN TO WALL.

"The greatly increased cost of producing gold has curtailed production to an alarming extent, while the causes that have brought about this increase of cost have greatly increased the requirements for a much larger than the pre-war normal annual production. The economic pressure which has resulted in so great an increase in wages and a corresponding decrease in efficiency, a much higher cost of materials, machinery, supplies, freight and smelter charges, has driven the gold miners to the wall. Many of them have been pushed over the wall and are down and out, while others are keeping their mines open by operating at a loss, suspending all development work and exhausting their ore reserves.

"When the reserves are exhausted the annual production must of necessity consist almost entirely of the gold that is recovered as a by-product by those mining other metals, such as silver and copper. Very little, if any, prospecting for gold is now being done, for the reason that its purchasing power, as the measure and standard of values, has been reduced one-half and capital refuses to be employed in the development of gold properties. The reasons for this condition of affairs emphasize the necessity for a greater supply of the metal.

"The government, having gone mad in its debauchery of squandering money and paying its bills with certificates of indebtedness, which it promises eventually to redeem in gold, has, while protecting practically every other essential industry, turned a deaf ear to the gold producer, to whom it must look in the end to meet, first the interest, and finally the principal of its thirty billions of war obligations.

"A premium cannot be placed upon gold without seriously and perhaps vitally affecting the financial and commercial structures of the world. Hundreds of billions of railroad, industrial, state, county, municipal and national bonds and other evidences of debt, payable, both principal and interest, in gold of the weight and standard of value existing when the obligations were issued, are held throughout the world and cannot be paid if the debtors are compelled to obtain the gold at a considerable premium. And if the gold industry is permitted to be practically extinguished through a short-sighted and stupid policy of inaction on the part of the government, financial chaos is inevitable sooner or later.

GENERAL BANKRUPTCY.

"The time will come when every debtor will be called upon to pay in gold, and being unable to obtain it general bankruptcy will result.

"The value of the dollar, as measured in gold, cannot be lessened without bringing upon us disasters such as would follow the inability of the debtors, be they individuals, corporations, municipalities, states or nations, to obtain gold with which to meet their obligations.

"For the few reasons I have given—and there are many more—it should be apparent to any one who will give them only cursory examination that no domestic question now demanding a sane and safe solution is comparable in importance to the maintenance, and, if possible, the increase, of the annual pre-war production of gold.

ONLY ONE REMEDY.

"For upon its solution and the enactment of suitable laws to foster and stimulate the gold industry must depend the permanent settlement of the labor question, the high cost of living, the remedy of present and prevention of future inflation, our industrial, commercial and financial growth, the maintenance of our national integrity, the security of our form of government and the attainment of our national aspirations.

"The problem is being studied by some serious men who have no political purposes to serve nor ambitions to gratify. They need and must have the co-operation and support of the gold producers if the problem is to be solved and the enactment of necessary constructive legislation which will put the industry on a basis in keeping with its importance and in equitable relation with the government is to be obtained before a considerable percentage of the mines and the gold in them are totally lost.

ORGANIZATION NEEDED.

"These men are working through and with the American Mining congress, whose able and untiring secretary, J. F. Callbreath, has long endeavored to arouse the country to the dangers certain to result if the gold production problem is not quickly solved. In his work he has been fortunate in obtaining the assistance of H. L. Laurie, formerly at the head of the geological and mining department of the Oregon state government, whose knowledge of the gold situation is profound and whose ability and conservatism are widely recognized.

"The gold producers should immediately form an organization and place at its head only men whose interest in gold mining will insure their utmost endeavors in obtaining a speedy and satisfactory answer to the grave questions, and the enactment of suitable legislation to make those answers realizable in effective operation. It is my opinion that close co-operation with the American Mining congress is necessary if success is soon to be achieved.

"The advisability of having an excise tax imposed on all jewelry, on the pennyweight basis, for all jewelry sold and all gold sold to the dentistry trade, is now being seriously considered. This would create a fund from which could be paid a bounty to the producers of new gold, sufficient to stimulate production to the extent of making certain an annual volume of new gold adequate to supply the trade requirements and protect the money metal.

GERMANS KILL AMERICAN IN NEUTRAL ZONE

COBLENZ, Sept. 6.—(By The Associated Press.)—Private Reass Madsen of Sacramento, Cal., was shot and instantly killed today by German soldiers in the neutral zone, about a mile from the boundary of the Coblenz bridgehead.

Madsen and Private Bert Balsinger of the Eighth Infantry, who had been on outpost duty, were deer hunting when they encountered a German patrol of thirteen soldiers.

According to Balsinger, the Germans began firing without asking an explanation as to why the two Americans were in the neutral zone.

Balsinger told the American authorities that when he and Madsen encountered the Germans he was several yards ahead of Madsen. Balsinger said he dropped his rifle as soon as he saw the Germans, who a second afterwards began to shoot at Madsen.

The Germans contended that Madsen fired at them. Balsinger declared that the Germans fired first and that if Madsen had fired he did not see him shoot or hear the shot.

Balsinger was taken prisoner by the Germans and later turned over to the American Provost Marshal, Maj. George Cockrell, and brought to Coblenz. Madsen will be buried in the American Cemetery at Coblenz.

PROBABLY HOWELL D. MADSEN.

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 8.—The Madsen referred to in Associated Press despatch as being killed by German soldiers may be Howell D. Madsen, a son of Mrs. Laura Madsen of Brighton, a suburb of Sacramento, who is in Germany, and the only Madsen from Sacramento with the expeditionary forces so far as has been learned here.

It has been impossible to get any information on any person by the name of Reass Madsen. Mrs. Madsen has received no word that her son has been killed. She said she received a letter from him last Wednesday in which he said he was to be transferred from Montabaur to Trier, Germany. He is a private and is with the headquarters department. Howell D. Madsen, who is 21 years old, voluntarily enlisted in Sacramento about a year and a half ago and was sent to Fort McDowell From there he was sent to Fort Lawton in Seattle, where he spent fifteen months.

Upon being discharged from the service he re-enlisted for foreign service and was assigned to the 18th U. S. Infantry, which, last April, went from Camp Meade to Germany. Madsen was born and reared in Sacramento.

DIRECT ROUTE TO BERKELEY IS UP

Improvement of East Twelfth street, cutting through Clay and Jefferson streets, north of San Pablo, and affording the quickest possible direct route between Berkeley and Oakland, are the plans that will, within the month, be laid before the city council by Commissioner W. J. Baccus. Two of these projects were taken up several years ago. The East Twelfth street opening, from which appeal was made by the railroad administration, and which was opposed by the Western Pacific, is an opening of the street from Twenty-third avenue to Fruitvale, relieving the congestion on East Fourteenth street, only artery for traffic east from that point. The street department has altered the plans to avoid conflict with certain factory developments, and will present proceedings at an early date. Incidentally, improvement of the Santa Fe tracks crossing this region has been tentatively agreed to by the railroad, it was said in the street department offices today.

OPENING RECOMMENDED

The opening of Clay street was first recommended in the city planning report of Warner Hegemann, made before the war for the city. At the present time there are no northbound streets from San Pablo avenue between Broadway and Grove. The opening of the two streets will relieve congestion of traffic on these streets, affording two inlets to the center of the city, and a line from Shattuck and Adeline, over Dover street, and into Clay, would, it was pointed out in the Hegemann report, offer the shortest possible route to Berkeley. The proceedings have been tentatively drawn up and are awaiting council action.

The entire plan, East Twelfth, Jefferson and Clay street openings will be included in one comprehensive report, which the street department engineers are working on now, and presented to the council, with maps, possibly within two weeks, according to Baccus' office. The opening of the two streets north from San Pablo will involve extensive dedication proceedings, large district assessments, and, as the entire city is interested, a more than usually large amount of the expense to be bourne from the general city treasury direct. It is for this reason that the plan will be placed before the council for general policy before action is taken by Baccus.

It is only a matter of time when this, as well as better outlets across Lake Merritt into East Oakland, must be devised, according to Baccus, the question being whether it is wiser to do the work now than to wait for increases in land values, the largest expense involved.

Lay Director Named by Episcopal Church

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—With the selection of Lewis B. Franklin as director of organization, the Protestant Episcopal church has secured the services of a man who is regarded as one of the most successful organization experts in the country.

Franklin will have complete direction of the forthcoming "Every Name" campaign of the Episcopal church as part of the program of that church in America to stimulate and reawaken interest in Episcopal church work.

Discussing the Episcopal movement, Franklin said: "The Episcopal nation-wide campaign is a movement which, while not sacrificing any of the spiritual aims of the church, seeks by co-ordination of effort and economic business administration and the recognition of the real fellowship of man, emphasized by the war, to bring religion and the church into the closest touch with the spirit

MILLS GIRLS OPEN SESSION WITH PARADE

Convocation, the first formal procession of Mills College students for the semester, took place this forenoon, when the 395 young women registered in the academic courses made their pilgrimage from Mills Hall, the oldest building on the campus, to Lisser Hall, where an impressive ceremony was held.

Led by members of the faculty, the seniors, juniors and sophomores in cap and gown were followed by the 194 freshmen who have enrolled this year. The ranks opened to form the aisle through which President Aurelia Henry Reinhardt took her way to the platform. Dr. Reinhardt at the early morning program gave her formal address of greeting to the young women students.

Every dormitory is crowded to its utmost capacity, necessitating the residence of many faculty members outside the campus to permit accommodations to the new and old students. Instruction in all classes began today.

With the college year not yet begun, tryouts were held in the out-of-door theater on Saturday afternoon for places in the caste of "As You Like It," the play chosen for production on October 18. Mrs. Marian Stebbins, Mrs. Jessica Davis Nahl and Professor E. O. James were the judges. Rev. Harold E. B. Speight of Berkeley addressed the student body at vespers last night.

Professor Burgess Johnson, visiting lecturer in English, will lecture on Wednesday at 11:40 a. m. on "The Newspaper and News Writing." The public is invited to attend his lecture in Alumnae Hall before the members of the Mills Club on Thursday, when he will discuss "A New Profession for Women."

VALUATION PLAN MAY BE DELAYED

Postponement of the hearing asked by W. I. Brobeck, attorney for the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways, to proceed to evaluate the company's properties in view of the proposed resettlement franchise, will be asked by City Attorney H. L. Hagan when the case comes before the Railroad Commission Thursday. City Manager C. F. Hewes of Alameda will concur, he says.

"The request is possibly made at this time," said Hagan, "in order that the company may be able to inform the bankers' committee engaged in a refinancing plan that progress has been made toward a resettlement franchise, thus increasing the company's credit. We hold that the resettlement plan and the present financing plan must be kept separate issues, and, while we are not opposing refinancing, we believe that nothing should be done to permit the resettlement issue being used as a basis for inflating credit."

Furthermore, Hagan says, the hearing of the Eastbay cities' protest against increased hydrant rates by the water company comes up on that day and he desires to give this his personal attention.

The street car company asked that the hearing be held before Railroad Commissioner Devlin, "to get the engineers to work," according to Hagan. Some time ago the valuation was asked and delayed pending conferences that resulted in "fictitious" values, or allowances for "good will" and "value of a going concern" being expunged from the estimate of valuations. It was agreed, Hagan says, that no credits would be asked for by the company in fixing the railroad commission valuation. This valuation the cities on this side of the bay will endeavor to keep as low as possible, as, under the terms of the proposed resettlement franchise, the valuation proposed to be made will apply if at any time the cities decide to take over the lines under a municipal ownership plan.

Mayor Davie says that, regardless of the valuation, he will fight the partnership franchise plan by referendum. He favors a straight purchase of the lines by the municipalities and operation under public ownership.

T. H. Reed to Manage Drive For Health Center Funds

PROF. THOMAS H. REED

HEAVY BAIL SET IN ASSAULT CASE

A vigorous policy in dealing with all cases where attacks on little boys and girls are charged was today adopted by Police Judge Mortimer Smith, who ordered bail for Raymond A. Rapp, accused of attacking a 7-year-old girl, fixed at $5000.

The frequency of such cases, said Judge Smith, forced him to take drastic steps. He will pursue a thorough investigation to establish either complete innocence or guilt of the men arrested.

Rapp is held in the city prison in default of $5000 bail or $10,000 bonds.

LOSE TRAIL OF BANK BANDITS AT BENICIA

SAN JOSE, Sept. 8.—The arrest of "Shorty" Thornton and "Whitie" La Reeves, wanted for the robbery of the Santa Clara bank last Wednesday noon, is expected at any moment unless they succeed in eluding the officers who are now closing in on them. Sheriff Lyle has wired the officers between this city and Salt Lake to be on the watch for the men.

Deputies sent out by Sheriff Lyle trailed the two men still accompanied by the two women, to Benicia yesterday where it was learned they had purchased tickets to Salt Lake and taken the train. Sheriff Lyle immediately wired ahead of the train to have it searched, and also sent telegrams to a number of cities where it was thought the party might leave the train instead of continuing to the destination indicated by the tickets. Every peace officer, sheriff and police department in the states of Nevada, Utah, Montana and other states have received the circulars descriptive of the men.

Instead of going south from San Jose toward Los Angeles, as was believed at first, deputy sheriffs trailed the robbers yesterday from here to an apartment house at Twenty-fourth and Grove streets, Oakland. From there they went to San Francisco, where they were trailed to four or five different addresses, leaving that city by automobile. The deputies followed their trail with considerable difficulty to Martinez, then to Benicia, where the Salt Lake tickets were purchased. To cover their trail the party traveled by automobile and at frequent intervals changed machines in some manner.

NEW CRIME CHARGED.

STOCKTON, Cal., Sept. 8.—That "Swede" La Reeves and "Shorty" Thornton, said to be the perpetrators of the robbery of the Garden City bank at Santa Clara, were the ones who held up Hand's restaurant in Stockton at the point of a gun and rifled the cash register was the statement of Dave Stoner, cashier, and P. Fernandes, waiter, when shown their pictures. They stated that La Reeves wielded the gun while Thornton did the till duty. It is thought that the men made their getaway in an automobile.

By NELSON G. WELBURN

Fighting adverse climatic conditions the seventh annual Alameda city championship tournament slowly climbed into the second round at Washington Park courts yesterday with only one upset being registered in the defeat of A. W. Young in a three set match at the hands of Augustus Wilhelm by the scores of 6-3, 1-6, 6-4. Young's eccentricity in ground strokes and overhead execution largely contributed to his defeat. His run of four straight games in the third set prove futile as far as the ultimate result was concerned. Welburn three times singles champion, celebrated his return to the court after eighteen months' absence, by taking into camp in straight sets the great "dink" artist, Edwin Mastick Otis, by the scores of 8-6, 6-1. The first set ran into a deuce set owing to the many "outs" of both players. In the second set Welburn steadied and quickly tucked it away.

A. R. MacSwain's easy victory over W. Catton stamps him as one of the logical finalists of the present competition. His victory was practically attained without effort. He played the back court and neatly chopped his returns to the side lines. I. C. Steele, former city champion, encountered a tartar in A. F. Kohn. Koon forced Steele into a three set match with the third set being finally won by Steele by the score of 8-6. Ray Kearney, a veteran of the Alameda courts, went down in a heap before the skillful strokes of H. Lishman. Clovey La Croix overwhelmed Ovenberg in every department of the game and quickly ran two sets out to his favor to the tune of 6-1, 6-1. In a vacillating match Ned Johnson finally nosed out F. Fourchy by the scores of 6-0, 0-6, 6-3. The scores are as follows:

E. Ovenberg beat R. S. Banks, 7-5, 6-3; J. J. Coney beat E. E. Dupee by default; R. S. Banks beat S. Bray by default; A. Rattray beat L. W. Watson, 6-3, 6-3; E. C. Borton beat W. A. Forter by default; I. C. Steele beat Reeves, 6-2, 6-1.

FIRST ROUND, UPPER HALF

H. Lishman beat R. W. Kearney, 7-5, 6-3; C. Vis beat Mifume, 8-6, 9-7; J. G. H. Harper beat A. C. Agnew 7-5, 6-2; R. Vis beat W. Branschied, 6-3, 6-3; F. Neilson beat C. E. Fergus, 6-4, 6-1; C. La Croix beat E. Ovenberg, 6-1, 6-1; E. C. Borton beat A. Rattray, 6-0, 6-2; I. C. Steele beat A. F. Koon, 6-3, 4-6, 8-6.

FIRST ROUND, LOWER HALF

A. Wilhelm beat A. W. Young, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3; E. G. Cook beat J. Hollywood by default; N. Johnson beat F. Fourchy, 6-0, 0-6, 6-3; S. Keator beat J. J. Sheridan, 6-0, 6-2; A. R. MacSwain beat W. Catton, 6-1, 6-1; N. G. Welburn beat E. M. Otis, 8-6, 6-1.

Play in this tournament will be resumed at the Washington Park courts Tuesday morning. The process of elimination in yesterday's matches will bring together some of the best players in the men's doubles and ladies' singles will be inaugurated next Sunday morning in conjunction with the play in the men's singles.

Fighter Calls Her Names, Says Girl

Every time Madeline Stuckrap meets Henry Ortega, local prize fighter, on the street in Oakland she calls him names, Ortega testified on the stand in police court of Judge Mortimer Smith today.

Madeline makes the same charge against Ortega. Ortega is charged with using indecent language in a complaint sworn to by Miss Stuckrap, who cites an instance at Seventh and Pine streets, where she and Mary Chevers met Ortega.

A box of candy which was converted into rocks and dirt and finally delivered to the Stuckrap girl is to blame, according to Miss Stuckrap. She accuses Ortega of sending the candy to her through her nephew. Ortega says the nephew ate the candy and replaced it with rocks and dirt. The case was put over to next Monday.

Police Chief Lauds Conduct of Gobs

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—Chief of Police D. A. White sent a letter today to Admiral Hugh Rodman, commander of the Pacific fleet, praising the conduct of the sailors of the fleet during their stay here.

Chief White pointed out that there had not been one reported case of violence and sai dthat this record of good conduct was a splendid testimonial to the training and behavior of the American men-o'-warmen.

Chief White deprecated reports that there had been rioting participated in by sailors and others in the added that a slight disturbance had adde dthat a slight disturbance had been over-emphasized.

Bail in the sum of $150 was forfeited in police courts today by two women charged with vagrancy, one of whom was charged with registering falsely.

Blanch La Rue was to have appeared before Police Judge Samuels this morning on charges of registering falsely at a local rooming house, and vagrancy. She forfeited $25 bail.

Twenty-five dollars' bail was forfeited by Myrtle Hall, accused of false registration, in Police Judge Smith's court.

COLLINS FORTUNE GOES TO FAMILY

One of the first important wills filed under the recent community property act is that of the late George H. Collins, lumber magnate and former director of the Oakland Bank of Savings, filed today in the office of County Clerk Gross. The will specifies that all the property is the community interest of the deceased and his widow, and the will disposes of only one-half of the estate, estimated to total over $500,000. Collins died August 29 at 326 Vernon street. Out of the one-half interest the widow, Mrs. Augusta J. Collins, is bequeathed $100,000, and in addition she is made one of the residuary legatees.

Mrs. Pauline Han of Oakland and Mrs. Charlotte L. Ehmann of Oroville, two daughters, receive $25,000 each. Dorcas C. Higgins, a niece, of Quincey, Mass., receives $5000, and Betsy G. Higgins, a sister, of the same address, receives $2000. Bequests to other non-resident relatives amount to $40,000.

The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. each receive $1000 and the Congregational Board of Ministerial relief of New York receives a like sum. The remainder of the estate goes to the widow and the daughters.

The decedent was a prominent war worker and was identified with the activities of the Y. M. C. A. and the Congregational church.

BARZEE'S HEARING SET FOR THURSDAY

Official hearing by the board of education into the charges made by Charles J. Fites against Business Manager Lloyd Barzee of the school department will not be held until Thursday, despite Barzee's insistance that they be heard tonight. At the request of Fites that he be given until Thursday to appear before the board, he having been called to Fresno on business, the board will be asked tonight to lay over the issue. Barzee says that he will insist on action by Thursday at least.

"I am not worried about the charge, as it is too foolish to do anything but laugh at," said Barzee, "but I do want this man to be brought in and shown up. I can't afford to let any one get away with talk like this." Fites charges that Barzee has received $10 per machine on a school typewriter contract.

Fites says that he will positively appear Thursday before the board. "I have no reason for being afraid to face Barzee or any one else," he says, "and I will be there with bells."

SUB SURVIVOR HURT BY WINDOW

After making seven trips overseas on convoys of transport ships and experiencing hazards such as mines and submarine attacks in his three years' service in the U. S. Navy, Chief Boatswain's Mate R. A. Johnston of Oakland was unlucky enough to be "injured" three seconds before he received his discharge papers at Mare Island.

Johnston appeared at an office window at Mare Island Saturday. He was reaching into the window to get the discharge papers from an officer when the window slide slammed down on his fingers.

The sailor, suspecting the jinx was upon him as long as he remained in navy atmosphere, would not consent to have the injured finger treated at the Mare Island hospital. He was treated by an Oakland doctor.

GIRL, 20, GOES TO S. F., DISAPPEARS

Myrtle Zavitz, 20 years old, 823 Sixteenth street, left her home Saturday, telling her parents she was going to San Francisco to work for a calculating machine company. Since then the parents have had no word from the girl. O. T. Zavitz, the father, today reported to the police. He appealed to Corporal E. O. Steinbach at Central Station to have a search started on both sides of the bay for the missing girl.

The parents cannot account for the girl's disappearance, except that she might have been lured away. She was content with her home surroundings and was in a happy frame of mind when she left home Saturday morning.

Miss Zavitz wore an expensive wrist watch, an engagement ring with greet setting and a signet ring. She was dressed in black velvet dress, imitation fur cape, a velvet hat and wore black pumps and silk stockings.

Theatrical Stars to Lunch With Ad Men

Publicity and the theater will join hands Wednesday noon, when stars from the "Tea for Three" company entertain members of the Oakland Ad club at their weekly luncheon in Hotel Oakland. Norman Hackett will talk to the luncheers on "Unique Advertising Experiences of a Theatrical Man," covering a long list of personal occurrences, when publicity and the dramatic muse merged in either comical or serious fashions.

Miss Mildred Evans, another member of the company, will sing. She was a member of the Theatrical League Dramatic companies, sent to France by James Forbes and Winthrop Ames, and entertained the soldiers there during the war. Harry Kendall, third star in the comedy, will also perform. Kendall recently returned from service with the British army.

Won't Give Self Up; Court Has Patinece

George Washington, negro, won't give himself up and the police can't locate him since he escaped from the county hospital to press a charge of burglary.

Police Judge Mortimer Smith has several times continued the case with the expectatio nthat Washington would be found. But George is like the pig at the country fair—very elusive.

CACKLING HEN GIVES BURGLAR ALARM IN VAIN

"Cut, cut, cut, ca-dock-it!"

This sound came from P. Schmidt's chicken coop at 2343 Ransome street, early this morning.

"Ah, my faithful 'biddies' are at work early," said the proud owner. "I'll have that egg for breakfast," said the chicken fancier, as he dozed again.

Instead of a fresh egg, Schmidt found five blooded chickens, valued at $15, had mysteriously disappeared.

The police have clews.

TOKYO, Friday, Sept. 5.—(By Associated Press)—Six thousand five hundred arsenal) operatives) have struck, demanding wage increases. Troops have been called out to guard arsenals throughout the country.

WHOLESALE PRISON DELIVERY PLANNED

FONTIAC, Ill., Sept. 8.—Arrests are expected today of several persons said to be implicated in an attempt at wholesale jail delivery at the Illinois state reformatory Sunday, in the frustration of which Charles Kruger, a guard, and John Kelly, an inmate, were killed and several guards and inmates injured three probably fatally.

Several guns had been smuggled into the prison and when guards found two of the inmates sawing at their bars, the prisoners opened fire on them.

General rioting followed, in which the two men were killed. None of the inmates escaped.

The Waterfront

With 130,000 codfish the schooner Glendale arrived yesterday from Bering, the schooner Galilee, which brought the schooner Galilee, which brought 143,000 fish, but the vessels were several thousand short of last season. The Galilee met with misfortune on this voyage, as her skipper, Captain Campbell, died while bound for the fishing grounds and the craft was taken to Unalaska, where the crew buried his remains. Captain Bond was appointed master.

After reaching the fishing grounds one of the fishermen had to be taken ashore for an operation, the vessel losing several days of fishing, just as the fishing was at its best. Then two of the fishermen, becoming discouraged, deserted the vessel in their dories and have not been heard from since. The vessel being short of men had a great deal to do with the small catch she brought to port. Only a few more codfishing craft are now out and they are expected home any day. They also have small catches. Two square riggers were sighted off the Golden Gate this morning and although their names could not be made out, it is certain that they are vessels from Alaska with salmon.

The ship Annie M. Reid has arrived from Honolulu in ballast, after an absence of six months from this port, when she sailed from here for Australia. She shipped 25 cadets, several of them residents of Alameda county, and they made their first sea voyage. All of them say Captain Durkee made good, as the craft has been in all kinds of weather since leaving here.

Two vessels were reported at an off-shore port with troubles. The motor schooner Laura Whalen arrived at Papeete in distress, while en route from Sydney, Australia, for Vancouver, B. C., and the steamer Melville Dollar which sailed from Vancouver for Hongkong, put into Shanchai with her steam pipe broken. Both craft are owned at this port. Their damage is not considered serious by their owners.

Steamer Senator arrived here this morning from Seattle with 125 Alaska fishermen. These men ship from here each year and join their craft at Seattle. The men are glad to get back to this city where they all have families.

The Alaska fishing craft that has been arriving during the past week has not alone filled the Oakland water front with men, but Chinatown received her share, as over 600 Chinese returned home from the Alaska canneries. The Chinese sign with a guarantee of a certain number of cases of salmon, and if the canneries do not put up the amount, the Chinese receive the amount signed for and a certain amount for all over their contract. Thus they are sure of a good season's work and have earned more money this year than the white men who caught the fish the Chinese put up.

Captain Thomas Duggan and his mate, Mike Green, arrived at their home in Oakland today after a successful voyage from Alaska. Duggan and Green have been pals for many years on the Atlantic coast and came out to the Pacific coast some years ago. Neither would ship unless they both sailed on the same craft. When on a strange craft or among persons who are not well acquainted with them, many make a mistake by calling Tom, Mike, and Mike, Tom. Both are well liked among the mariners of this port. Since their arrival on the Pacific coast they have always made their homes in Oakland when ashore.

Changes of masters registered in the U. S. Custom House:

Captain O. Johnson, steamer Horace Baxter; Captain C. J. Carlson, steamer Daisy; Captain Joseph Fuchs, steamer La Merced; Captain H. Anderson, steamer Devolente.

Y.W.C.A. to Resume Play Parties
Free Lecture Course Is Offered

The Wednesday play parties of the Y. W. C. A., which were so popular with girls during the summer, are to be resumed next Wednesday night. These parties offer opportunities for girls to become acquainted with each other while they enjoy games, and other recreation. They are informal, and the "Y" extends the widest of welcomes. Miss Margaret Pierson, recreation secretary, is in charge.

Responsive to the rapidly growing demand for community recreation work, the Young Women's Christian association has organized a class for volunteer recreation leaders, which will meet for the first time at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, in the recreation room at 1515 Webster street.

The course will consist of eight lectures, to be given by men and women prominent in recreation work about the bay, and its scope will be so inclusive that it will possess general interest as well as specific training and help for prospective recreation leaders. Among the topics discussed will be "Adult Recreation, the Needs of the Industrial Worker, Recreation for the Adolescent Girl, Party Planning, Holiday Parties, the Community Drama and Pageants, Community Singing, etc."

LECTURE COURSE FREE.

In offering this course which is free, the "Y" would call attention to the new situation brought about partly by the entrance of the modern girl into business life, with its subsequent lessening of home ties and recreations and also to the demands made on the young business girl by the eight-hour law prevalent in California and many other States. The lessening of the home ties and life means that the girl must find wholesome, happy recreation in groups of other girls. The eight-hour law means that the girl must work while she works, also demands that she plays while she plays. Strenuous recreation, which is true recreation, is needed to offset the strenuous work crowded into the eight hour day. The new community recreations, in their diverse forms, are in part a reaction from commercialized recreations, and the demand for these able to lead in them is developing with a rapidity astonishing to one not familiar with the situation and its underlying needs and psychology.

The course for leaders offered by the "Y" has been arranged by Miss Margaret Pierson, the newly acquired recreation secretary. Miss Pierson, who is young and enthusiastic, has had the best of eastern training, being a recent Wellesley graduate. She also took a special course in recreation work in New York city.

SUBJECTS OF LECTURES.

The course consists of the following lectures:

Sept. 8: "Adult Recreation of Today and the Many Forms it May Take"—Jay Nash, of the City Recreation Department, followed by games without apparatus, in which all attending will take part.

Sept. 15: "Play and the Spirit of Play in Recreation," by Mrs. Mary Stehley Close, Recreation Director at the San Francisco Y. W. C. A., followed by musical games.

Sept. 22: "The Industrial Worker and His or Her Need of Recreation—the forms wanted;" Miss Anne Guthrie, Industrial Secretary for Pacific Coast Field Y. W. C. A., followed by an hour on story telling.

Sept. 29: "Commercialized Amusements and the Large Place They Occupy in the Life of the Industrial Community;" Miss Ruth M. Findlay, General Supervisor of Girls' Activities of the City Recreation Department, followed by a practical demonstration of noon-time recreation in factories.

Oct. 6: "The Adolescent Girl and Recreation;" followed by an hour of stunts, charades, scenarios, pantomimes, etc.; Miss Hazel Green, Girls' Work Secretary of Oakland, Y. W. C. A.

Oct. 13: "Dramatics, Community Drama, Pageants and Community Singing," (Speaker not yet engaged.) An hour of community singing follows, led by Roy D. McCarthy, War Camp Community Song Leader of Oakland.

Oct. 20: "Planning a Party; Parties for Different Holidays; The Program;" Miss Margaret Pierson.

Oct. 27: A survey of the recreational facilities of Oakland and visit to them in groups.

THE FAMILY AMUSEMENT RESORT

"Salvation in Christ Jesus" Sunday Topic

Rev. Frank M. Silesley spoke last evening at the First Presbyterian church on "The Sinister Challenge of the New Trench Religion." He said:

"The war has been productive of great inspirations, but it has also produced some perils. One of these perils is the new trench religion. The new trench religion serves notice upon the church that the church must be social, overlooking the fact that every up to date church today is performing a social ministry and is trying to interpret social Christianity. It is true that the brave boys made heroic sacrifices. And we are told that when they made these sacrifices that this was sufficient to crown their military valor by eternal salvation. It was called the supreme sacrifice. An atonement was supposed to be made by this act for personal sins.

"But that is not the teaching of Christianity. The only supreme sacrifice was made by Jesus for the sins of the world and the only way of salvation is by faith in Him. The new trench religion as to moral ideals glorifies courage and unselfishness and modest... but justifies certain habits... Constantly bad, while New Testament Christianity offers the moral code and example of Christ. And the new trench religion also insists upon a new doctrine concerning hell and immortality. We are told that whatever may have been the life of a person, if he commits one noble act in his life that is sufficient to insure him immortality. We are told that the man who has gone through great suffering for righteous ideals will in eternity escape all the terrors of retribution. But Christianity teaches that the man only sure of immortality who believes in the saving truth of Jesus Christ.

"God will reward every man's righteous acts, but he does not authorize a new plan of salvation that finds its only support in the experiences of a passing war. There is salvation through faith in Christ Jesus, who is the same yesterday, today and forever, and there is no other way."

A THEME OF INTEREST.

Rev. E. C. Phillips of the Centennial Presbyterian church spoke yesterday morning on "Loyalty in Religion."

The pastor presented a study of the sixteenth chapter of Genesis in his sermon. It is in this chapter that the story of how a slave girl once found God is told.

"Many people believe spiritual things are all unreal," he remarked. "They can find no satisfaction in prayer or worship."

THE SPIRITUAL FOES.

"The Pride of Preparedness" was the evening theme of Rev. Milton C. Lutz of the United Brethren church yesterday. "The feeling of security is one which does Americans should justly snare," he said. "We dare not lose sight of another line of defense for other foes. They will steal past all fortifications and capture the citadel of the human heart. They will destroy character and individual sovereignty. We must prepare against our spiritual foes as well as the national."

VITAL QUESTION OF TODAY.

In the evening service at the First Baptist church Dr. William Keeney Towner discussed the question of "Matrimony as an Art, a Science or a Lottery." In view of the crusade against the divorce evil Dr. Towner's remarks were of vital interest. His morning theme was "Can You Remember Him?"

"THE HEAD OF THE BODY"

Rev. H. A. Van Winkle of the First Christian Church, Oakland, chose his scripture for the morning topic from 1st Corinthians, XII chapter, 12th verse: "For as the body is one and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body; so also is Christ."

"The body suggests team work," said Dr. Van Winkle. "Team work should be shown in the church work as well as elsewhere. They will be victorious by the aid of a great preacher, great hymns and by recognizing Christ as its head.

"Christ is the one and only head of the church. A such he must direct the movements of the church and the church must recognize his authority. The whole world," he said, "is starving for Christ and it is our duty to show them how to find Christ. You are a part of the body and should not do anything that would in any way hinder the movements of the whole body."

At the close of the sermon there were seven new members added to the church roll.

THEME OF INTEREST.

"The Folly of Indecision" was the morning theme of Rev. Harold Govette of the Peters' Memorial Church.

"There is as much difference between the kingdom of Christ and the things of this world as there is between light and darkness," he remarked. "Naturally there is spiritual darkness and only persons enlightened when such is changed to spiritual knowledge of Christ."

"In this world there are various kinds of infidels. One says I have no God at all, these who doubt deeds as their Christ and those who are in the church," he said.

"An infidel should not claim to be a teacher of Christ because he knows nothing about Christ."

ETHICS KEEP PASTORS ON JOB, SAYS RECTOR.

Were it not for the ethics of the action ministers might be led to strike for higher pay, was the significant statement which Rev. Francis Van Horn launched at a large congregation in the First Congregational church last night. "Preachers are not striking," he declared, "but they might as well be. The effect on the churches is the same."

"The situation is acute, when it comes to filling and keeping filled the pulpits," explained the Congregationalist minister. "The older men are leaving the ministry to go into welfare and social service work, which offers the same opportunities for their training but better remuneration. The younger men are not entering the theological seminaries. The history of the last ten years has been alarming. The prospect in the coming ten years is discouraging," he maintained.

Discussing a rumored strike in the faculty of the University of California, the speaker said: "If there should be such an occurrence it would be impossible for the university to replace the men and women. But if the professors are underpaid the preachers are of all professions the poorest paid. The church will not be able to replace the men who leave when these older men who still remain have passed away."

According to Rev. Van Horn the new phases of welfare work offer a living wage besides an independence which a minister does not enjoy, a definite program and the backing of an organization. He said:

"Our boast is that our young men have initiative. The church must give them a free and big chance to use that initiative. It must give the preacher not only a salary sufficient for his needs and for the family it wants him to have, but it must give him equipment and cooperation and practical as well as moral support.

"The church must have wide vision, it must do a big work—so great that every worker will be made broad and find respect for the task he does and the institution he represents."

According to the best available statistics while the average minister's salary is in the neighborhood of $800 annually, ministers about the bay receive an average salary of $1200.

Church Guild to Hold Food Sale

The Ladies' Guild of St. Philip's church (Episcopal) is planning a Food Sale to be held Thursday in the White Store, at Fruitvale avenue and Foothill Boulevard. Beginning at 1 o'clock the sale will continue just so long as there is any food to sell. Layer cakes, fancy cookies, meat pies, salads, staple foods and sweet pastries will all be offered at the regular market price. The proceeds will be used to pay for needed improvements on the church property at Nicol avenue and Capp street in Fruitvale.

Tech High to Teach Magazine Writing

In order to train young men and young women in the art of writing for magazines, the class in journalism in the evening Technical high school will be enlarged in scope, the course to include critical magazine writing.

Miss Eleanor Root, instructor of journalism in the school, will have charge of the new course, standard and current magazine literature to be used as models. Miss Root herself is a magazine article writer, her last article in the September Travel on "Understanding the Scotch" having received wide attention.

Nazimova In "The Brat" Superlative

Nazimova alone as the attraction would be sufficient to fill the American theater this week. When the combination of this premiere actress and a great stage success as the vehicle is offered there is an unusual temptation to theatergoers. Add to this the fact that an Oakland girl wrote the play, acted in it and grew famous and wealthy because of it, and few lovers of the drama here will be willing to let the week slip by without seeing it.

Nazimova in "The Brat" will prove a revelation and a treat to those who have seen Maude Fulton as the fascinating waif. It is in reality a new "Brat." Charles Bryant's adaptation, in collaboration with Nazimova and Miss Fulton, is more than a working over of scenes to fit the exigencies of screen production. He has happily avoided the stereotyped scenario pitfalls that beset the continuity writers so often when they "work over" a stage success for the screen. The changes are many, but the cinema version is stronger with them. This is said without the inference that "The Brat" of the stage could make use of the changes. It could not.

A REVEL OF CONTRASTS.

Nazimova, pre-eminent artist of the spoken and silent drama, superlative in her genius, never approached in versatility, makes "The Brat" of the screen the revel of contrasts, of frolic and emotion that places it first among recent offerings of the studios. In contrast with the usual registering by the facial features alone, Nazimova delights her audiences with her expressive attitudes, her speaking body, from toes to finger tips. A thousand thoughts and feelings in pantomime breathe from her figure that find no expression anywhere else in moving pictures.

Her support is capable. Charles Bryant is excellent as the author who, in the screen version, is the center of the romance that helped make "The Brat" popular when Edmund Lowe moved great audiences in the role of the junior brother. Others of a capable company are Darrell Foss as Stephen Forrester, Bonnie Hill as Angela, Frank Currier as the bishop, Amy Veness as Mrs. Forrester, Millie Davenport as the Brat's aunt Henry Kolker as the man about town and Ethelbert Knott as the butler.

To any who have seen "The Brat," from the time that Oliver Morosco first introduced it in Los Angeles to its long runs in the Fulton in Oakland, the freshness of the film metamorphosis will appeal. The Brat who loses her "job" in the chorus and is taken into the home of McMillan Forrester is the same Brat with the "finish" of the highest type motion picture genius added. There is much of comedy as well as emotion, culminating in the "Why, he's your brother, ain't he?" query from Nazimova that moves the audience to tears.

LIKE MAUDE FULTON.

One of Nazimova's achievements in the piece is the duplication of the mannerisms of Maude Fulton—and she greatly resembles the talented author and actress.

"The American theater is to be congratulated for bringing to Oakland this rare bit of the highest picture accomplishment of years.

The other feature is "Almost a Husband," with Will Rogers in the lead part. The scenario is adapted from Opie Read's "Old Ebenezer," and would be a feature in itself were it not for the supreme art of the Russian actress, who overshadows all else in filmdom. In this latter feature Herbert Standing has a prominent part, and to watch this veteran actor is always a joy to film lovers. —W. D. H.

"WAGON TRACKS"
With Bill Hart
AT THE KINEMA

It happened in the Wooly West
When Indian tribes went forth to slay
And men were at their fighting best
Upon the trail to Santa Fe.

"Revenge!" Bill cries. (We hold our breath).
He's mad, and wants to use his gat—
His brother's just been shot to death—
A gambler's done it—ugly rat!

The gamester's sister takes the blame
But Bill, the scout, finds out the truth
And, though he loves the winsome dame,

"RIDERS OF VENGEANCE" With Harry Carey
AT THE BROADWAY

O, here's a yarn of frontier days
When men rode, shot, loved, hated rough;
When, 'till you'd won six shooting frays,
They didn't even call you "tough."

Two hard-boiled gents who longed to kill
Each other with lead bullets, hot,
Postponed the duel when, o'er the hill
Apaches came—a howling lot!

These enemies now make their peace
And turn upon the Indian bunch;
The notches on their guns increase—
They kill a hundred Reds ere lunch.

"THE HOODLUM"
With Mary Pickford
AT THE T. & D.

Mary, Mary, quite contrary,
Is a female roughneck, jolly—
One-half imp and one-half fairy
Always planning harmless folly.

But at times she makes us teary
When her eyes fill up with sadness;
All the world seems dark and dreary
'Till she finds again her gladness.

So, at last, we leave her happy—
As a lady she'll prove clever—
Wedded to a handsome chattie
Who will cherish her forever.

"A DAUGHTER OF THE WOLF" With Elliott Dexter
AT THE FRANKLIN

The daughter of a smuggler king
Is smitten with a plain-clothes man;
This lad braves death and everything
To land the robbers in the can.

These fur thieves hate him with a hate
That augurs danger, blood and such,
They trail him early—track him late,
But do they get him, huh? Not much!

At last he's cornered—gone is hope!
But, hah! the girl is on the job
And does she fail him? Never—nope!
She even helps him jail the mob.

Elevator Girl Is Worth Seeing
Big Orpheum Bill Wins Praise

It's a good thing the elevator Irene Martin is running this season didn't go any further than the Orpheum. If she'd gone a floor higher or lower than the one she got off at there's no telling what might have happened. Anyway, those assembled there would have missed something—something very much to their liking.

Irene, as aforesaid, runs the elevator at the Orpheum this week; she's the elevator girl taking the place of the boy who went to war, and now nobly holding her job, even though he may be back. Comes one "Skeet" Gallagher, nimble dancer and ditto comedian, and demands the job. Then—well, what develops then is worth seeing. And, incidentally, so is Miss Martin. And Gallagher's dancing is a revelation. Of such stuff are Orpheum headliners made. He proves himself one of 'em.

Gallagher and Martin head a particular artistic bill at the Orpheum this week. It is artistic from the studied comedy of the "Two Southern Gentlemen" Lloyd and Christie, who in soft Southern accent offer a side-splitting line of comedities to Aresoni and Washburn, who have given vaudeville something new in song. Then, to finish with, there's the "Thirteenth Chair."

Enrico Aresoni is a big dramatic tenor whose songs fairly brought down the house yesterday. With a mellow voice that is "as big as all outdoors," he sings with consummate skill, and adapts even classical music to vaudeville needs. Lozette Washburn, who sings with him, is beautiful. So is the gown.

Estelle De Snon, with Eula Howard Nunan at the piano, offers a particularly pleasing series of songs. She is a contralto of immense range and power. Mrs. Nunan's variations on the "Blue Danube Waltz" were an attractive interpolation. Mendell and Gray offer a "jazz" act of the cabaret type, light and frivolous, and very attractive. The man plays a violin beautifully, especially in his "jazz" numbers.

"The Thirteenth Chair," as a film, far outstrips the play. Of course, it is staged more lavishly as a film than it could have been as a play, and the remarkable "cutbacks" and "fade outs" effects that add so much to its mystery and gripping interest, were of course not possible on the limited stage. It was one of those plays meant for films. Based on occultism and the power of human mind, it is a tale of mysterious murder, and detection by mental science. The film is of special interest to those who believe in the power of the mind. But, whether one does or not, it's a very remarkable film.—C. A. L.

ROBIN BOOKED FOR IDORA PARK TOMORROW.

Oaklanders will be able to go back ten decades and see the same sort of an entertainment that the early Californians gave when the state was admitted to the Union under arrangements which have been completed by Manager Bert L. York for a free Wild West Rodeo to take place at Idora Park on Admission day.

"The early Californians celebrated the admission of the state to the Union with a Rodeo in which the most daring riders of the day participated," explained York yesterday. "I have arranged with the leading cowboys of today to stage just the same sort of a show and I think that it will prove a novelty in the way of an Admission Day entertainment."

The riders secured for the Rodeo are Home Snow of Montana, Ned Winegar and Pete Ketchinger, stars of the recent Livermore Rodeo, Earl Stull of Pendleton, Oregon, Elmar Lorans of Stockton, Pete Kemp of Oklahoma and Ty Stoker of the 101 ranch. A flock of assistants will also appear in the show.

The performances will be given at 2:30 in the afternoon and 8:30 in the evening. They will take place in the Stadium at Idora and will be free to the public. The five thousand seats used for the spectators at the recent Fleet Day fights will be left in place for the use of the spectators and will go to the first arrivals.

WEST AND BALL DIVIDE HONORS AT PANTAGES.

Ty Foster Ball and Ford West go professional honors at Pantages this week. No finer bit of character acting has been seen than that done by Mr. Ball as a Grand Army veteran returning home from a reunion. Every gesture, every accent is absolutely naturalness itself. For years and years Mr. Ball has been playing this part in the best of vaudeville houses, and rightly he should, for it is a character classic that will live. It has nature behind it and that is the test of any character portrayal. Ford West as a New York policeman gives Mr. Ball excellent support and makes a fitting foil to the old fellow's humor.

Richard the Great is a monk who has learned to do many things that gives his monk a human twist rather than a Simian angle. He does difficult tricks, eats a meal, smokes a cigarette all in a way that will make the little folks glad.

"Hello People, Hello," is a hodge-podge of vaudeville giving Adelo Jason and Al Prince, with their sustaining chorus a chance to show good clothes and decorative scenery. Brosius and Brown close the show well with a lively comedy cycling act. Ward and Howard, a fine looking couple, give a spirited exhibition of dancing—both ball room and novelty dances. Ward and Howard, a young man and maid, offer a line of comedy cross-fire talk interspersed with title song successes. A Universal News Weekly and a Harold Lloyd and Bebe Daniels comedy completes an entertaining program of vaudeville as one could wish.

Nana Bryant Charms in Kitchen Role

Ruth Chatterton has been so intimately associated with the Chatterton-Miller "Come Out of the Kitchen" play that the name of the piece has become, in the reviewer's mind, "Ruth, Come Out of the Kitchen." But that misconception was entirely dissipated after witnessing Nana Bryant's splendid interpretation of the principal role in Oakland's premier production of the piece yesterday afternoon at the Fulton playhouse. Now the name of the play is "Come Out of the Kitchen, Nana."

The play is a very appropriate vehicle for Miss Bryant's return after vacation, because it gives her the greatest opportunity. When she entered the hand clapping continued pretty nearly as long as the cheers at the Bull Moose convention when Teddie came in. The tears came to the eyes of the little actress, and they weren't make-believe tears at all. They came just as readily during the play whenever occasion arose, indicating that the quality of sympathy must dominate her entirely.

But in the next instant she would be flirting desperately with some of the male spectators to see whether it come out of the kitchen, or a bit of a song would be lifting upon her tongue. The fascinating thing about the show is that we have the rare privilege of seeing Nana Bryant prepare and serve a dinner. There was no doubt about the flavors that came out of her hot stove. We saw her dress a chicken, and make a pudding, and then we saw her serve it, and it was piping hot and the hungry audience felt like the kids used to feel when they had to wait till the second table. The dinner so prepared in the second act and served during the third and not for an instant did she so forget her Irish brogue, and it is splendid brogue. Once in a while for sport she would change from Irish to Southern darkey. There appears to be no end to her vernacular attainments.

Except for the role of Jane Ellen, there is not a great deal to the play. Mrs. Falkner and Solon Tucker are two persons so utterly disagreeable as to almost make the play unbelieving. Emilie Melville and Frank K. Wallace, in the parts, sacrificed themselves for the sake of realism. Frank Darien, Sam A. Burton and Lea Penman, as the brothers and sisters of Jane Ellen, are, without exception, excellent in the characters of servants, assumed to win the big rent money. Helen Auditfred is a beautiful Cora Faulkner, and Jerome Sheldon as her ardent wooer is quite sufficiently ardent. John Ivan has a thankless role as the agent of the four youngsters. He does the best he can for them and then in the matter of his love and devotion to the girl, loses out entirely.

As the rich Yankee who leases the house and proves to be the heaven sent blessing to the Dame family, Paul Harvey is all that on could be. It is hardly possible to imagine how Henry Miller could do the part any better. But at that it is more or less a silly part, made for entertainment purposes only.—J. D.

"TEA FOR THREE" BILLY COMEDY AT YE LIBERTY.

This evening Selwyn & Company will offer "Tea for Three," the brilliant comedy by Roi Cooper Megrue, at Ye Liberty Playhouse, and Oaklanders will have their first chance to see the attraction recently presented at the Curran theater in San Francisco, where it came directly from an engagement of more than a year at Maxine Elliott's theater, New York.

In his latest work Roi Cooper Megrue, who has to his credit such successes as "It Pays to Advertise," "Seven Chances," "Under Cover" and "Where Poppies Bloom," has combined all the charm, the scintillating wit, the dramatic interest and the hint of romance and pathos distributed in his former writings. Suffice it to say that hereafter he will be known as the man who wrote "Tea for Three."

Three acts and a prologue tell the story of the triangular friendship of a woman and two men, which totters precariously near the brink of disruption at times but, guided by the hands of loyalty, clean mindedness and humor, comes through to a happily established permanency.

Norman Hackett, an actor of established prestige who was last seen here in the stellar role of Eugene Walter's "The Knife," heads the cast and is capably supported by Harry Kendall as the husband, Mildred Evans as the wife and Miss Elise Wenger and S. Sydney Cloe in the roles of the servants.

"Tea for Three" will continue for the week at Ye Liberty with a special matinee on Admission day, tomorrow, and regular matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

SHIPMENTS VIA CANAL ADVOCATED

Re-establishment of regular service through the Panama Canal, with consequent lower rates, is sought in a movement begun by the California Manufacturers' Association, with headquarters in Oakland.

Questionnaires to 1000 of the leading manufacturers of the Pacific Coast have been sent out. They are asked to supply information immediately regarding the tonnage annually received and sent when the service was in effect.

It is urged by the association that with canal service restored, rail rates on raw materials will be lower.

The letter sent to all members by Frederick Boegle, secretary, follows:

"Upon the opening of the Panama Canal, regular steamer service between Atlantic and Pacific ports was established. This service, as you remember, was interrupted by slides, and has not since been regularly resumed. The maintenance of lower transcontinental rates to Pacific Coast ports was subsequently protested vigorously by shippers at interior points.

"As a result of these protests, the Interstate Commerce Commission ordered a discontinuance of lower rates to the coast, effective August 15, 1917.

"This association intends to make a strong appeal for the re-establishment of service through the canal. The availability of ships heretofore used for war purposes and their assignment to companies who will maintain an adequate service to the Atlantic and Pacific Coast ports should make a resumption of such service an easy matter.

"Obviously this service will be cheaper, and will tend to reduce rail rates on raw material."

CANOE TIPS; TWO SAVED BY FERRY

Dumped into the bay when their canoe capsized in a sudden gust of wind, R. J. Leidman, postoffice clerk of 1432 West street, and E. G. Kirsch of Los Angeles are recovering today from the effects of a two-hour battle for life in the water. They were located after Leidman, too fatigued to swim farther, was seen from the ferry boat San Pedro, while floating, half drowned. He was taken across the bay and sent to the Harbor Emergency hospital. Kirsch continued to cling to the bottom of the overturned boat. The ferry boat Encinal picked him up, landing him in Alameda where he was given first aid.

The two had gone out yesterday in the canoe in bathing suits from an Alameda beach, and had reached a point near the ferry courses when the boat upset. Leidman decided to attempt to swim to the Santa Fe pier, but was unable to hold out against the current and was almost helpless when rescued.

After being restored, Kirsch proceeded to the beach, obtained Leidman's clothes, and took them to San Francisco. Both men are practically recovered today. Leidman was chilled and suffering from shock when taken to the hospital.

Carnation
For the Children

Carnation is a pure, healthful drink for children because it is only fresh, sweet cows' milk with part of the water in the milk evaporated. It is sealed in the containers and sterilized—no impurities can possibly reach it.

To prepare Carnation for drinking, it should be diluted with pure water to the consistency of ordinary milk. Equal parts of Carnation and water make a rich, wholesome drink. If you prefer it not so rich, use two parts Carnation to three parts water.

All children should have a quart of milk a day.

AUNT ELSIE'S KIDDIE KORNER

Did you ever stop to think what a strange, topsy-turvey world we would have if all the pouty, greedy cross wishes that you make came true? Goodness! I just guess you would want to lock your wisher up and THROW AWAY THE KEY! Here's a little girl who got her wish—and O! my! how much she wished she hadn't wished at all!

GENEVIEVE FRANCES KENNEDY

Once upon a time there lived a little girl named Ruth, who was given everything she asked for by her rich parents, and so was VERY much spoiled. One night as she was going to bed she suddenly spied a beautiful star in the sky and at once decided that she MUST have it. O! what a fuss she made—so to satisfy her, her nurse gave her a golden paper star. For a while Ruth was happy, but soon she saw that the real star hung in the sky, and then she was more angry than ever. As she was sobbing, suddenly a moonbeam danced down her bed and turned into a wee elf, who said: "Come Ruth, come with me. I know that you want that beautiful star, and it has heard your wish. I am its servant, and it has sent me down to tell you that you may have it." Before she could answer the room was flooded with moonbeams, dancing about, and in a second a wonderful silver ladder was reaching through the air into the sky. Up the ladder the elf lead the way, with Ruth following, until they came to the star. "Take it!" said the elf, and Ruth took the star. "Climb down!" said he, and she started to climb, holding the star ever so carefully, which was needless, because the star seemed to stick to her hands. When she came to her room she decided to put the star in the cupboard. But strange to say, the star would not come off her hands and O! how it began to burn. Hotter and hotter grew the fire until she screamed: "Nurse! Nurse! come and take the star off my hands!" And as she screamed she awoke, for she had dreamed it all. There she was in her own bed with the paper star in her hands. And you may be sure that after that she was more careful about what she wished.

GENEVIEVE FRANCES KENNEDY, 12 yrs., 1417 Twentieth Ave., Oakland.

GEORGE LECKNER

Dear Aunt Elsie—

I think our stories are just fine. I like the "Three Tiny Tramps" the best. I forgot all about the animal contest. Are you going to have another? I am making a newspaper called the BROADWAY ENQUIRE. I write all sorts of things.

GEORGE LECKNER, 9 yrs., 1178 Broadway, Alameda.

Indeed we are going to have more contests, little chum. Heaps of 'em. And I think it's just DANDY about that newspaper of yours. Send us some of your stories.

EMILY HELEN LECKNER

Dear Aunt Elsie—

Here are some geographical puzzles for the kiddies:

1. What hill in California is a magical?

2. What mountains in southern California are good to eat?

3. What peak in California is an article used in sewing?

4. What peak in northern California is a bird?

5. What city in France is a girl's name?

I'm so glad that school is going to open. I like the country better than the city. I used to live in Tulare—it gets very hot there in the summer. I wish I could go up in an aeroplane—don't you? I was born in San Louis Potosi, Mexico. The reason I thought of it was because I saw Claude Putty's letter from Canancs, Mexico. Mama and father speak Spanish very fluently. Mama was born, raised and married down there. I love books and stories. I just got a new book, called "A Natural History for Young People." It is all about animals, birds and fishes. With thousands of loves and kisses, EMILY HELEN LECKNER, 1178 Broadway, Alameda.

I think that's just a WONDERFUL letter from Emily. It's exactly the kind of a letter that I LOVE to get from my kiddies, because it tells me all about herself. I hope you write LOTS and HUNDREDS more for us, darling. Did you write to Claude? I want many of my kiddies to, so that our little Mexican chum won't be lonesome. And aren't those puzzles GREAT? I wish that more of you would make up puzzles like that. NO, darling, your Aunt Elsie DOESN'T want to go up in an aeroplane. She would HOLLER from the time she left the ground until the time she bumped down again. So now I suppose you are giggling at her. The answers to Emily's puzzles are hidden somewhere else.

WHO LOVES PEANUT BRITTLE?

EDA ALLEN tells us how to make it. Goodness, I can hardly make my little old typewriter tell about it, because it WANTS TO LICK THE PRINT EVERY TIME IT THINKS OF PEANUT BRITTLE.

PEANUT BRITTLE.

Mix 3 cups of sugar with 1 scant cup of boiling water and ¼ teaspoon soda. Let it melt over a slow fire. Cook gently without stirring until a little dropped in cold water hardens quickly. Add 1 cup of roasted, shelled and skinned peanuts, with as little use of the spoon as possible. Turn this mixture into buttered pans and cut hot. The brittleness of the candy depends upon the scant use of the spoon. It is very simple—try it.

And here's another she gave us:

EDA'S PLAIN CARAMELS.

2 cups white sugar, 2-3 cup sweet milk, 1-3 cup melted butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla or lemon. Cook until it turns a light brown—about 20 or 25 minutes. Pour into buttered tins and when partly cooled mark off into squares.

EDA ALLEN, 9 yrs., 2529 Dwight Way, Berkeley.

Eda asks me to show her how to make a doll's apron and dust cap—so as reward for her SWEET letter I am going to give her the pattern here today and you all can share it. For of course dolly must work those days—dollies that don't are slackers aren't they?

PUZZLE CORNER.

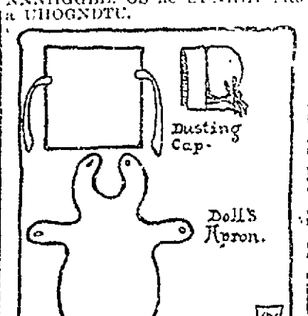
Here's a funny new kind of a puzzle—a patchwork word. Take the stated number of letters out of each of these words and make a word that is FAMOUS all over the world, and that all love. One letter from fat, two letters from met, three letters from rich, and one letter from bat.

Here's another of the same kind. This patchwork spells the name of a famous river. One letter from is, two letters from act, three letters from tram, two letters from ten, two letters from two.

I wonder if my kiddies can make up some puzzles like that. They are great fun. Be sure and choose easy words.

Here's a word jumble for my TINY TIDDLEDYWINKS:

Once upon a MTIE there was a LMLAS CYPPP who began to EHSAC his IALT. He DCHSAE and SDHECA it until he forgot which was his DEN and which was his, NNNIGGBE. OS he UDNERT into a UHOGNDTU.



SOMETHING TO MAKE.

The drawing shows how the apron and cap are made. You can make some for yourself just like dolly's only cut them larger. Cut them from paper first and fit them to your doll. The apron is cut in one piece and the edges are bound in some pretty contrasting color. The cap is a plain square with little strings to tie sewed on it. To use fold back the front one-third of the way and tie the strings in back to fit the neck size. The strings are put on one-third of the way on the goods. You can make a darling little bed cap for mother by making this square of net, edging it with lace, putting on pretty ribbons instead of strings, and sewing two tiny tassels to the back points.

PUZZLE ANSWERS.

Answers to Emily Leckner's puzzles: 1. Iron Ore Hill. 2. Chocolate Mts. 3. Needle Peak. 4. Eagle Peak. 5. Nancy.

Early Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS.

One day, as Uncle Wiggily Longears, the bunny rabbit gentleman, was out walking with his pink, twinkling nose, and his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch, he chanced to pass a green field.

And, as Mr. Longears stopped in the shade of a tree to rest himself, he heard, coming from the green fields, some voices shouting very loudly:

"Slam it over this way!" cried some one.

"Bust it out here!" said another.

"Whack it for all you're worth, Sammie!" shouted a third voice.

Then came a slam-banging sound and there followed a lot of yells.

"O, he banged it right on the nose!" was what Uncle Wiggily heard.

"Dear me! Something dreadful must be going on in this meadow," thought Uncle Wiggily, as he moved out from behind a shady tree. "I heard Sammie's name. That must mean Sammie Littletail, my rabbit nephew. I hope he wasn't banged on the nose, and yet I fear some one was!"

Uncle Wiggily looked across the waving, green grass, and he saw Sammie Littletail hopping along as fast as the rabbit boy could go.

"This way, Sammie! This way!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Come to me and I'll save you from the Pipsiswah and the Skeezicks, too, if they both are chasing you! And did you get banged on the nose?"

"Don't stop me, Uncle Wiggily! Don't stop me!" cried Sammie, as he kept on running as fast as he could go. "This is a ball game and I'm trying to make a home run!"

Then the bunny gentleman understood, and how he did laugh! He went over in the field, and there he saw Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, the squirrels; Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the puppy dogs; Jimmie Wibblewobble, the duck; Billie Wagtail, the goat, and many others, jumping around, shouting and laughing.

And Sammie ran in from the field, having gone all around the bases, crossed home plate and sank down in the grass.

"There!" cried the rabbit boy. "I made a home run!"

"That's what you did," said Jackie Bow Wow. "You banged the ball all on the nose so hard, Sammie, that you made a home run."

"So that's what all the slamming and banging talk was about," spoke Uncle Wiggily, as he sat down with the animal boys on the grass. "First I thought some one was being pounded."

"Sammie was pounding the ball with a bat," explained Johnnie Bushytail. "Of course, a ball hasn't a nose, but we call it that just for fun."

"I understand," said Uncle Wiggily, laughing. "Well, go on with the ball game, boys; I'll sit here and watch you play."

Bully No-Tail, the frog boy, came hopping in from the far end of the green field, toward which Sammie had knocked the ball when he made his home run.

"Did you find the ball, Bully?" asked Jimmie Wibblewobble, the duck, who was captain of one side.

"No," croaked Bully, "I didn't. Sammie knocked it so far, when he made his home run, that it rolled in the deep grass, and, though I've looked all over for it I can't find the ball."

"We'll come and help you look," offered Jackie Bow Wow, the puppy dog boy. "We can't go on with the game if we don't find the ball, for that was the only one we had."

So all the animal boys went to the far end of the green meadow field to look for the ball Sammie had knocked. But they couldn't find it. Even Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, who, being doggies, were very good at finding hidden bones, couldn't find the lost ball.

"Dear me!" said Uncle Wiggily, when they told him about it. "I want to see a ball game. You stay here, boys, and I'll hop over to the five and ten-cent store and buy another ball."

"All right, Uncle Wiggily!" said the animal boys.

In a little while the rabbit gentleman came hopping back, and he had a large bag in his paws.

"My! You must have bought a very big baseball, Uncle Wiggily!" said Sammie.

"Well, I bought a lot of balls," answered the rabbit gentleman. "So if you lose one I can toss you another, and still another, and the game can go on. All ready now, play ball!"

He tossed a ball to Jacko Kinkytail, the monkey boy pitcher, and no sooner did Jacko have it in his paws than he gave a joyful cry and began taking big bites from it.

"Here! Stop that!" cried Jackie Bow Wow. "Don't eat the baseball! You'll get indispepsia, and, besides, we want to have a game with the ball!"

"This isn't a baseball, it's a popcorn ball!" cried Jacko, and surely enough it was.

"I couldn't find any baseballs," explained Uncle Wiggily, "so I bought you each a popcorn ball and one for myself. "We'll sit here in the shade and have an eating ball game." And they did, and it was lots of fun.

Kitchen Economies

by Isobel Brands of the Approved Experimental Station

USING QUINCES.

There is such a brief season for quinces that we scarcely observe them in the market before they are gone, and we lose the opportunity of enjoying this piquant fruit.

Quinces make delicious preserves, but they also can be prepared for immediate serving. They may be baked like pears or apples, and a quince pie has a most delicate and unusual flavor.

BAKED QUINCES.

Core, wash, but do not peel the quinces, and place in a covered dish, half-filling the latter with cold water. Place the dish—preferably a casserole—in a moderate oven and bake till the fruit may be pierced with a fork. This will usually require an hour. Then add sugar to taste and bake 15 minutes longer.

QUINCE MERINGUE PIE.

3 quinces
1 heaping tablespoonful of butter
3 eggs
½ cupful of sugar
1 tablespoonful of lemon juice

Stew the quinces. Then put through a sieve and add the heaping tablespoonful of butter. Beat the yolks of three eggs with one-half cupful of sugar and the tablespoonful of lemon juic. Stir this mixture into the quinces and then fold in the stiffly beaten whites and pour on the pie crust. Just before removing from the oven the meringue is added, or stiffly whipped cream is topped on it before serving.

QUINCE CANDY.

The quinces are cored and sliced rather thin. They must then be weighed, and the same weight of sugar measured. The quince slices are scalded, then boiled hard for about eight minutes. They are then strained and put in the kettle containing the sugar measured off in the first place and two tablespoonfuls of water added.

The mixture is placed in the oven, moderately hot, and allowed to cook nicely until they're a deep red.

The slices are then removed from the dish, drained, and when dry dusted on both sides with sugar. They must be allowed to remain in a dry place for about twelve hours and again dusted with sugar, after which they can be packed and kept for use.

REVELATIONS of a WIFE by ADELE GARRISON

My mother-in-law's thin cheeks flushed with pleasure as she held out her uninjured hand for the key to my door. I saw, with a recurrence of the wonderment I had experienced before, that she was like a romantic child in her enjoyment of the adventure to which I was committed, and in which she also had now a tiny part.

It would have been ludicrous, if she hadn't been in such deadly earnest, to see the air of mystery which she immediately donned.

"Hang something over the keyhole," she whispered. "I just know Agatha is at it."

I moved noiselessly to the door and carelessly flung a towel over the keyhole. Then I returned to my mother-in-law's side to find her tugging at a stout ribbon around her neck, which had been hidden by her embroidered nightdress. With a good deal of effort she pulled into view a securely sewn chamois bag.

"This never leaves me," she whispered. "What it contains is no one's business but my own. But there is room in it for this key. Get the sharpest scissors and a needle and thread from my work basket, rip this open, put in the key and then sew it up again in such a way that you'll be able to identify the stitches whenever you see them. I wouldn't put it past Agatha to put me to sleep some night long enough to investigate this if she had any idea the key was in here. But I'll put a flea in her ear that'll settle her if she doesn't quit her snooping around like a hungry tabby cat all over the place. Hurry now, Margaret!"

I hastened to obey her, and it was but a few minutes before the chamois bag with the key securely inside was again tucked under the folds of her nightdress.

"COME HERE, QUICKLY."

"There," she said, still keeping her voice discreetly lowered, "that's safe! And you needn't worry over your Chinese vase and whatever it contains. I'll watch out for it no matter what happens."

"Thank you, mother, I am sure of it," I said warmly, stooping to kiss her.

But at the offered caress she turned her face away rather abruptly, or so I fancied, and my kiss fell awkwardly upon the edge of her ear. The feeling I had experienced when I entered the room—that she was cherishing some fancied grudge against me, one that she meant to keep to herself—was intensified. But, of course, I couldn't question her concerning it.

"Take care of yourself," I said, as cheerily as if she had returned my caress. "I probably shan't be back until late afternoon. I haven't had a walk in ages, and I'm getting nervous."

She made no reply. I saw that she was looking out of the open window before which her couch was drawn, gazing intently across the lawn and trees which separated our home from that of Mrs. Durkee, so recently leased to the mysterious strangers.

I had reached the door and my hand was upon the knob when I heard her voice, low, eager, excited:

"I HAVE IT!"

"Come here, quickly!"

I turned and walked to her side. She put out her hand and stripped mine together.

"Look, over there, in that window. Do you see anything flash?"

I followed her gaze to the only window of the Durkee house which was visible through the many trees—a gable window on the third floor. The sun was shining directly upon the glass and I distinctly saw the flash, flash of the sun upon some metal, for all the world as if some one were telegraphing.

"Do you see anything?" my mother-in-law repeated.

"Yes, I do," I returned slowly, for I was puzzled and vaguely alarmed at the discovery.

"What do you suppose it is?"

"I haven't the slightest idea," I returned.

My mother-in-law pondered, frowning, her fingers still gripping my wrist.

"Mr. Durkee has moved out, hasn't he?" she asked at last, although she knew perfectly well of our little neighbor's departure.

"Oh, yes, several days ago."

"How many people in the house now?"

"Three, I think," I returned, guessing a bit restive under her catechism. "An elderly invalid, his nephew and a Japanese servant."

"Have you seen any of them?"

"Only the servant," I answered, keeping to myself my fanciful vision of the foreigner whose appearance tallied so closely with Mrs. Durkee's graphic description of her mysterious tenant. I was over there the day he came to get the keys."

I saw that she was giving but indifferent attention to my answers. Suddenly she gave an excited but low exclamation.

"I have it!" she said. "Some one in that window is using a pair of field glasses to look over here. Of all the impudence!"

My mother-in-law's explanation of the mysterious flashing in the window of the Durkee house struck me at once as the most plausible one. But it disturbed me more than I cared to admit to her.

If our new neighbors were using the only window from which they could see our home to spy upon us with field glasses there was more reason than ever for me to believe that the tenants of Mrs. Durkee's house were men who knew me, and were living there disguised for some sinister, unknown purpose.

It was imperative, however, that my mother-in-law shouldn't suspect my fear. Such knowledge would pull down her nervous strength tremendously. I tried, therefore, to answer her observation carelessly.

"Impudence, indeed," I said. "But, then, we can do nothing about it. And they can't possibly do any harm with their idle curiosity."

Celebrating the Mohammedan holiday of Courban Bairam. Which gives the terrible Turk and other followers of the crescent prophet plenty of chance to take a day off from the Armenian butcher shop and go to the ball game or pray or indulge in other well-known Mohammedan frivolities. While we're on the subject, General Greene won the Battle of Eutaw Springs, South Carolina, from the British leader, Stewart, in 1781. Speaking further of warfare, carnage and pleasures such as these, the Galveston tornado happened to blow in just 19 years ago to the day.

Philip J. Adjective, Robert P. Adverb, Adolph Qualifying Clause, Johanna C. Verb and Willie T. Adjective, Adverb, Qualifying Clause, Miss Verb and Pretty-Phrase have just recovered from severe illnesses, subsequent to severe beatings administered to them by local news writers when the Pacific Fleet came majestically home. They fear similar abuse when Woodrow starts out for batting honors in the League of Nations.

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

LIFE'S ALL.

What more do you want from life than this—
The gentle thrill of a loved one's kiss,
And the faith of all who love you?
Friends to share in your joy or woe,
A home with laughter and peace aglow?
What more than these can the rich man know
Who sets himself above you?

What more do you want from your stretch of years
Than the many smiles for the few sad tears
Which are born of the common sorrows?
Though you grieve today, you shall live to sing
And the richest man or the proudest king
Cannot truly say what the night shall bring
Or fashion his own tomorrows.

If you sleep at night on your sheltered bed,
If you have raiment and meat and bread,
Then away with ceaseless fretting!
If you can romp with your children small,
Or sit with the friends who come to call
By the fire you build, then you have all
That the richer men are getting.

So set your hopes on the simple things
And the common joys which a good life brings,
And work for the few who love you.
If peace abides in your home at night
And you have strength for your daily fight,
You have all that can come to the man of might
Who sets him self above you.

Jimmy-Old-Boy! A Letter-Play by Richard Wightman

At 3 P. M. Tomorrow

To J. O. B. New York.

Tomorrow, Jim, I am going to have an interview with a man who is worth ten millions of dollars.

I have never seen him but everybody knows about him. He wants to see me and I want to see him—tomorrow. The appointment is arranged. We are going to talk over a certain business proposition. The outcome of the talk means a good deal to me, as those things go. Just how much it means to me he will never know; I shall keep that under my hat.

Just now I am deciding upon the mood in which I ought to enter on that interview and have about concluded on the following: I shall not appear eager and anxious, but restrained and calm-minded. I shall be good humored, and speak first not about the matter in hand but about something of common human interest, having learned that that is the best way to begin important interviews. The bigger a man is the more thoughtful he is likely to be, and appreciative of the unusual and unexpected in the early remarks of someone who is coming to see him by appointment.

In my speaking I shall be earnest and direct. After the introductory remark there will be no hearing about the bush; he will know immediately what is on my mind and be succinctly informed of what it will mean to him to participate in the proposition we are discussing.

Before meeting him I shall see that my clothing, shoes, linen, hat, tie, etc., are beyond criticism. There is no good in distracting a man's attention from the matter in hand, and arousing disrespect by being improperly clad.

If I succeed in my interview with this man I shall be glad; and if I fail he will never know that I am sorry I've failed. I shall leave him in as fine a spirit as I greet him no matter which way the thing goes. And everything will be all right! Life doesn't hang on one interview, as a rule. One can't strike ten every time. But I expect to strike ten tomorrow and am taking due mental precautions to make it come out that way.

Jimmy old boy, if you have a young man who is a salesman, show him this letter if you want to. I have learned some of these interview things by experience and am willing to have them passed along—if they will help anybody.

From the BLACK TENT by ACHMED ABDULLAH

Author of "Scented Fear," and Wrapped in Clay."

"Yes. Naively Occidental. For he was positive only about the one fact, that the European race was the race, that the Orient, Islam, had not even a sporting chance, and that men like Tamerlane, Genghis Khan, Akbar, Solyman the Magnificent, and Aurangzeb were just—how did he put it?—oh, yes, 'rum blighters with unpronounceable names.'

He went on to say that there was a disagreeable scene when Robinson's sister and Ali Musa al-Jayli mentioned their intentions. Their parents were dead. He was the head of the family, an old English county family.

"Yes, the scene was very disagreeable. Racial and religious discussions always are, you know, because both parties are right, and both wrong!"

"Why did the girl ask her brother at all?" demanded Marie, who, womanlike, was entirely in sympathy with the Arab, the more so as John Hewitt, too, was half Arab.

"She had to. You mustn't forget that all this happened fifty years ago—in the days of Queen Victoria—when crin lines and anti-macassars and woman's obedience were still as important, more so, than the Athanasian creed. The brother commanded, and the girl obeyed."

"She can't have loved the Arab very much."

"As much as she was capable of—but her love was not strong enough to stand up against High Church and Old Port. Well, the Arab took his medicine. He was a gentleman in his own country, you know. Only, when he was about to turn the handle of the door, he paused and said: 'Where is the religion of robbers; where is the forebearance of a fool; where is the truth of a Christian?'"

"How do you know he said that?" asked Marie.

"We were friends, remember. He told me. He told me, too, that what had infuriated him most had been Robinson's remark that his sister should marry an equal. That, to a man with a written pedigree back to the Prophet and beyond! It hurt, you know, and that night, in his rooms, Ali Musa al-Jayli solemnly cursed Burke, John Stuart Mill, Topinard, and the Universal Brotherhood, made a few uncomplimentary remarks about Christianity, Europe, and the white race in general, and took ship home to Morocco.

"And so, when he returned to Morocco, he declared war, private war, against Europe, and Christianity. It was a trial of patience, and knowing that to practice the patience of Job one must have the age of Noah, he nurred the health of his body and worked carefully and soundly. He went among the villages, from Egypt to the West coast, from India to the Congo, and wherever he went, he left behind him a tiny seed of poison wheat in the hearts of the natives. For he had the strength of words which drives thoughts into brains, as the wind drives a sheet of flame. Knowing that a man cannot strangle a nation with the strength of his fingers, he used the strength of his feline, steely mind, and so, wherever he wandered, the snake of dissatisfaction and rebellion lifted its flat, ugly head.

"When he heard of abuse, done by European colonial administrators, he exaggerated the tale of it, and when he heard of good, clean reform achieved by the Christians, he would sneer and ask if a crow can become a swan by bathing in the Nile. When loyal natives argued with him and asked him to treat the foreigners, who ruled North Africa, if not with love, then at least with fairness and understanding he replied that only a fool puts a scorpion with the hand of compassion; and when he heard of young Arabs enlisting in the regiments of the French or the English, he demanded why, in the name of Allah, people should give poison to the cobra.

"But in the end, the Occident which he hated, beat him. He was one man, fighting a private war, with just a few followers, his own tribesmen mostly, and the Europeans, the Christians, were many and powerful. And so, three or four times—I forget—he was arrested and punished, for sedition and high treason, until, finally, being a Moslem, he bowed his head to the inevitable, gave in. He returned to the tents of his own tribe."

"I suppose he gave up his revenge?" asked Marie Parmlee.

"No. He was a Moslem—and an Arab. An Arab may forget his revenge, under the stress of circumstances, under the pressure of other, outside matters, but the thought of it will come back to him sooner or later, and waiting, forgetting, it will taste the more sweetly. Forget? An Arab—and forget? Two things he never forgets—love and hate. No. Ali Musa al-Jaylo simply changed his tactics, his system. I told you, my dear young lady, that what is wrong in Sumatra will be necessarily wrong in Morocco, and vice versa." He smiled. "There may have been more than one Adam, more than one original sin. All did right, according to his code. He killed!"

"He—killed? Whom? Robinson? The brother of the girl who—"

"No. He had really forgotten Robinson as a personality, an entity. Robinson was to him simply a symbol of the Occident—which he hated. He had forgotten, too, the girl who, just about that time, married a British army officer and went with him to India. All married, too."

"WHOM?"

"Oh, a cousin. Arabs always do marry cousins, you know."

"Yes." She inclined her head. She thought of Moorish Hewitt, of Madame Guescelin, of Hewitt's grandfather's strange telegram. "I know."

"Well—to return to our muttons—Ali did not kill Robinson. He hunted bigger game, and he was an expert at"—he smiled, a curiously crooked, curiously marred and tainted smile—"hunting. An expert he was, he and his tribe, at certain methods of hunting, and so he took toll!" Again he smiled, and he added: "For years the climate of Morocco was certified unhealthy for Europeans. They died like flies."

PRESIDENT DISCUSSES SHANTUNG.

The country has awaited with keen interest for an expression from the President on the Shantung clause in the peace treaty. It was expected that he would frankly state his views during his present tour. Probably no clause of the treaty has been so severely criticized. Renewed discussion resulted when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee adopted an amendment which substituted "China" for "Japan" in the paragraph disposing of German privileges in Shantung.

President Wilson has met the issue by declaring, in effect, that the clause was agreed to only as a matter of expediency. He opened his discussion of the question by admitting "I don't like the Shantung settlement any better than you do." He then proceeded to explain that in order to induce Japan to go into the war and clear the Pacific of the German power, England and France bound themselves without qualifications to see to it that Japan got everything in China that Germany had. It was a secret understanding. "As America was not a party to that agreement," declared the President, "the Japanese were ready to promise that they would give up every item of sovereignty which Germany would otherwise have enjoyed in Shantung province and return it without restriction to China, and that they would retain in that province only the economic concessions such as other nations had elsewhere in China."

It was evidently the President's purpose to convey the impression that America had forced a concession from Japan. Possibly this is so, but the American people would be more confident that Japan had conceded something if the delegates from that country had furnished a clear definition of what was meant by the "economic concessions" which are to be retained in Shantung. China, through bitter experience, is perhaps better qualified to enlighten the world as to the true significance of "economic concessions."

No American can endorse the Shantung clause without being unfaithful to all of this country's ideals and traditions. It is reassuring to learn that notwithstanding the "concessions" President Wilson frankly declares that he does not like the Shantung settlement any better than do his fellow countrymen. The only excuse offered for accepting the clause without amendment is expediency. The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations did not find the "expediency" argument sufficiently convincing. On high moral grounds the committee was unquestionably right. If, as charged, the Shantung amendment will jeopardize peace as a whole, it may be that expediency should have restrained the senate committee from amending the clause. The final outcome may be the adoption by the senate of a strong resolution of protest to accompany ratification.

The President's discussion of the Shantung clause acquaints the world with the fact that no high motives prompted Japan to cast her lot on the side of the allies in the great struggle for world democracy. America entered unselfishly. Japan had a price which England and France were compelled to pay, and now America is asked to approve the bargain.

It is a striking instance of poetic justice that a statue of Lafayette is to replace that of Old Emperor William at Metz, overturned as soon after the armistice was signed as the people could get around to it. The Knights of Columbus are to provide it. This is one of the most timely gifts to a people coming into their own. The Hohenzollern statue stood for nearly a half a century, and served as a reminder that they had been conquered. The one to replace it is a very fitting reassurance that they have been emancipated.

The President is speaking plainly on his swing around the circle. It is a good way to talk, whether the speaker has a message that strikes a grateful ear or not. Plainness of speech is a commendable trait, and when it is combined with frankness it gains attention and gets consideration. There has been complaint that the President has not been as frank concerning his part in the peace congress as the real interests of the country would seem to warrant, and if that omission is being in some measure corrected now it is well. However, there is no sign yet that the wake of his tour is marked by conversions and universal enthusiasm for the League of Nations where before there was dissent.

FASHION'S CHANGES.

Few casual experiences are more informing in a retrospective way than the examination of a family album that is well kept and has been brought down to a time well within the vogue of current fashions. We have to depend upon the portrait and the steel engraving for enlightenment in this respect as to the far past, though the daguerreotype intervened briefly; but the photograph is intimate and exact, and it has been so easily and readily produced that customs have been preserved by it as they never were by other processes.

The predominant impression left by an examination of the family album covering a period of half a century is that the changes that have taken place in woman's dress have been striking, whereas, those in man's apparel have been comparatively slight. From the monster hoop of the sixties to the tube of the present time; from the sweeping train of a quarter-century ago to the short skirt—quite short in many instances—now the fashion, is a far cry, indeed. But man has plugged along with very slight alterations in his sartorial get-up. His trousers have at times been a little more ample or a little tighter in the leg; his coat has been lengthened in the tail, and then foreshortened; his vest has been denuded of its collar; his shirts have had their snowiness broken by a stripe; his hats have undergone some metamorphosis; but if his appearance is different now it is due more to the fact that he is closer clipped than that he is differently tailored.

However, those who were contemporary with the fashions through the period will remember some changes that may interest the present generation. Shoes have supplanted top boots almost universally; the paper collar era, which succeeded the Civil War, is entirely forgotten; the silk hat has been relegated. It was once necessary to the man who desired to put on a "front." The dress suit may not have been requisite, but the "stovepipe" was indispensable.

The evolution that men's fashions now seem to be going through is the disappearance of the dicer, or bowler, and the wide vogue of the soft hat, or "slouch," formerly in a sort of disrepute, and the substitution of the soft for the starched collar. Already the stiff, breast-plate bosom has given way to a more comfortable shirt-front, and other relaxations have been noted, due to man's preference for his ease when that conflicts with fashion.

In this respect he differs radically from the other sex. We see repeatedly and continually that she will follow fashion's decrees regardless of everything. She may question a new style, but she will adopt it and be ready for the next one, however it may comport with comfort, or even health.

The family album emphasizes this fact as far back as it is a record. And the disinclination of man to take up a fashion simply because it is decreed by tailors, haberdashers, hatters or shoemakers, undoubtedly accounts for the slight changes that have been made in men's garments in half a century.

The news that Von Brincken is writing a book, in which he will divulge the plots of the German imperial government that he tried to put over as an attache of the German consulate at San Francisco, is only of casual interest. That is all in the past; he has got his, and there is not an overwhelming disposition to mitigate it. About the only commiseration that he is entitled to is a hope that he will perform better next time.

THE SIBERIAN EXPEDITION.

At a hearing before the House committee on foreign affairs on the resolution of Representative Rhodes of Missouri calling upon the War Department for information as to why American soldiers are kept in Siberia pathetic plea of parents for the return of their sons from the frozen north were heard. It developed that of about 8700 American troops in Siberia at least 6000 are drafted men—men who came forward at the call of their country to join the colors and fight the Huns. Now they are engaged in laying railroad tracks up near the arctic circle.

They want to come home, and their parents want them home. Their status, it is argued, is far different from that of the regular soldier, who enlists for whatever service may come to him. These boys are not professional soldiers; they entered the service under a specific understanding that they were to fight the country's enemies and drive the Germans out of France and Belgium. That has been done, the emergency for which they were called has passed, practically all of their comrades have been demobilized and their parents are pleading that the members of the Siberian expedition be not compelled to endure another arctic winter in that desolate country.

After hearing the testimony of witnesses, Chairman Porter expressed the general sentiment of the committee when he remarked that the drafted men had been sent to Siberia "with absolutely no justification in law," and that it is time for "Congress to challenge this extraordinary use of the army." A further hearing will be held, at which Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of State Lansing will be asked to attend and state the administration's intentions respecting the American forces in Russia. Apparently it is the intention of the War Department to withdraw the draft men, but the slowness with which it is being done is arousing resentment among the relatives of the soldiers, and there is the ever-present fear that something will happen to render their stay in Siberia over another winter necessary. Throughout there has been a veil of mystery surrounding the American participation in the Russian expedition. The time has now come for a frank statement of policy by the government in order that the people may know exactly what course it is proposed to follow.—Washington Post.

NOTES and COMMENT

Does J. Cal Ewing have to go into the bush to see creditable baseball? This from the Vallejo News raises the query: "J. Cal Ewing, president of the Oakland Coast league team, was an interested spectator at the ball game staged at Beach Park last evening and stated at the end of the contest that it was one of the best that he had witnessed this season. He also took time to praise Umpire Jeff Woods and stated that his work compared with any of the best umpires in the Coast league."

There may be dark days ahead, but for the Stockton Record joy unconfined still reigns. SPIRIT of the STATE PRESS

An exchange quotes a San Francisco produce dealer as saying: "If the people should take it into their heads to stop eating anything perishable a few days, they could ruin the market." That is a thought worth reflecting upon. If a perishable product is unreasonably high, we do not have to eat it. If all the people conclude the same thing at the same time, the price would come tumbling down.—Baker-field Californian.

The yeast cake is coming into its own. A report from the agricultural department shows that, since July 1st, the demand for yeast has almost doubled in every part of the country. It is not stated, however, that the increase can be traced to the popular use of yeast as an ingredient in making home-brewed beverages, but then government reports always leave one free to form his own conclusions.—Vacaville Reporter.

THE GREECE OF THE NORTH

In connection with the recognition of the full sovereignty of Iceland, recently accorded by Denmark by which the island enters the Danish federation on equal terms with Denmark, the National Geographic Society has issued from its Washington headquarters the following bulletin:

"Geographically and geologically Iceland is a part of—a continuation of—the British Isles, for it is situated on the same submarine mountain ridge, stretching from southeast to northwest across the North Atlantic," says the bulletin, which is based on a communication from Jon Stefanson.

"Iceland is not a bleak, arctic region, embodied in thick-ribbed ice, though its northermost peninsula, Rifstanga, projects a mile north of the Arctic circle.

"No country on earth of equal size contains so varied and wonderful phenomena. The glaciers of Switzerland; the fjords, salmon rivers, and midnight sun of Norway; the volcanoes, grottoes and solfataras of Italy, on a grander scale; the mineral springs of Germany; the geysers of New Zealand; the largest waterfall, next to Niagara, in the world—all are here. Nowhere has nature been so open-handed in giving a geological lesson to man. If there be carvings in stone, volumes lie unread here. Here we see her titanic forces at work building up a country. Nowhere is it possible to study so well the geological conditions prevailing toward the close of the glacial epoch in Europe.

"Iceland has another and greater claim to one's interest. It is, as William Morris said 'the Greece of the North.' It produced in the tenth and thirteenth centuries a literature unparalleled after Rome before the golden age of England and France, in character drawing, in passionate dramatic power, in severe, noble simplicity, in grim humor. All the characters of the Sagas live and move today. Every hill and headland and valley in the island is full of their presence. The Icelander of today knows them by heart. It is as if every Englishman, from pauper to king, knew Shakespeare's historical plays and could retell them more or less in his or her own words. It has kept the national spirit alive through evil times. It has preserved the language almost untouched by time and foreign intercourse.

"Yet this literary people still live in a pastoral and Homeric civilization, which is a modern lesson of the healthfulness of human life lived in close contact with the free wild life of nature, such as would have delighted the heart of Rousseau or Thoreau.

"For four hundred years Iceland was an aristocratic republic, ruled by the great families of the early settlers, among whom was a Norse queen of Dublin. A fourteen days' open-air parliament of all Iceland met annually in June at Thingvellir, and the speaker of the law (logsogunan) used to recite from memory the whole of the unwritten, elaborate laws of the country to the assembly. In 1262-1264 Iceland was united to Norway, and in 1380 with Norway to Denmark. The Danish rule ruined the island economically, but since the granting of self-government and the re-establishment of the old parliament, in 1871, at Reykjavik, great progress has been made."

A HERO OVERLOOKED.

The rush of events on the French front in October of last year prevented the recording with the prominence that his service justified the exploits of Frank Luke.

Who was Frank Luke? He was a twenty-year-old high school boy from Phoenix, Ariz. He was in the flying corps. His entire period of service at the front was probably a month. In eighteen consecutive days he brought down twenty-two enemy planes and captive balloons. During one day he shot down two planes and three captive balloons and engaged in combat with a platoon of infantry, killing a number with his machine gun. In his last fight, when his plane was shot down he guided it to a safe landing and defended himself with his automatic pistol until he was killed.

As the months go by and the stories of individual prowess and heroism of America's soldiers are given to the world, the wonder that Germany gave up the fight ceases. German morale could not stand against our Frank Lukes.—Bakersfield Californian.

The Los Angeles Times says: "As long as food is scarce in the country food prices will be high. When it becomes plentiful it will be cheap." Is that so? Well, judging by our bountiful crops and the millions of pounds of foodstuffs dragged out of cold storage by government officials, the idea is current that food is plentiful enough.—San Jose Mercury Herald.

A round million in the Chico-Durham district for the prune crop, another million for the almond crop and pretty close to half a million for the rice crop is some harvest, not to mention such trifles as peaches, hops, wheat, barley and alfalfa.—Chico Enterprise.

HEALTH and HAPPINESS

Cut Your Diet and Increase Exercise One Way to Reduce

By DR. LEONARD K. HIRSHBERG, A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins University.)

Normal human beings should not weigh more nor less than about two pounds to the inch in height.

When their weight is much more or much less than this, they should endeavor to reduce or increase it.

Excessive weight may be due in some cases, perhaps, to heredity. This is a very great factor and sometimes reduction on this ground becomes exceedingly difficult. On the other hand, fatness may be due to a diseased gland or secretive vessel in the brain regions of the mechanism or to overeating and lack of exercise.

Perhaps over-eating, or more generally, careless eating and lack of exercise have more to do with creating a bulky figure than any other one or a group of causes. Abundance of starches, sugars and fats in the diet are guilty of producing a mass of fatty tissue.

The common method of reduction and perhaps the most efficient way is a modified diet and increased exercise. This cannot be employed except when the individual is strong and hearty. Otherwise, the modified diet renders the person weak and faint and prevents her from doing her best mental or physical work.

THE MILK "CURE"

The woman who would have a shapely figure, and wishes to reduce some of the fat that seems to mar it, should continue her diet for two weeks to 20 days at a time, after which she should increase it so as to get renewed strength and energy.

The milk-cure is one of the simplest known diets, and with a doctor's permission may be used even in the event of disease of the heart or kidneys.

The following are some of the most used and apparently most efficient diets employed for the purpose of removing surplus fat:

According to the milk-cure, one pint of milk is drunk for breakfast. For lunch you eat six ounces of lean meat with such green vegetables as spinach, green peas, string beans or lettuce. No bread or potatoes are used. If you desire you may substitute for the green vegetables, turnips, parsnips, cabbage, brussels sprouts or carrots. One-half pint of milk, two glasses of water or a cup of tea with a little sugar completes this meal.

THE OTHER MEALS

For 5 o'clock tea, if you have time, drink one-half pint of milk or two cups of tea with a little sugar, or both.

For dinner take one pint of milk and two apples cooked or raw.

If you do not wish to indulge in the mid-day meal, and if you are always at home, you may drink only one pint of milk if you think you are strong enough to go without the rest of the things. In this instance, you may also drink eight to nine glasses of milk a day, with only apples, tea and water.

Drink water only between meals, in the morning and at bed time. Water during meals increases the appetite and makes food absorption quicker and thus tends to destroy some of the effects of the diet.

Besides these diets, exercise is exceedingly effective in removing fat. Swimming, riding and golf are good sports as well as good exercise. Walking three quarters of an hour in the morning and one-half hour in the afternoon or evening is a simple, but good, method of reduction. The heat of the summer should not prevent walking, as much fat is lost through perspiration. The same effect is obtained by exercising in a sweater before bedtime or in the morning.

VOLUME LXXXI. OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 8, 1919. A NO. 22.

FIRST STORM OF SEASON IS NOT YET OVER

Rice Harvest in Sacramento Valley Will Suffer if the Rains Continue.

The first storm of the season for California swept sothward down the coast yesterday, bringing rainfall throughout northern sections of the coast, accompanied by rather brisk winds on the coast section.

No reports of damage to crops have reached the weather office, but damage will result to rice, which is now being harvested in the Sacramento Valley, if the rain lasts any great length of time, the bureau announced. Fruit now being dried in the valleys also will suffer, the bureau said.

The precipitation for the last 24 hours ending at 5 o'clock today were: Eureka, .04; Red Bluff, .32; Sacramento, .40; San Francisco, .11; San Jose, trace; Colusa, .34; Santa Rosa, 30; Stockton, .01.

According to G. H. Willson, district forecaster, the disturbance extends from the Santa Clara valley region and Stockton north. He said that all indications pointed to the probability of showers throughout California today and tomorrow. He expressed the belief, however, they would not be of marked severity and would be of comparatively short duration. He said:

"This is the first storm of the season in California. I do not anticipate that it caused much damage, although fruit dryers may have suffered a nominal damage.

"I sent out storm warnings to the valley section early yesterday morning, so I imagine they had plenty of time in which to take precautionary measures.

"The precipitation ranged from one-quarter to three-quarters of an inch in the Santa Clara valley section. One of the highest precipitations from northern California came from Chico, where .70 of an inch fell in twenty-four hours."

In Oakland the precipitation was .18 of an inch.

Hundreds of hikers and picnic parties throughout the bay region returned to their homes last night with their clothing and camping equipment thoroughly soaked, having assumed that weather conditions were to be suitable for outdoor jaunts.

Scores of persons who spent the day in Moraga valley and in the Mount Diablo country were particularly unfortunate in that they were forced to remain outdoors until a late hour last night owing to delayed service on the Oakland, Antioch & Eastern railroad caused by power transmission difficulties.

RAIN STOPS FOREST FIRES.

REDDING, Sept. 8. — Northern California was swept by rain last night and early today, the first of the season. One inch has fallen here, but the fall was much heavier up the canyon.

The prune harvest was interrupted. The drying trays were stacked and will not be harmed if the weather clears within two days.

The rain put out numerous forest fires.

Dog Bites Boy; Canine is Under 'Observation'

While delivering papers, Harold Ruh of 2214 Forty-seventh avenue was attacked and bitten by a dog opposite 5005 Congress avenue.

The cry of "mad dog" reached the police and officers found the animal tied up at 5005 Congress avenue. The dog is held for observation at the pound.

Young Ruh was not seriously hurt.

City Hall Plaza to Be Converted into Alluring Market Place by Oakland Women

MISS ELIZABETH GILL, snapped while playing with a bunch of little kiddies, who are the wards of the Ladies' Relief Society, one of Oakland's oldest philanthropies. Miss Gill is one of the faithful workers for the welfare of the Home, who will assist at the Market Fete on Saturday at the City Hall Plaza.

Ladies' Relief Society Will Specialize in Edibles at Saturday Fete.

City Hall Plaza will look like the Market Place in Montmartre on Saturday, when the Ladies' Relief Society will put on its Market Fete to raise funds for the coming year.

Everybody's doing something for the fete, giving, selling or planning to buy.

And every family in Oakland is invited to buy its Sabbath dinner—and its breakfast and its tea things—at the Market. And there are good things available that are not exactly in line for the larder—soap, and sachet bags, and some amazing things to be found in the "Country Store and Auction," over which Mrs. Walton Norwood Moore will preside wit ha large committee.

And the fortune-telling booth, under Mrs. Lulu Webster, is one of the most "promising" concessions in the fete.

Mrs. Edgar Axton Jones and her committee have assembled as happy array of gifts, useful and esthetic, everything to be disposed of before the lights go out when the clock in the tower strikes twelve.

Mrs. Horatio Bonestell, with twenty young girls, will dispose of gumtions of it coming over on Saturday morning.

The booth—design and decoration—are in the hands of Captain Walter D. Reed, architect, who returned recently from overseas. Yellow and green are the carnival colors, that with the setting of the park, and the imposing backkround of the City Hall, the Fete will establish a precedent for an inexpensive but aesthetic ensemble.

Americans Ignorant of Belgian Guarantee

PARIS, Sept. 8.—Members of the American delegation at the peace conference deny all knowledge of an agreement, reported in the British press, by which the United States and England guarantee Belgium against German aggression.

Jams, Pies, Soap, Other Donations Wanted by Women

Donations are wanted for "Market Day," Saturday, September 13, when the Ladies' Relief Society will hold its annual benefit. What have you in the way of fruits, jellies, jams, cakes, soap, flowers, pies and pastries and dainties for the delicatessen booth? A contribution from each one would help to fill the shelves in the various booths and meet the demand for such. It will be a big day. Every contribution means that much more for the 100 little children in the home. It means a comfortable winter, new beds and shoes, and necessities which otherwise would not be forthcoming.

Contributions should be sent to the supply rooms at Room 108, City Hall Building, Lakeside 3690, the packages addressed to the chairman of respective booths.

Headquarters of the Ladies' Relief Society for 'Market Day' are at the Red Cross Hut, City Hall Plaza.

10TH-ST. FIRE ROUTS GUESTS, PERILS PLANT

Macaroni Factory Damaged As Blaze in Barber Shop Spreads; Rooming House is Menaced; Control is Quick

Fire on Tenth street before noon today threatened a score or more occupants in a rooming house and the destruction of 1000 gallons of olive oil and other fluids and food materials. The places menaced were the Pompei Macaroni Factory, 487 Tenth street and the barber shop of P. Cortedzzo, 483 Tenth street. It was quickly controlled. It started in the barber shop.

The entire apparatus from central station, four engine companies and a high pressure truck arrived.

GAS HEATER EXPLODES.

Explosion of a gas heater in the barber shop was the origin. Four patrons were receiving tonsorial service and at the blast rushed onto the street, with lather still on their faces.

For a few minutes Cortedzzo tried to quench the blaze with wet towels. His left hand was burned. Treatment was given him by the operators for Chief Whitehead and Chief Charles Thaler.

SERIOUS FIRE THREATENED.

Occupants in the rooming house overhead were soon quieted and several who had left their rooms returned.

Had the blaze spread, it would have started a serious fire in the macaroni factory. The olive oil stored in the place is valued at $5000 and thousands of dollars' worth of other foodstuffs are kept there.

The damage to the barber shop was $100.

INFLUENZA TAKES OAKLAND DOCTOR

Influenza claimed its victim in Dr. George A. Kretsinger who died at 7 o'clock this morning following an illness of three days. He was a brother-in-law of the late Dr. A. S. Kelly, whose death at the height of the influenza epidemic last October occurred following a short attack of the disease. Besides a widow, Mrs. Etta Kelly Kretsinger, Dr. Kretsinger is survived by two young children, Kennet Kretsinger and Jean Kretsinger.

A graduate of the University of California and its medical school, Dr. Kretsinger had taken his place among the more prominent of the younger physicians. He was the son of a pioneer family in Hayward. Friday night he complained of illness. The day following he was removed to a local sanitarium. His condition was not considered serious up to the time of his death this morning.

Telegrams have been sent to Mrs. Kretsinger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Kelly, who with Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Sill are touring Canada by automobile, advising them of the death.

Steals to Dazzle "Darktown," Charge

The desire of Henry Feld, negro, to dazzle "darktown" in Oakland with stylish clothes, was the cause for his appearance this morning in the police court of Judge George Samuels, the police say.

Henry is accused of being the deft pass-key artist who entered the store of M. L. Harris, 1010 Broadway, early yesterday morning. Harris opened up his store to find three of the most extensive suits in the establishment missing.

Feld was picked up in San Francisco by Police Inspectors Mul hern and Dufton of Oakland.

Feld's examination in police court was set for September 15.

Eastbay Throng to Join in Admission Day Fiesta in S. F.

Native Sons and Daughters Complete Plans for Parade and Banquet.

Ten per cent of the Native Sons and Daughters of California reside in the Eastbay cities, and about 90 per cent of that tenth is doing its best to get to the Admission Day celebration across the bay tomorrow. Public officials of Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda are planning to head the delegation of 7500 that goes to San Francisco tomorrow, seventeen parlors strong.

The Alameda county division will be the fifth of the parade that will be the chief feature of the celebration. According to Harry G. Williams, Oakland auditor and Eastbay manager of preparations, about 900 discharged soldiers and sailors will be in the division. Red Cross uniforms, worn by seventy-five of the Native Daughters, will indicate the service they, too, have rendered their country.

Oakland is to have a glimpse of a section of the parade before it merges with the greater body across the bay. Piedmont Parlor's marching unit, led by its band and drum corps, will for mat Native Sons' Hall, Clay and Eleventh streets, and march to the ferry at the foot of Broadway. During the day the parlor will entertain at the Civic Auditorium across the bay. Oakland Parlor plans a banquet there to be held at the St. Francis Hotel.

SPECIAL BOAT PROVIDED.

A special boat will be provided for the members of the order from Eastbay cities. Arriving in San Francisco they will proceed at once to Sacramento and Drum streets, where their division will form. The honor escort will be composed of Native Sons of the Oakland police force, led by Chief J. F. Lynch. Mayor John L. Davie, Commissioner W. J. Baccus and Auditor Harry Williams will follow the escort. William Manning, deputy county clerk, will be marshal of the division. Piedmont, Alameda, Oakland and Berkeley parlors will be followed by the sixteen other parlors of the county.

Across the bay hotels are beginning to fill up again as they did just before the fleet celebration, and accommodations are already becoming scarce. More than a hundred parlors will be represented. Announcement this morning is that arrangements for the parade are practically complete and that it will get under way from the Embarcadero by 10:30 o'clock, with James A. Wilson as grand marshal. The line of march will be out Market street, on Polk to McAllister and then to Van Ness and to Turk street. Before the city hall a reviewing stand will contain state, city and military authorities.

LITERARY EXERCISES.

In the afternoon literary exercises will be held at the civic center auditorium with J. Emmet Hayden as chairman. Rev. George Lacombe will deliver the invocation, Mayor James Rolph Jr. will offer a welcome, Lewis F. Byington will make the address of the day, with addresses also by William P. Canhu and Mary E. Bell, grand presidents respectively of the Native Sons and Native Daughters. Blanche Hamilton Fox, William H. Keith, Archille Artigues and Dr. Maurice O'Connell will contribute musical numbers to the program and the O'Neill sisters will present a ballet. A grand ball in the evening will conclude the celebration.

Sailor Goes Skating; Falls; Injures Wrist

Sailor John Wellmot started cutting curlecues on roller skates at Idora Park and his "sea legs" got mixed up.

John somersaulted once or twice, to the amusement of several misses, whom he had been entertaining. Then he came "at rest" on the floor.

"Just a fractured wrist, John," said the doctor at the Emergency Hospital. "You'll soon be all right."

Frances Cook, of El Cerrito, Contra Costa county, came to Oakland to show the folks how to skate at Idora Park. She fell and dislocated her left elbow. She was taken to the Emergency Hospital by Officers Buckley and Young, who were at the park and rushed to the rescue.

MISS KATE HURLL, local singer and pianist, who will entertain at the banquet to be held at the St. Francis hotel by Oak-Parlor No. 50, N. S. G. W., after the Admission Day parade.

Jingle Jolts

By Harvey E. Westgate.

Men often stop and wonder, why women storm and thunder, unless they always have some ready cash; but these same ginks will holler, and sweat beneath the collar, if they come home and fail to find some hash.

They seem to think that berries, and ham and eggs and cherries, can somehow be obtained without a cent; they quite forget the butter, and ice, as it gets hotter, and lock their purses when they've paid the rent.

Now if the wives do mopping, they earn some cash for shopping, and there are many things which they must buy; they need new waists and dresses, and ribbons for their tresses, and scores of things for which the women sigh.

But if men's cash is hoarded, the females soon get sordid, and surely they have got a good excuse; so every Mike and Andy, should divvy up with Mandy, or she may ask the judge to pry her loose.

AUTO BANDITS ARE ROUTED BY THEIR VICTIMS

Two Brothers Battle Robbers, Who Are Frightened Away by Approach of Car.

Battling with masked automobile highwaymen, who held them up early this morning, Joseph and Jesse Santana of 1011 Thirtieth street, succeeded in routing their assailants, but not until the latter had robbed them of $25.

The two brothers, returning home at 2 o'clock this morning, had arrived at Twenty-ninth street on San Pablo avenue, when an automobile dashed up to the curbing alongside them and two masked men, leaping out, pointed revolvers toward them and demanded their money.

Jesse Santana passed over $25, but his brother, while the robbers were taking this, made a run at them. A four-cornered fight instantly developed. The Santanas were holding their own with the thugs, who did not use their revolvers, but another machine approached along San Pablo avenue and the robbers, taking fright jumped into their own car and sped away. No trace of them has been found.

"13" AND "23" ARE MAYOR DAVIE'S LUCKY NUMBERS

"Thirteen" and "twenty-three," supposedly "jinx" numbers, have no terrors for Mayor John L. Davie—in face, he "eats 'em alive." But the "human jinx"—that's different. Beware him!

Mayor Davie was assigned place number twenty-three at the banquet to Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, and says that this is the sixth time that he has drawn either "thirteen" or "twenty-three" at local banquets.

"Every time it happens," says the mayor, "it seems to bring me good luck. I guess these are my lucky numbers, even though they may not be for some people."

The "human jinx" is a different proposition.

"There are some fellows," said the mayor, "who seem, although nice fellows, to be continually in trouble no matter what they do. One of these fellows is a human jinx—the less you have to do with them the better; they spread bad luck and just can't help it. Then again there are men who seem to turn into money anything they touch. That's the kind of man to freeze onto.

"But this number business—that's foolish. Thirteen and twenty-three never did me any harm—I like 'em."

MARATHON RUNNERS ON EDGE FOR TRIBUNE RACE TOMORROW

CARL MORRIS IS IN WONDERFUL CONDITION AND MAY PROVE A SURPRISE AGAINST LARUE

RAIN OR SHINE WILL SEE CHIEF LYNCH FIRE STARTING GUN

Seventh Annual Big P. A. A. Event Will Bring Out More Than Hundred Trained Runners

By HERBERT HAUSER.

The weather will have no influence whatsoever on The TRIBUNE'S Merritt Marathon tomorrow morning. Rain or shine she will find Chief of Police Frank Lynch starting off the big bunch of runners promptly at 10 o'clock from Park Drive and Grand avenue. The month of active training has ended and when the race is ended another new champion will be crowned. There are a greater number of entries than last year and there are many new faces among them. Two former winners are amongst them—H. L. Morton, winner of the first contest, and Charlie Hunter, winner in the fifth. Whether or not either of these classy runners will repeat is a difficult question. The past week has found many people requesting the writer's opinion on the subject, but as I have often stated before it is ill befitting for a referee of a contest to venture an opinion.

The followers of the Olympic Club team expect Carroll of Churchill to come through with the Winged O's usual luck and carry off the first prize. Both of these boys are high-class distance men. Carroll's performance this spring when he carried off first honors in the P. A. A. five-mile championship at the University of California stamps him as a dangerous man for any of the other contestants to run against. He has a nice, easy stride, seems to judge pace well and if in good condition will render an excellent account of himself and the same can be said of Churchill. The latter has had more experience than his younger opponent and his showing in the Mt. Wilson race for the astic clubs of athletes, each one of Southern California puts him among the best distance runners of the state.

Charlie Hunter has always been an in and outer. He has the ability to win the contest if in condition. He spent a year in the army which may have improved him or may have proven a detriment, only tomorrow can tell.

The large delegation of enthusiastic Italian boys from San Francisco may rob with some speedy dark horse. Over in the North Beach section of the city there are no less than four or five enthusiastic clubs of athletes, each one of which are determined to put across the winner of tomorrow's race. There have been numerous trysts and secret training quarters that will bring out the best that is in every man in the contest. These organizations are also after the team prize which goes to the organization having the first five men to cross the line and there will be great jollifications in the Italian quarter if one of their teams should carry off the honor. In the Labor Day games last Monday these organizations supplied the winner and place men in the two-mile contest and they will endeavor to do the same tomorrow.

Special Medals Are Cause of Rivalry

The diamond medal for the first high school boy to cross the line has created much rivalry between the schools about the bay. There are thirty or forty boys that come under this classification.

The Y. M. C. A. medal seems to lie between H. L. Morton of San Jose and Percy Gilbert of the Oakland organization though Berkeley and San Francisco may spring a surprise. Gilbert won last year and he will have plenty of rooters from his organization to help him along.

The Army and Navy boys and the Marine boys have a few competitors, none of whom are known locally. The cup of the county prize belongs almost to anyone.

The Acorn Club of the Alameda High School under the management of Rue ell Knowland is once again after the prize for the most men to finish within the hour but will have strong opposition from the two of the Berkeley clubs.

Runners Will Dress at Municipal Auditorium

Arrangements have been made for the athletes to dress at the Municipal Auditorium where they will have advantage of nice dressing rooms and good showers and machines will carry the runners to and from the start and finish.

All contestants are requested to report to the Clerk of Course Otto Rittler, physical director of the Alameda High School at 9 o'clock sharp. They will then be examined by Dr. Phillips, physician and receive their competitor's numbers. All those who have not secured their P. A. A. card must have it before they secure their number or they will be scratched off the list. A member of the registration committee will be on hand to see that this rule is carried out and will have a supply of blanks on hand.

Red Arrows Will Be Guide to Runners

The entry blanks will be marked off with red arrows all of which will be placed on the left hand side completely around the entire distance of the course, so that it will be impossible for anyone to stray off the course. Passing by runners, bicyclists or autos will be strictly prohibited and if anyone is found in acceptance it they will be disqualified without any discussion. Contestants may run either on the street or sidewalk but must take no short cuts. Trainers may refresh the runners with water if they so desire. All numbers must be worn in front so that it may be plainly seen as they cross the line. After a runner finishes he will be disqualified if he recrosses the line. Cases of this kind have often caused trouble to officials of similar contests.

Trophies Will Be Given at Auditorium After Race

Prizes will be awarded at the Auditorium as soon as the officials compile the results. Silver bars will be awarded all contestants other than prize winners who finish within the hour. All those who have finished in at least three contests will receive gold bars.

The playground relay will start promptly at 2 a. m. and all teams must report not later than 8:15 to Superintendent of Recreation Jay B. Nash and Morris Rotch. Captains of these teams must keep their runners closely assembled at the Auditorium in order to avoid all confusion. All officials but the clerks are requested to report to the referee not later than 9 a. m. to act for both contests.

Great Array of Trophies for Winners

Here is the complete prize list for TRIBUNE Marathon:

EASTERN HEAVY IS SINCERE IN EFFORT TO DO COME-BACK

Has Taken Off 19 Pounds During Stay at San Rafael and is Working in Fine Style

By BOB SHAND.

SAN RAFAEL, Sept. 8.—The fight fans who think Carl Morris will prove a set-up for Bill Larue when the pair meet at the auditorium tomorrow afternoon had better have a care. This Morris party has been doing some earnest training and is in condition to step ten or twenty rounds right now. He worked for five weeks before coming here and he has been working like five or six beavers since he hit Billy Shannon's camp. Morris has been doing six miles on the road every morning and stepping from ten to fourteen rounds in the gymnasium every afternoon. There has not been an afternoon during the past week when Carl did not put in six rounds of boxing and another six with the gymnasium apparatus and shadow boxing. He has been sawing wood and keeping quiet but the fans who consider him a "sapp" will be surprised.

Billy Shannon, who knows a fighter when he sees one, is really enthusiastic over Morris and it takes something worth while to get the veteran excited. Billy thinks so much of Carl's chances against Larue that he is coming to Oakland Tuesday morning and will be a ringside spectator. Billy only comes to town when there is a real fight and he expects to see one of these things when Carl and Bill tangle.

Billy Shannon is a Morris Booster

"I did not think much of Morris when I heard he was coming here to train," said Shannon last night as he eased a little 2¾% brew over to a belated customer. "I thought Morris was through, but the way he worked the first day convinced me that he was under cover with a lot of stuff. He has worked as hard as any fighter that ever trained here, and unless Larue is a real champion Morris should give him a great battle in four rounds. I have never seen Larue fight, but I am coming down Tuesday to give the gladiators the once-over, and if Morris does not win I will take my hat off to Larue and concede him a chance with the best of them."

Morris is absolutely confident. "I haven't said anything since I came to this part of the country," said the Tulsa engineer, "because last time I was here the fans gave me the raspberry. I decided to lay low, get into the best of condition and then give my critics their answer in the ring. I thought that Simpson, the promoter, was very friendly with Larue and would want to see him win to keep him a good drawing card, and I did not know the other officials of the club. But Simpson came over Saturday and allayed some of my fears. I know I am going to get a square deal, and that is all I ask.

Carl Says He is Not Foul Fighter

"And I wish the fans would not consider me a foul fighter. I am not and never was except on one occasion and I had to be rough or I might have been killed. It was in the Fred Fulton fight that I was rough and believe me I had reason. Fulton hit me low five times before I lost my temper and retaliated. Matt Hinkle was the referee and he let Fulton get away with everything but murder. The day after the fight I met Hinkle and grabbing him by the throat made him admit that Fulton had fouled me repeatedly before I retaliated. In my other fights I always FOUGHT. I know I am not a clever boxer and that if I tried to outpoint some of these parlor performers I would get licked. When I go into the ring I want to FIGHT and if my actions seem a little rough I don't do anything in violation of the rules. Some of the fans have a false impression that I butt and use my elbows. In fact, I guess some of them expect to see me bite Larue. I promise I will fight a good clean fight because it is not my nature to be dirty. I will win or lose on my merits Tuesday and take it from me I am not going to lose."

Sincere in Effort to Come Back

Larue can rest assured that Morris will not revert to foul tactics. He is sincere in his endeavor to rehabilitate himself in the eyes of the boxing fans of this vicinity and he knows that the rough stuff simply does not go and does not get him anything. Morris is sure he will get a square deal in the ring and he is determined to do nothing to get the fans sore at him. While not belittling the Oakland heavyweight Morris feels that Larue has not had enough experience to warrant him tackling the old-timers. In Carl's own words: "These amateurs are all right until they stop a good solid smash and then they wilt fast."

Larue is Ready for Big Engineer

Larue did his last boxing for Tuesday's battle at Wixon's gymnasium yesterday when he stepped four rounds with Chris Hampton and Frankie Burns. Bill is trained down fine and says he was never in better condition in his career. He thinks Morris will prove even easier game than Willie Meehan and he has already authorized Kid Parker to sign him up with any heavyweight that cares to take a chance. Larue will probably weigh a pound or two less than he did when he met Meehan. He will weigh in about 202 while Morris will scale around 230. After his work-out yesterday Morris tipped the beam at exactly 221 pounds. He has taken off nineteen pounds during his stay at San Rafael.

Crockett and Alameda Boys Play to Draw

By MAURY PESSANO.

With the fans at Lincoln Park, Alameda, enjoying one of the best games played on that field this season between Thomas Cahalan's Crockett Sugarites, and Manuel Duarte's Halton-Didiers, the game had to be called at the end of the seventh inning on account of rain, with neither side having registered a score. It was one game that made the fans know they were witnessing a real battle, and even though rain was falling and had Managers Duarte and Cahalan listened to the fans, the game would have been played out. The game will be played over September 28 on the Alameda lot. Jimmy Sheppard allowed Halton-Didiers but four scattered hits, one of the clouts going for a triple, while the other three were singles. The first four innings saw the Alameda boys do all their hitting, while the last three innings were easy for the Crockett pitcher, but one man reaching second base, and that on a couple of errors. With a catcher like Daddy Rohrer, Sheppard will bear watching. Already he has been offered several contracts for the coming year.

While Sheppard was displaying his assortment of curves, Jack Killilay for the Halton-Didiers made the game a pitchers' battle by his great twirling. "Handsome Jack" allowed but two hitters to solve his slants. Joe Tobin and Daddy Rohrer were the only two men to crack out base hits, while only twenty-three men faced Jack in game, six being able to reach first base by his walks and an error. Cahalan's boys opened the first inning with a bang, and for awhile it looked like a score. After Billy Hollander walked and was forced at second by Church, who stole the keystone sack, Cahalan wore a big smile for two of his best hitters were coming up with Church on second. But the best that Silva and Tobin could do was to hit easy pop flies. A fast double play in the same inning helped Sheppard along. In the third inning Daddy Rohrer opened with the first hit off Killilay, a sharp single to center. A passed ball put him on second. On a close play at third base, when Sheppard bunted to Killilay, Daddy was out. Hollander hit a fly to Boldt, who made a good catch, and a quick throw by the outfielder doubled up Sheppard at first. After two hands were out in the Halton Didiers' half of the third, Boldt hit a long one between Tobin, and Silva for three bags, but Tommy Scanlon was an easy victim. The last hit off Sheppard came in the following frame. From this stage until the finish the fans saw some good baseball, and when the clubs meet in a return game, the stands at Alameda should be filled. Next Sunday Frank Graves' Union Construction boys play the Halton-Didiers on the Alameda field.

NEVILLE OF CLAREMONT AND DR. WALTER OF SEQUOYAH MAY MEET IN STATE GOLF FINALS

Jack Neville Defeats Douglas Grant and the Sequoyah Man Takes Texan Into Camp

DEL MONTE, Sept. 8.—Jack Neville, Claremont's most favorite golfing son, added more fame to his name over the Del Monte links yesterday when he encompassed the defeat of Douglas Grant, State and Southern California champion. This was accomplished with a wonderful exhibition of uphill golf and in the face of almost unanimous opinion which had selected Douglas the "master golfer," as the winner.

The Claremonter has always been noted for his steady nerve and fighting spirit in close matches, and he did not fail his friends, which were numbered by hundreds in the big galleries. He made an iron shot from among the trees right to the 36th hole, where victory was gained.

Finishing the morning round, Neville was one down and then he lost the first hole of the afternoon's play. He came strong to win the fourth, fifth and sixth to emerge one to the good. Then on the eighth Grant was favored by the gods in having his tee shot strike the fence and bound back towards the hole. It squared the match. Grant took the tenth and was one up again.

On the twelfth Doug missed a short putt and when he duplicated the stunt on the 13th, Neville took a lead of one up which he never relinquished. Going to the fifteenth, Jack showed his nerve by laying a beautiful approach right to the pin after he had driven out of bounds.

NEVILLE SAVES TITLE.

It was surely a glorious victory for Neville. For years he has been duelling with Grant and here on the last occasion he came out victorious. Grant leaves shortly for England to make his home there and Neville is responsible for keeping the title at home.

The Claremont following made merry, but it had little else to cheer about. Fact is, heavy gloom settled over the links when the word was flashed that Frank Kales was beaten at the 37th by Al Schwartz. The latter is a Stanford student who has been the dark horse of the tournament. First he beat Louby Coleman, Northern California champion, and then he followed by putting out the experienced campaigner, E. K. Johnston.

Kales, however, was looked upon to stop his progress. On Saturday Kales traveled 27 holes in 109 strokes, which has been discovered to be an American record. The Claremonter is credited with possessing perfect golf form and he has been doing finely in this, the first championship he has engaged in since 1911.

As the days go on the fact is getting known that this boy Schwartz is a comer. Schwartz's real test comes today when he goes up against the one and only Jack Neville.

In the lower half Dr. Charles H. Walter of Sequoyah was the big noise. The doctor made the first 18 holes in 69 and had the heralded Texan, F. M. Lewis, 3 down. In the afternoon round Dr. Walter was nine up going to the seventh. The Oakland followers were given some apprehension when Lewis cut this lead down to four at the 11th, but from then on the doctor tightened. He is to meet Frank Tatum of Los Angeles today and the odds would be about 3 to 1 that the doctor gets in the finals against Jack Neville.

The golfers from Alameda county have much to cheer about. Here they have the prospects of the champion of the Claremont club meeting the champion of the Sequoyah Club for the titular golfing honors of the whole State.

In the woman's division the outlook is not so bright. Mrs. C. F. Ford, the Claremont champion of Northern California, was up against the task of meeting Mrs. H. E. Law, State champion, in the first round, and she was beaten 3 and 2 after a well-fought match. Mrs. F. A. Kales, captain of the Claremont women, was carried an extra hole like her husband, but fared better. She defeated her friend, Mrs. A. B. Swinerton, at the 19th. Mrs. Milton Bernard continues to win praise by her victory over Miss Halloran, but she is up against it in going against Miss Edith Chesebrough today.

Yes, S. S. S. Is Purely Vegetable Nature's Safe Blood Treatment

Known for 50 Years as the Best Remedy for Rheumatism, Catarrh and Skin Diseases.

Scientists have discovered that the forest and the field are abundantly supplied with vegetation of various kinds, that furnish the ingredients for making a remedy, for practically every ill and ailment of mankind. Medicines made from roots, herbs, and barks which Nature has placed at the disposal of man, are better than strong mineral mixtures and concoctions. Mineral medicines work dangerously on the delicate parts of the bowels, by eating out the lining membrane, producing chronic dyspepsia and often entirely ruining the health.

S. S. S. is made entirely of gentle-acting, healing, purifying roots, herbs and barks, possessing properties that build up all parts of the system and cleansing the blood of the germs that cause Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, and all disorders of the blood. It cleanses the entire system and it is permanent. Get S. S. S. at any drug store today. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case write to Medical Director, 24W Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.—Advertisement.

Hollis Holds Shipfitters To Two Hits

When a ball club acquires two hits in the course of nine innings it does not expect to win a game—it is simply not being done these days—so the Mare Island Shipfitters dropped a 5-to-2 game to the Richmond Elks at the Richmond lot yesterday afternoon.

Babe Hollis, who has been accused of using various trick balls, did the chucking for the winners and there was no evidence that he used anything that the law does not permit. He simply had too much stuff on the ball for the shipbuilders as he held 'em to a pair of binglers and fanned seven ambitious batters. At that the Mare Island boys got a couple of runs for themselves.

"Smilie" Cole occupied the box for the Mare Island aggregation and he pitched a fair enough game of ball, but he never had a chance to win when his teammates failed to back him up with blows. Cole got by nicely in the first, was the victim of a terrible onslaught in the second, when he was nicked for a quartet of tallies and then he settled down and allowed but three more hits in the balance of the game.

But that second frame was "Smilie's" undoing. The Richmond gang did everything but steal his shoes in this frame and it looked like the showers for Cole.

SECOND INNING IS TOUGH FOR COLE.

Tidell opened the session with a swat to left that was good for two sacks and he moved on to third when Harrington dropped the ball at second base. Autrey singled to score Tidell and Friene succumbed on three good strikes. Ralph Croll's blow sent Chick to second and both runners advanced while Schwake was being dispersed on an infield chance. Hollis arrived next with two in the morgue and all Babe had in his bat was a double, so he unloaded it to score a pair of runners. A passed ball put Hollis on third and he ambled home, while Armstrong was arguing with a ball that Burns shot at him. Smith walked and Hawks singled, but Smithy was nailed off second. Four runs were over and so was the ball game.

Hawks walked in the fifth and was buried along by Tidell, Morrisey fozzled one from Chick Autrey's bat and the Chicken meandered over the plate. That made it 5 to 0, but the Shipfitters were game and kept right on trying. Cole reached first on a fielder's choice in the sixth and scampered home when Harvey Christensen knocked the ticket three-bagger. Cole walked in the eighth, Harrington singled, Christensen was swatted by a pitched ball and Cole scored on an out. Armstrong followed with a wallop that looked good for three sacks, but Chick Autrey made a sensational stop to end the inning.

S. F. Elks Defeat Local Herd, 9 to 4

The Oakland Elks baseball team will have to wait a week or so before they will know if they will make the trip to San Diego to play the Elks' team of that city for the state championship. Had the locals won their game yesterday from the San Francisco lodge, at the Oakland Coast League park, they would have all but clinched the trip, but the result was that they lost in ten innings, 9 to 4.

The local Elks put up a game fight, being on the short end of a 4 to 1 score when they went to bat in the ninth. They tied the score with three runs, but the transfer Elks came back with five in their half of the tenth. The hitting of Tom Kelly and Maguire featured for the winners.

BOILERMAKERS STAGE FINE PROGRAM OF EVENTS IN SPITE OF HEAVY RAIN

Committee Goes Through With Program and Gives One of the Best Shows in Years

A perfectly good dance hall was turned into a fight house yesterday when John Rain, but the crusher on outdoor activities at the Boilermakers' picnic held at East Shore park. A heavy rain was falling and there was a fine excuse for calling off the battles and saving the boilermakers a lot of money, but the committee decided to stage everything scheduled, rain or no rain, and the entire program was run off.

When it was found impossible to stage the battles in the open the trippers of the light fantastic were shooed off the dance floor and the canvas was brought in and laid in the center of the pavilion. The dancers did not know what it was all about and many of them saw their first boxing contest.

Fights have been staged under queer conditions before, but this is the first time in the writer's experience where a pair of scrappers have been eased into the middle of a dance and sent to work with the gloves. Some of the lady patrons kicked a bit at the interruption of the dancing but when the first pair of fighters got under way the girls could not get close enough to the scene of action and they made more noise than the men folks.

DENNY AND REIDY BATTLE INTO CROWD.

Eddie Denny and Sailor Reidy were the first pair and the boys staged an old fashioned slugging match. There was no rope around the ring during the first two rounds and the referee had to chase into the crowd at times and drag the boys back on the canvas. Occasionally they would fight their way clear into the crowd and some of the cash customers got their faces in the way of well meant wallops. Later a rope was obtained and members of the committee stationed at the four corners held the crowd back but some of the more enthusiastic fans insisted on climbing under the rope and showing the fighters how to do it. Reidy got the decision because he forced Denny all around the ring and would probably have forced him out of the park but for the crowd.

Then came the real fireworks in Battling Vierra and Pete Tavis. The boys stood toe to toe for two and a half rounds slugging for all they were worth. Vierra dropped his man twice in the second round for the count of nine both times, but Pete was game and came back for more. In the third Tavis went down again and he was so exhausted he could not arise. At that he had a couple of lady friends who smacked him on the lips after Vierra had gotten through smacking him on the same lips with a pair of boxing gloves. It was one of the greatest battles ever staged in this vicinity and if Tommy Simpson wants a good card he has one right here. Tavis had neglected to train for the fight, but get Pete into condition and pair him off with the Battler and you will get about the best card in the pugilistic deck.

BOILERMAKERS WANT REAL FIGHTING ONLY.

Jimmy Dundee and Eddie Gorman staged a brother act for a pair of rounds in the so-called main event, but the boilermakers and their guests demanded regular fighting, so the little guys were told to call it a day without finishing their engagement. Gorman claimed to have a sore hand and Dundee was plainly not trying to damage his little pal.

The soccer teams of the Moore and Alameda Bethlehem yards staged their game in a heavy downfall of rain and Jenkins and McCarthy wrestled for fifteen minutes without a fall in a raindrenched ring. Jenkins was supposed to be McCarthy's master, but the Irishman proved a hard man to throw and he was game enough to go on the aggressive at times.

There was a nail driving contest for ladies, races for young and old and famous bagpipe band of the Caledonian club entertained at intervals and a general good time was enjoyed by everybody in spite of the rain.

The committee in charge took good care of their guests and gave them one of the best shows of the year.

Bob Shand referred the boxing bouts and wrestling matches and Charlie Meyers and Frank Levene acted as Judges. Postie Ryan was master of ceremonies and was the busiest man on the lot.

Oakland Man Big Surprise To Tennisers

E. A. Klein of the Oakland Tennis Club, who has been playing the game for upwards of forty years, gave the "youth will be served" adage a terrible kick in the slats yesterday when he defeated Morgan Fottrell in the state tennis championships, now being conducted at the Berkeley courts. Fottrell recently won the British Columbia clay courts doubles championship and was conceded to be a dangerous contender for the state title. The Oakland man lost the first set 6-3 and then got busy and took the next two, 6—4 and 7—5.

Miss Helen Baker, the present state champion in the ladies' singles, won from Miss Johanna Gunzburger in rather hollow fashion, taking the two sets by the same scores—6—1, 6—1. The courts were wet all day and a downpour in the middle of the afternoon resulted in the calling off of play for the day. The matches will be continued Tuesday. Yesterday's results follow:

HAY RECEIPTS FALL OFF AND PRICES HIGHER

Receipts of hay for the past week were 2509 tons; week previous, 3459 tons. The decrease in the receipts no doubt has been occasioned by the unsettled conditions prevailing during the week. Labor Day no work was done in the line of loading or discharging cars or boats, and the arrival of the fleet caused many to come from the country to the city. This, in conjunction with the shortage of cars, which is becoming more stringent daily, has had the effect of cutting down the amount of receipts.

There is no inquiry for straw and heavy offerings are being made without many sales. Wholesale prices in carload lots, as quoted from dealers' transfers upon the hay market (for prices to consumers, charges of carriage, commission and handling expenses must be added, according to conditions, follow):

Fancy wheat hay (Best 3-wire bales), at $17.50 to $19 per ton.

No. 1 wheat or wheat and oat hay, at $15@18 per ton.

No. 2 wheat or wheat and oat hay, at $12 to $15 per ton.

Choice tame oat hay, at $15 to $18 per ton.

Alfalfa hay, at $17 to $22 per ton.

Stock hay, at $8 to $12 per ton.

No. 1 barley straw, at 50c to 60c per bale.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—The opening prices of corn ranging from 1¼c decline to ¼c advance, with September $1.61 to $1.64¾ and December at $1.32 to $1.32¼, were followed by a moderate general setback.

Later the bears put considerable stress on the fact that the season is approaching when hedging sales become a decisive influence. The close was weak, ⅜ to 1⅝c net lower with Sept. $1.62¾ and Dec. $1.31 to $1.31¼.

Oats held steady with corn.

Trade in provisions was nearly at a standstill, in the absence of any aggressive support quotations inclined to sag.

923,023,000 Bushels Wheat Harvest Total

LOCAL PRODUCE

The local market was strong today, all lines receiving after the holiday. Peaches, corn, grapes, tomatoes, were leaders, with all other varieties showing the usual Monday strength. The first Bellefleur apples arrived during the week-end and boxes sold around $2 each. This shipment of one carload marks the beginning of Bellefleur arrivals from the Watsonville growing district. Corn, which declined to the 50 cent margin on a sack near the close of Saturday's business, rose a slight bit above normal today. Only absolutely necessary trade will be consummated tomorrow, most dealers expecting to close early.

RODMAN FOR LID ON 'COAST' AFTER RIOTING

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—Army and navy officials are investigating today riots which occurred last night on the Barbary Coast when a thousand men from both services attempted to avenge a beating administered to a soldier by a civilian negro. Admiral Rodman of the Pacific fleet and high officers from the Presidio have indicated that they will make personal inquiries and a possible result of the investigation may be the closing of dance halls in the "eye-sore" district, temporarily or permanently.

Joseph Lightner, a white soldier stationed here, was the man beaten. Reporting to the provost guard soon after the fray, Lightner was taken to the scene of the fight by the military police in an effort to locate the assailant. He had fled.

UNIFORMED MOB GATHERS.

The news spread among the soldiers and sailors on liberty and before long a mob of one thousand were gathering near the dance hall district for a vengeful attack. Eldridge Grant, member of the Second Hawaiian company, army force, was arrested by Lieutenant of Police Steven Bunner, charged with inciting rioters. It is alleged that he stood at Embarcadero and Clay street, urging the men through a megaphone to "clean out the Barbary Coast."

Each time that the mob charged for the district they were met by a solid phalanx of military police, civilian authorities and naval provost guardsmen, who managed to break down the mad attempts for vengeance.

THREATEN GENERAL ATTACK.

The declared intention of the rioters, according to police reports, was a general attack on all dance halls, together with a "cleaning out" of negroes in the district.

The rioters were driven to the outskirts of the district every time they charged and at last gave up organized attempt for revenge. The entire Barbary Coast was patrolled following the incident and all military men stopped from going into the district. Naval officers, it is said, will ask the police to close up the dance halls while the fleet is here, and it is understood that Admiral Rodman will ask for strict measures.

WAS FORCED TO GIVE UP WORK

Suffered Five Years—Gains Thirty Pounds Taking Tanlac.

"I'll tell the world that this Tanlac comes nearer doing all that is claimed for than any medicine I ever saw in my life," said Otto Zangg, a well known carpenter and builder who lives at 1535 Pleasant ave., Los Angeles, the other day.

"I have tried a good many different medicines during the past five years," continued Mr. Zangg, "but Tanlac is the only one that has measured up to its recommendation and is the only thing that has done me any good at all. I suffered from stomach trouble, and every time I ate anything I would be all bloated up with gas for hours afterwards. I was so nervous that I never got a good night's sleep and just kept getting worse until I was forced to give up my work altogether. In fact, I was in such a bad fix that I was not able to get about very much. Every time I saw a medicine advertised as being good for any kind of trouble I would get it and try it, but I didn't get any benefits from any of it.

"Well, when Tanlac came along I thought I might as well give that a trial, too, so I bought a bottle and commenced taking it. I really laughed when I first heard about Tanlac, for I thought it would be like all the rest, but I want to tell you that Tanlac fooled me. It just simply knocked my troubles right out, and I am as well and hearty now as I ever was. Why, I have actually gained thirty pounds and when I go to bed now I sleep until time to get up in the morning. Yes, sir, you will have to go a long ways to find a medicine as good as Tanlac, and as long as I live I will praise it for the good it has done me."

Tanlac is sold in San Francisco and Oakland by The Owl Drug Company stores.—Advertisement.

Charles R. Kimie, the smallest engineer on the Western division, though he has been railroading since 1898 when he started "braking" on the coast division under Superintendent J. L. Frazer, is also one of California's pioneers of the footlights. Among the performers with whom he has been connected were such stars as Charlie Reed, Billy Emerson, Ned Buckley and the late George Primrose. "Baby Kimie," as he was better known, made his Oakland debut at the old Orient Theater at Sixth and Broadway in 1879.

W. S. Lee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers passed away last week after a lingering illness.

On July 24 the longest train ever handled on the Stockton division was started from Tracy at 3:35 p. m., arriving at Roseville at 10:10 p. m. The engine was of the mallet type now being used on the mountain runs. The train consisted of 125 cars and a caboose, making a total length of more than a mile and weighing 7,468,000 pounds.

Walker D. Hines, director-general of railroads, has called the attention of all the regional directors that the period between October 18 and October 31, 1919, is to be designated as the "National Railroad Accident Prevention Drive."

During the week ending August 13 the Port Costa-Benicia ferries, the two largest afloat, handled 1923 passenger coaches and 2864 freight cars, making a total of 4787.

I. Tracy, formerly Western division conductor, at present with the belt line of San Francisco, who was badly injured when an auto in which he and his family were riding collided with Key Route train, has completely recovered and is again on the job.

"Don't be so long winded in your reports as you have been in the past," said the manager of the ——— railway to his overseer. "Just report the condition of the track as you find it, without a lot of needless words. Write a business not a love letter."

A few days later the railway line was badly flooded and the overseer wrote his report as follows: "Sir: Where your railroad was the river is."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

GOB'S ASSAILANT IS GRANTED BAIL

William Anderson, Oakland shipworker, and former petty officer in the navy, who Saturday night shot Frank Smyth, a sailor, in a row at the Thalia dance hall in San Francisco, is free today on $250 bail, booked on a charge of assault with intent to murder by the San Francisco police. Smyth has been taken to the destroyer Ludlow, where he is stationed. His recovery is said to be doubtful.

The trouble occurred late Saturday night when Anderson found his wife in the San Francisco cafe, dancing with Smyth. She had been missing from her home in Oakland since the arrival of the Pacific fleet. A quarrel ensued, and Anderson shot the sailor. He was rescued by the police and provost guard from a hurriedly organized mob of other sailors who, not knowing that Anderson had been in the navy, threatened to lynch him.

Anderson was a former chief boatswain in the navy, and later was in the government service as a pilot of bay waters. For some time past he has been employed in the Moore shipyards.

SHIP 'KICK-BACK' INJURES SOLON

"Thirteen" is still an unlucky number, particularly if your name is Kelly and you happen to be a Congressman. Wherefore Congressman Patrick Kelly of Michigan is suffering today from a badly sprained ankle, the result of a ship "kicking back" while being launched. It was the thirteenth hull launched from the Schaw-Batcher shipyards.

Congressman Kelly was to cut the line that started the ship down its ways at the launching yesterday, he and Edward Roche, a ship carpenter, being stationed at the proper place beside the rope. At the signal the congressman cut the rope, and the result was a "kick back." The shoring rope snapped like a whip, hurling the two men to the ground. Roche was struck as he went down by heavy timbers and the congressman turned his ankle. Roche was badly cut on the head and face.

The launching aside from the accident under the vessel, was a success. Mrs. H. O. Schuster broke the bottle of wine over the prow of the big freighter, West Cahokia, the ceremony being witnessed by Congressman Joseph Walsh of Massachusetts, A. J. Frey, divisional director for the Shipping Board, and shipyard officials. The keel of Hull No. 17 was dropped into place after the launching.

After Vacation Peel Your Discolored Skin

Women returning from the seaside with browned, reddened or freckled complexions will be wise in immediately taking up the mercolized wax treatment. Weatherbeaten skin had best come off, for no amount of "beautifying will ever make such skin pretty to look at. The surest, safest, easiest way to shed the despoiled cuticle is with the treatment suggested. Put the wax on before retiring, as you would cold cream, and rinse it off next morning with warm water. Minute particle of scarf skin will peel off day by day, gradually showing the healthy, youthful skin beneath.

One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is enough to make any discolored or spotted complexion clear, white and satiny soft. Its action is so gentle no harm is caused and the face shows no trace of its use.—Advertisement.

A Traveling Man's Experience.

You may learn something from the following by W. H. Ireland, a traveling salesman of Louisville, Ky. "In the summer of 1888 I had a severe attack of cholera morbus. I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and to take no substitute. I took a double dose of it according to directions and went to sleep. At five o'clock next morning I was called by my order and took a train at my next stopping place, a well man." Osgood Bros. THRONG GREETS 319TH BOYS AT OAKLAND MOLE

The 319th Engineers returned yesterday from overseas, almost on the anniversary of the day on which they left Camp Fremont to participate in the great world war. It was a year ago tomorrow that wives and sweethearts gathered at Oakland mole to bid their kinsfolk who had been chosen from among the 5000 who had volunteered for that organization adieu. They were the same wives and sweethearts who flocked to Oakland mole on Saturday night to await the train which bore the sunburned veterans home. The special arrived forty hours late. All night the valiant little band of eager relatives watched through the hours. It was 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning when the long train steamed in to as joyful a welcome as any home-returning regiment had ever received.

After the kisses and tearms and tossing of flowers, Oakland chapter, American Red Cross canteen workers, were on hand with hot breakfasts and the comforts which the Hut affords. It was 9 o'clock when the engineers reached San Francisco, the last of the organizations composed almost entirely of California men to return for demobilization.

MARCH THROUGH STREETS.

Mounted police, supervisors and city and county officials, the Municipal band and Troop H, 11th Cavalry, formed the escort which led the heroes through the streets of San Francisco on the way to the Presidio in what will perhaps be the last welcome-home spectacle attended with glitter and pomp of a civic celebration. At the Civic center the regiment was formally welcomed by City Engineer O'Shaughnessy, whose son returned yesterday.

Efficiency of the 319th Engineers was the factor which kept the men overseas until the last. In the returning contingent yesterday were 12 officers and 600 men under command of Major Julius M. Cohen.

The other 1800 men who had sailed with the regiment had been discharged from eastern camps or sent home earlier for discharge because of dependents or physical disability.

Before sailing 400 had volunteered for four months' service in Poland to help stamp out typhus and to demonstrate to the Polish army the use of several million dollars' worth of trucks, tractors and other equipment sold by the American army. Several re-enlisted with the regular units now stationed in Germany.

HEADQUARTERS IN S. F.

With headquarters to be established in San Francisco, the 319th Engineers while in France organized permanently, Corporal William C. Mathews being named president. The six cups, three banners and many citations will be kept at these headquarters.

It was the 319th Engineers who were responsible for the building of the debarkation port at Brest. Ordered to build ten barracks a day and, lacking laborers, they fell to and made a record of an average of 27 barracks in every 24-hour period. They built every type of structure, roads, a 17-mile narrow gauge road, electric light and power plant, water works and sewerage system.

When their task was completed they had a camp capable of housing 110,000 men. Although they received assistance in their work after it was begun, this regiment, composed almost entirely of California men, are believed to have accomplished treble the amount of work of any other organization.

MRS. HAVENS SAFE FROM CAR WRECK

Mrs. Harold Havens, Piedmont society matron, is at her home, safe, after a narrow escape from death in an automobile accident and a "disappearance" that for a time alarmed her family, and had the Piedmont police searching for her, while she was at the home of friends, not knowing what anxiety the finding of her wrecked machine had caused.

Mrs. Havens, with Mrs. Jack Alton of San Mateo, left the Havens home at Sea View and Union streets Saturday night to visit friends. The machine they were riding in was crowded off the embankment on Wildwood avenue, sliding to the bottom of the gully, where it was found badly damaged. Mrs. Havens and Mrs. Alton, after waiting until a garage had been notified, proceeded on foot to the home of their friends.

In the meantime the finding of the machine by the police caused serious alarm. When no trace of the two women could be found Wickham Havens, brother-in-law of the "missing" society woman, ordered a detailed search. In the midst of this, shortly after midnight, she returned home, none the worse for the accident.

According to Mrs. Havens she was crowded from the road while turning out for another machine, which, she says, proceeded without stopping to render aid in the accident.

BEST-DRESSED COURT WOMAN NOW SHABBY

AMSTERDAM, Saturday, Sept. 6.—(By the Associated Press).—The sightseers who crowded the station today to witness the arrival of the former Crown Prince Cecilie were struck by the pallor of the ex-emperor's grand children and much-used appearing costumes worn by Cecilie, who once was known as the best-dressed woman in the courts of Europe.

The former crown princess and her two eldest sons will go to Amerongen to visit the former emperor.

Mexico Is Theme of Extravaganza Scheduled by East Bay Elk Lodges

Lavish Production Will Be Given Next Week to Swell Christmas Cheer Fund.

"What's the idea in Mexico?"

This is the rather ambitious subject that is to be taken up in the musical extravaganza "Down Rain Bow Lane" which the combined lodges of Elks in Berkeley and Oakland are to present September 18, 19 and 20 at the Oakland Auditorium for the benefit of the Elks' Christmas cheer fund.

The scene of the production is laid on a Mexican plantation and H. L. Brown, the author of the production, touches the Mexican situation from a number of different angles in a humorous way.

The production will call for 250 people and will be the most lavish that the local Elks have ever undertaken. Rehearsals are now under way and the task of selecting the talent has started. So far Miss Marie Grant, Louise Jorgensen, Florence King, Helen Robinson, Lutrelle Pace and Aldywith McClintock have been selected for dancing parts.

Among the big acts will be the De Koven club of Berkeley, the Treble Clef Quartette, the Oakland Elks' band and the celebrated Elks quartette of Berkeley.

H. L. Brown, the author, is personally staging the production. The proceeds will be devoted entirely to the replenishment of the Elks' Christmas cheer fund out of which the Elks provide for the poor and unfortunate at Christmas time.

MARIE GRANT, who will take one of the dancing parts in the Oakland and Berkeley Elks' Show to be held at the Oakland Auditorium, for the benefit of the Christmas Cheer Fund.

Jilted Secretary Sues Her Employer

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 8.—Miss Kellie M. Sharpe has filed a $25,000 breach of promise suit against Ralph Hahn, general manager of the Sterling Food Products Company.

The plaintiff alleges Hahn refused to marry her after their engagement had ben published in a local newspaper. Miss Sharpe avers that the defendant commenced making love to her shortly after she arrived here from Chicago and became his private secretary.

WHO FOLLOWS "WAGON TRACKS?"

Who is guilty? That is the stern question in the eyes of the "Buckskin Hamilton," played by Bill Hart at the Kinema to day.

Day by day the slow-moving wagon train wound slowly into the desert. He did not know where they would lead, but someone had slain his brother and grimly he followed the tracks. Day by day the burden of guilt pressed heavier under the suspicious eyes of the avenger. And then the woman told the truth, renewing his faith and his purpose.

The Indian menace threatened to break upon the little caravan; the nodding war-plumes waved on the horizon, but a sacrifice averted disaster.

The role played by Bill Hart in "Wagon Tracks" at the Kinema this week is that of a typical plainsman—the kind of a role showing Hart at his best and yet it is different from his cowboy characterizations.

The scenes and action are historically correct—a picture of the West in the days of the prairie schooner, and the old Santa Fe trail, that is painted in true colors. There are battles with Indians, a struggle with gamblers, a revenge motive and love interest of the true Hart kind. And all of the events stack up to a surprising and unusual denouement.—Advertisement.

LEGION PLANS BIG WELCOME TO ROOSEVELT

Members of the Eastbay and San Francisco posts of the American Legion are today preparing a big reception and celebration program for Monday next, when Colonel Theodore Roosevelt Jr. arrives. The illustrious son of America's former political leader will talk at the Civic auditorium Monday night, taking for his subject the new veterans' organization, which he helped establish.

It is planned to greet the fighting "Teddy Jr." much in the same manner that California used to hail the warrior's father in other days. At a great Americanism rally he will be the chief speaker, with Mayor Rolph extending the city's official welcome and John L. McNab speaking for civilian San Francisco. Colonel H. G. Mathewson, chairman of the California posts, American Legion, will preside.

Judge A. E. Graupner, Nelson Welburn, Phillip Bancroft, Phillip Katz and other fighters, recognized as heroic defenders of the flag in Europe, will be seated on the platform beside Roosevelt, who is on a tour of the nation, telling the millons not in the organization just what the legion stands for.

Headquarters of the legion will be established during Roosevelt's visit at the Palace hotel. There the center of activities will be located until the evening rally. Colonel Mathewson announced that the first state convention of the legion, attended by representatives from sixty posts and representing 10,000 members in California, will begin October 8.

SUGAR PRICES SOON TO SOAR IS PREDICTION

Predictions are freely made among wholesalers, jobbers and refiners that sugar prices will advance, as never before, following the close of government control at midnight, December 31, 1919. The present sugar "shortage" is not an actual lack of sugar, they say, supplies on hand being equal to all normal demands from consumers. However, price relief is not in sight after the first of next year, should government control cease.

According to A. E. Saroni, leading wholesaler, the entire cane sugar crop has been sold by the refiners. Ordinarily this crop lasts twelve months—this year the supply was gone in eight. This places the demand entirely on beet sugar refiners, who have so far found themselves unable to meet in its entirety domestic and foreign demands.

The 1919-1920 beet sugar crop is not yet ready, according to Saroni. The refiners start slicing the beets July 1 as a rule, but late crops compelled postponement until August 30 this year. The beet slicing activities continue for three months. That the beet sugar refiners will be unwilling to release as a whole their entire crop when ready, is Saroni's belief. Despite certain crop failures in California, which necessitated closing large refineries, this year's beet supply will break a record.

European demand also accounts for the empty warehouses and short supplies, according to Saroni. Germany, as a beet-refining state, is not able at this time to supply Europe, which throws the burden on American growers. Unless relief comes, it is freely predicted among those in the trade that beet sugar prices may rise to a higher point after January 1 than former quotations on the more expensive cane sugar.

The cane supply will be in after the first of January, 1920. That growers and refiners will not allow their wares to be dumped on the market next year and sold in eight months, as during 1919, is another trade prediction. In the meantime ultimate consumers are paying the government limit of 11 cents per pound on sugar, and some grocers, not well supplied, have started rationing their customers.
